A vivid and interesting account of the author's personal experience as surgeon aboard the Dundee Whaler Aurora, which participated in the search for the Greely expedition. The chapters devoted to this affair are particularly interesting. The book contains an exceedingly attractive description of the whaler's trip from Dundee to Newfoundland, from which place for several months she was engaged in seal fishing off the Labrador coast. Much interesting information regarding the seals, their habits and the methods of capturing them is given. It is after the sealing season is finished that the search for the Greely expedition is started. Later the vessel makes a whaling trip to the coast of Greenland. The lands visited, the inhabitants, the hunting of wild animals and birds are all described by the author in a manner that cannot fail to attract and hold the reader's deepest interest.

Our Northern Domain.

Alaska: Picturesque, Historic, and Commercial.

An extremely interesting and timely book on that rapidly growing section of our country, which as recently as twelve years ago was considered by the general public a vast extent of snow and ice, of which very little was known and less expected. The discovery of gold and the consequent influx of people from the United States and Canada was necessarily followed by the rapid development of its agricultural and commercial interests. Alaska is now rapidly coming into its own. Much has been written regarding it, but this volume by one of our foremost literary men and an authority on the subject must prove of great interest and value. It deals with the country from its discovery to the present time. It tells its history, describes its people and scenery and the wonderful improvements that are being made by its rapidly increasing population.

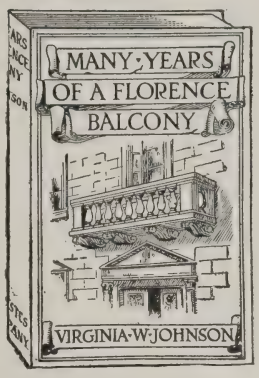
Many Years of a Florence Balcony



By Virginia W. Johnson, author of "Florence: The Lily of the Arno," "Genoa the Superb," "Coma, A World's Shrine," etc.

Observations, recollections and impressions of an American woman of letters formed during a sojourn of twenty years in Florence.

Of all modern cities that are now flourishing, Florence probably retains the best preserved monuments and other memorials of mediæval grandeur and certainly possesses the most unique and extensive collections of works of art. Yet without having lost or obliterated the reliques of the past it possesses all the developments and improvements of a modern city. Nowhere else can one so thoroughly enjoy the best of the present and be so perfectly in touch with the glories of the past. Hence it offers especial attraction to discriminating people of all races and its colony of foreign residents is extensive and charming. This work describes in the happiest style of a very popular author her experiences during a lengthy residence in this most interesting city and should interest readers of all classes. Illustrated.

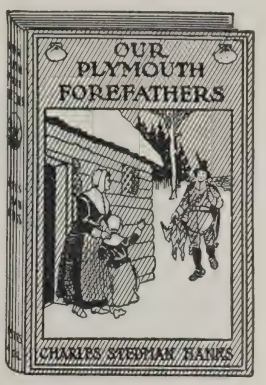
Our Plymouth Forefathers.

By Charles Stedman Hanks, author of "Hints to Golfers," "Camp Kits and Camp Life."



Mr. Hanks, Boston lawyer of high standing, eminent golfer by right of priority and devotion to the "Royal and Ancient game," railroad investigator, and friend of President Roosevelt, was as diverse in his writings as in his accomplishments and avocations. His contribution to Colonial history undoubtedly will take as high a rank in its field as did his notable work on golf when it appeared seven years ago. "Our Plymouth Forefathers" bears evidence of the same painstaking care and historical research that characterized all of his literary work. Beginning with the departure of the Pilgrim Fathers from England and their settlement in Holland, the author traces the religious movements of the times that led to the expedition to America. The story of the Plymouth Colony and its relation to those stirring events in our country's earliest history is given with the impressive detail that is devoid of pedantry, while the style is simple, forceful and convincing. The work is extra illustrated with numerous beautiful double tone plates and has a complete index.

These treasured reminiscences of these two wonderful individualities are of absolutely universal interest and offer unique opportunity to readers of every class.

Journals and Letters of Samuel Gridley Howe. (In 2 vols.)

Volume I., The Greek Revolution.
Volume II., The Servant of Humanity.

Edited by his daughter, Laura E. Richards, with an introduction and annotations by Frank B. Sanborn. Complete in two volumes, sold separately.

Inspired by his love of freedom, his hatred of cruelty, and his eagerness to relieve suffering, this young American physician gave up ease, custom, and money-getting, and hastened over seas to fight a savage foe among savage mountains for love of that dear land which was next in his affections to his own, the land of the imperishable Ideal. The second volume deals with the many interests and activities which followed his initial exploits in behalf of the Greeks. His successes in the cause of education of the blind; his participation in the anti-slavery agitation; his intercourse with Kossuth and others struggling in the cause of freedom; his Civil War time activities; these and many other events of equal interest are told of in his journals, which give wonderfully vivid accounts of a career destined to live throughout the course of history.

Frank Brangwyn and His Works

By Walter Shaw-Sparrow. Illustrated with 20 reproductions in color of pictures by Mr. Brangwyn and 16 collotype reproductions of etchings and lithographs.

Mr. Brangwyn is as many-sided as one of the great artists of mediæval times, and all his various activities have been dealt with in this volume. Oil pictures, water-colors, tempera painting, decorative painting, sketches, etchings, designs for household furniture, stained glass, etc.; but for most of us it is as a colorist he stands out pre-eminently. As a French critic has expressed it, there is in all his work "a something intensely vivid, a something glowing and irradiating that delights the eye."

On the other hand, there are art-lovers who are less susceptible to Brangwyn's paintings than to his etchings, while some are interested in him above all as an interpreter of the life of to-day, a pioneer in that movement of democratic art associated with the names of François Millet and Constantin Meunier. Students of his work in all its phases will find in the illustrations to Mr. Shaw-Sparrow's elaborate monograph such opportunities for comparison as they have never enjoyed before. Nor is there any lack of "human interest" in the story Mr. Sparrow has to tell, for throughout Brangwyn's varied career — his boyhood in Bruges, his association with William Morris, his long and eventful voyages all over the world — there is an underlying suggestion of adventure and romance.

The Heavens and Their Story

By Annie and E. Walter Munder, F. R. A. S.

This is not a text-book to teach the student the science of astronomy; it is a retelling of the stories told by the heavenly bodies, so that those who will may read them for themselves. At first the readers of the stories written on the heavenly page are asked to take their stand as their forefathers did — without any assistance but the human eye, the open sky, and the horizon line. Then there is brought to them the aid of the telescope, the spectroscope, the sensitive plate, and the magnetic needle; and by these means the sun tells the stories of his surface, of his surroundings, and of his effect upon the earth, or of the earth upon him. By these means also his family tell their stories — the stories of Jupiter, Saturn, Mars, Venus, the Moon, and the Comets. Finally we read something of the spaciousness and magnificence of the Starry Universe.

The Animals And Their Story

By W. Percival Westell, F. L. S., M. B. O. U.

In this book the author has given his time and attention to a representative selection of animals found in all the important parts of the world. The work is mapped out in four sections, namely,

Denizens of the Forest and Jungle
Denizens of the Plains and Deserts
Denizens of the Hills and Mountains
Prowlers of the Night

By this means the reader is enabled to gain a fairly good idea of the kinds of animals inhabiting certain environments, how well suited they are to such conditions, etc. The value of the book is considerably enhanced by the magnificent series of one hundred photographs taken from live animals, and the eight beautifully executed color plates.

The Universe; Or, The Infinitely Great and the Infinitely Little.

By F. A. Pouchet, M. D.

A Sketch of Contrasts in Creation, and Marvels revealed and explained by Natural Science. Revised and edited by J. R. Ainsworth Davis, M.A., Professor of Biology and Geology in University College, Aberystwth. Illustrated by 260 engravings on wood and 7 colored pictures.

The object of this work is to inspire and extend a taste for natural science. It is not a learned treatise, but a simple study. The title adopted indicates that the author has gathered from creation at large, often contrasting the smallest of its productions with the mightiest.

Glossary to Shakespeare.

By Alexander Dyce.

The glossary to the complete works of Shakespeare by Alexander Dyce (1798–1869), the noted English clergyman and Shakespearian critic, is everywhere recognized as a standard work of reference, but it has not been readily accessible to the book-buyer of small means. The present one-volume edition contains all of Dyce's invaluable references for the illustrative quotations from Shakespeare, with the addition of several new features.

Dyce's references are only to volume and page of his own edition. For these (which are useless except to owners of the Dyce edition), references to the particular play, with act, scene, and line (Cambridge numbering), or the particular poem, with title and line, have been substituted. References to the Cambridge text have been inserted when the word defined, as given in that text, varies from Dyce's text.

In defining words, Dyce sometimes merely refers to his notes on the play or poem for explanation instead of giving it in the glossary. For these words the information in the notes has been transferred to the glossary, making it complete in itself.

Poetry

A Flower Anthology

Being a Selection from the Flower Poems of the English Poets, compiled by Alfred Rawlings, with 12 illustrations after the Water-color Drawings by the Editor.

Mr. Rawlings has had the happy idea of placing his water-colors, which show a nice feeling for the color and grouping of some of the simpler flowers, both of the garden and of the country-side, in a setting of poems, chosen from Wordsworth, Shakespeare, Whittier, Blake, Christina Rossetti, Herrick, and many more of the great poets of nature. His anthology will thus be found to possess a greater unity of purpose than is usually to be expected from books of its kind. The poems are arranged in order of seasonal progression, and many copyright poems are included by special permission.

The Scholar Gipsy, and Thyrsis

By Matthew Arnold. With 10 illustrations, reproduced by the Medici Process, after the original water-colors by W. Russell Flint.

Every line of these two poems, which are so singularly perfect in their kind and at one in their spirit, teem with pictorial possibilities. Mr. Flint in the case of the landscapes at all events has gone straight to the scenes of the poems; to the imaginative subjects he has brought his well-known powers of imagination and color, and if he has fallen short in his efforts it must be admitted that only a reincarnated Matthew Arnold — a poet, this time, of the brush — could hope perfectly to satisfy in so high a task.

Maybloom and Myrtle.

Poems by Samuel Minturn Peck, author of "Cap and Bells," "Alabama Sketches," etc.

12mo, cloth. $1.00

These poems are purely lyrical. Some of them are of that fascinating sort usually termed vers de societe for lack of a better phrase to define it. Some style such poems patrician rhymes. Many of the lyrics treat of love, others of nature, others still give shy and unexpected glimpses into deeper recesses of the human heart. None are pretentious, and all display a grace, a lightness of touch, a lilt and charm that are Mr. Peck's own.

The Poems of Christina Rossetti

With an Introduction by Alice Meynell. Illustrated with 36 colored plates and numerous full-page and vignette black-and-white drawings by Florence Harrison.

This magnificent work is printed on hand-made deckle-edge paper. The colored illustrations are all mounted and inserted as plates. Florence Harrison stands at the head of her profession, and her brilliant work, rare imagination and deftness of touch are familiar to those who are interested in high art Juveniles. This is her first serious work, and it is to be remembered that she is a poetess of distinction, so that with her other accomplishments she has displayed in this impressive series of drawings the same insight and inspiration as the poems they illustrate. For, while her work is quite capable of defending itself against any charges of needless assimilation, there are certain predilections of technique and composition eloquent of the artist's sympathy with Dante Gabriele Rossetti, — the brother of Christina, — a sympathy which is especially evident in her transcription of the more introspective poems. This edition of Christina Rossetti's poems is bound to be much sought after by collectors. Three hundred and fifty pages, large 4to. Beautifully bound in various shades of linen cloth. Cover design by Miss Harrison in gold, gilt top. $6.00 net

Guinevere and Other Poems by Alfred, Lord Tennyson

Illustrated in color and line by Florence Harrison. 24 colored and 12 black-and-white illustrations, with decorative headings and tailpieces.

Large quarto, cloth gilt, gilt top. $4.50 net

The publishers have much pleasure in announcing a new color book by Miss Florence Harrison, whose brilliant work in her edition of Christina Rossetti's poems was the artistic triumph of last year. In this selection of Tennyson's poems Miss Florence Harrison affords further proof of her versatility; for, although she shows in her interpretation of Tennyson the same gift of imagination for which she was so justly commended in the edition of Christina Rossetti, she has in this new volume greater scope for her undoubted talent for color. A quiet, introspective note was struck in the Rossetti volume, but a fuller, richer, and more human treatment has been possible with this selection from the great Poet Laureate. That the artist has a fine sense of color, which withal is modulated and never allowed to become riotous, is manifest in each of the twenty-four colored plates of this remarkable edition.

Cordials and Liqueurs from Fruits, Flowers, Vegetables, etc.
Compiled by Helen S. Wright.

This work will, we are assured, appeal to many. In compact but attractive form it combines a list of valuable recipes, and a beautiful and artistic gift book. The compiler has been most thorough, introducing us to a wonderful variety of rare and treasured old formulas for the preparation of a great variety of home-made wines and liqueurs, over whose wealth of color and delicacy of flavor the eyes and palates of bygone generations of our country and gentlefolk delighted to linger. The volume is decorated by beautiful marginal drawings by A. J. Iorio.

Cloth, 12mo, gilt top. $1.50

N. B. These recipes are all of undoubted authenticity, having stood the test of long and wide use. The only modification, in any case, made at the present printing, being in the reducing of the quantities to suit the scope and limitations of modern housekeeping.

Living on a Little.

By Caroline French Benton, author of " A Little Cook Book," " Saturday Mornings."

A most valuable volume of practical hints to young people, enabling those beginning housekeeping on small means to so arrange their living expenses as to realize the best results and make both ends meet, even in these times of inordinately high prices. The author has contributed many effective articles on household economics and kindred subjects to Good Housekeeping and other magazines, and her suggestions are unquestionably most acceptable and useful. Like all of her Housekeeping Works, it is soundly and convincingly practical. A list of the subjects treated includes:

I. At the Very Beginning — Dividing the Income; II. Saving for Staples — The Kitchen — Buying — Linen; III. Arranging the Meals — Cooking — Dresses — The Table — The Dinner; IV. Soups and Meats; V. Vegetables, Salads, Desserts; VI. Breakfast, Luncheon, Supper — Odds and Ends; VII. The Emergency Closet — Winter Preserves — Cake; VIII. The Game of Menus; IX. Two Dinner Parties; X. Reducing Expenses; XI. Luncheons for a Little; XII. In the Country; XIII. Midsummer Housekeeping — The End of the Holiday. Cloth, 12mo. $1.25

Sunday Night Suppers.

By Christine Terhune Herrick, author of " Liberal Living on Narrow Means," " The Little Dinner," etc.

A valuable work on a fresh subject by a well-known writer of books on domestic science. The title explains its character and occasion. To quote from the author, " In most homes the Sunday night supper is an unsatisfactory compromise. The housekeeper, however successful in her method for other times, leaves this meal to Providence, with the usual result that awaits upon blind trust in Providence unbacked by human endeavor." That there are great possibilities in the Sunday night supper is shown most convincingly in this desirable work. A book all must have. Unique cover design, cloth, tall 12mo. $1.00

The commentary is most complete, and derived from the greatest Shakespearian authorities. It includes introductions, notes, and glossaries by Israel Gollancz, editor of the Temple Shakespeare, together with the complete notes and variorum readings of Alexander Dyce, a general introduction by William J. OF THE WRITINGS OF

Jane Austen

The writings of Jane Austen possess qualities that place them far above those of her contemporaries except Scott. She is one of the supreme literary artists of the world, for she made no compromises, and never wrote a line to please any one but herself. That is precisely why she pleases all readers' taste and intelligence. Lord Macaulay said of her works, "There are no compositions which approach nearer to perfection. . . . In the delineation of character she approaches nearest to Shakespeare." The Cabinet Edition comprises her works and letters and an introduction by Prof. William Lyon Phelps, Ph.D., Lampson Professor of English Literature in Yale University, together with an essay by Lord Bradbourne relative to the publication of her letters. The edition is illustrated by thirty full-page drawings in color by C. E. and H. M. Brock. The works in cloth binding, gilt tops, sold in sets or separately, as follows:

In the fairly compact compass of fifteen handsome cabinet size volumes are presented the complete authoritative text of the poetical works of the authors listed below. Valuable annotations, as well as biographical and other editorial matter from most expert sources, are included. The works are beautifully illustrated with etchings and photogravures, portraits and scenes from drawings or paintings of celebrated artists. Commentary matter includes appendix to Burns's poems and a memoir to the poet, to which is added Dr. Currie's description of Burns; a memoir to Hood and notes to his poems; a preface and notes to the works of Shelley by Mrs. Shelley, and a memoir by James Russell Lowell. In addition, the works of Keats are edited by W. T. Arnold. To the works of Gray are added a "Life by Rev. J. Mulford," with notes, etc. The "Songs of the Dramatists" is edited by Robert Bell, and contains a collection of songs from the English dramatists, beginning with the writer of the first regular comedy and ending with Sheridan. The want of such a collection has long been felt, and that it has never been supplied before, must occasion surprise to all readers who are acquainted with the riches of this branch of lyrical poetry.

OF THE COMPLETE WORKS OF

Honoré de Balzac

In 36 volumes

Balzac is universally conceded to be the greatest novelist of France if not of the world. In his "Comédie Humaine" he set out to portray contemporary French life of all classes and types, and in the accomplishment of this task was marvellously successful. His stories contain two thousand characters drawn with a realism and imaginative grasp unapproached by any other writer since Shakespeare. His analysis of motives and subtlety of insight are equalled only by the power and rush of his narrative, which has a dramatic intensity hard to match elsewhere in literature. Balzac is the master of many styles — the idyllic, impassioned, fanciful, and sententious, but he always enchains the attention and fascinates the mind. He was the amanuensis of society. Human nature seemed to put itself permanently on record through the medium of his pen. His astonishing fertility is the standing marvel of all literary workers who have come after him. Although he died as recently as 1850, he seems to be as assured a classic as Dante, Cervantes, and Goethe, — one of the eternal men. The popular demand for Balzac's works has had a tremendous impetus within a few years, and it is coming to be true that not to have read "Père Goriot," "Eugénie Grandet," and other of his masterpieces, is to write one's self down ignorant of the best in modern literature.

This edition of Balzac is a new translation into English, made with unusual charm of style and fidelity to the original. The introduction to each volume is contributed by George Saintsbury, M. A., Professor of English Literature in the University of Edinburgh, and one of the most eminent of living critics.

The publishers have confidence in announcing this edition as the most complete and the only authorized rendering of the Saintsbury Balzac. It contains four new volumes, never before included in any set of Balzac: "The Physiology of Marriage," "The Dramas" (in two volumes), and a "Repertory of the Comédie Humaine." The addition of this valuable material renders the edition without a rival.

The paper employed is a superior quality of laid, deckle edge, made especially for this edition, and the text is printed from new type with a clear open face. The title-pages are printed in two colors. The illustrations number about one hundred and fifty, and include a group of reproductions of etchings made by famous English and French artists for the first English edition, a collection of quaint old wood-cuts made by French artists during Balzac's lifetime, and giving authentic contemporary costumes, and a series of paintings and black and white sketches made expressly for this edition by some of the best American artists of to-day. The illustrations also include the best existing portrait of Balzac and the latest portrait of Professor Saintsbury.

Illustrated Cabinet Edition

OF THE WORKS OF

James Fenimore Cooper

James Fenimore Cooper may be properly called one of the great novelists. His stories are full of sustained interest and are possessed of a power which always fascinates, but his greatest strength lies in the description of scenes and narration of events.

In "Leather Stocking" Cooper added a character to the small gallery of the world's fictitious personages, — something no other American has ever done, except Mrs. Stowe; — and in Harvey Birch, the hero of "The Spy," Long Tom Coffin of "The Ariel," and Uncas and Chingachgook, the friends and supporters of the famous "Leather Stocking," he created characters of undying interest.

While Cooper was the author of many novels, he will probably be best remembered by the stories included in the two groups, the "Sea Tales" and the "Leather Stocking Tales." Of the "Sea Tales," it is said by an English critic, "The faculty with which the scenes of the waste of waters are depicted, and the living interest with which Cooper invests every part of a ship as if it were an individual being, can not be excelled and has never been equalled by any other author." It is in his "Leather Stocking Tales," however, that we find Cooper at his best. This was an altogether new field of fiction, and it was here that Cooper's unbounded imagination was given full play. Though for a time Cooper's Indians were held to be the creations of a romantic fancy, ethnologists now tell us they are far from overdrawn portraitures, and that many of the characteristics with which he invested them really belonged to these early inhabitants of our country.

In addition to the above, Cooper wrote much which dealt largely with the burning questions of the time. The three novels, "Satanstoe," "The Chainbearer," and "The Redskins," present Cooper's views concerning the anti-rent controversy which agitated seriously the State of New York, and particularly the regions of the upper Hudson, during the early '40's. "Homeward Bound" and "Home as Found" have for their main purpose the correction of certain American manners and methods. "The Monikins" also is one of the satires on certain American faults. "The Ways of the Hour" had for its special purpose the exposure of the defects of trial by jury.

This edition is without doubt one of the finest ever put on the market. It is beautifully printed on laid deckle-edge paper, handsomely and substantially bound, and is illustrated with nearly 100 full-page photogravure, etching, and steel-plate illustrations, among which are included the well-known Darley plates, and special illustrations by J. W. F. Kennedy.

Illustrated Cabinet Edition

WORKS OF

Charles Dickens

In 30 volumes

Uniform with our Illustrated Cabinet Editions of George Eliot, Victor Hugo, and W. M. Thackeray

Innumerable editions and bindings of Dickens's Works have from time to time appeared on the market, but it is a remarkable fact that none have yet appeared that in the judgment of competent critics are worthy of this great revolutionizer of English literature, or which possess the true artistic character in illustration and typography.

Confident in the belief that the times demand really fine work, the publishers have planned an edition which will from the outset create a new and widespread interest, not alone in the author's novels, but in the perfection of their presentation.

As much of Dickens's early success was due to the marvellous illustrations made by Cruikshank, Phiz, and others, which were submitted to and approved by Dickens before they were accepted (early impressions of which command enormous prices), it has been deemed of the first importance that these be used in preference to anything else. Many illustrations have since been made by talented artists, but the fact that they have never been accepted by the public as really illustrating Dickens is convincing proof that the original designs could not be improved upon. Early impressions have accordingly been obtained at great expense, and competent artists secured to reëtch them line for line. Some of the original volumes were illustrated by wood engravings, as "Barnaby Rudge," "Old Curiosity Shop," etc., and the publishers have been so fortunate as to obtain from the English publishers, Chapman & Hall, electrotypes from the original wood blocks, which have never been printed from. These, over three hundred in number, will be printed on metallic surface coated paper, and the patrons of this edition are thus guaranteed excellent impressions of the finest illustrations ever made for Dickens's works. Among the great artists whose work is included in these volumes are: CRUIKSHANK, SEYMOUR, H. K. BROWNE (Phiz), MARCUS STONE, CATTERMOLE, F. WALKER, DOYLE, LEECH, MACLISE, LANDSEER, BARNARD, AND DARLEY.

In many instances extra plates are given, which are contained in no other similar edition of the present day. By far the most attractive and most easily read Dickens ever made.

It is hard to imagine any way in which this edition could be improved. Small, handy volumes, uniform in size with the Eliot, Hugo, and Thackeray, printed by the University Press, from a type page that is simply perfection. English finish paper of the best quality, and bound in silk-ribbed cloth, gilt tops.

Celebrated Crimes.

By Alexandre Dumas. In three volumes, uniform with and forming a continuation for our Cabinet Dumas.

This series, unique even among the writings of this great author, constitutes a work of such rare and peculiar interest as to be deemed essential to any approved edition of his works. The translating and editing have been done with highest skill and judgment, and the result shows a work of unsurpassed merit, not only as literature, but also as history. M. Dumas, not only in these stories, but in those which he has derived from other sources, has been scrupulously accurate with regard to facts, having collated the authorities and given every incident according to the evidences obtained by his researches.

Only a faint idea of these remarkable volumes can be given. The romantic portions of the history of Europe, from Russia to Spain, from Turkey to Scotland, are given only as Dumas could write. The works describe the crimes and intrigues of the royal courts of Europe in the most remarkable manner. These great works are now offered for the first time in a handy volume, complete edition, at a price which places them within the reach of all.

The illustrations include nine full-page photogravures from original drawings by E. H. Garrett, as well as reproductions from famous paintings of historical characters, the secrets of whose lives are discovered in the pages of the work, and many plates.

The set contains the following:

WORKS OF

George Eliot

AND LIFE

Edited by J. W. CROSS

The works of George Eliot have within our own time become recognized as standard literature with which all intelligent persons are bound to become familiar. Their position in the literary world, if not, indeed, entirely unique, is certainly unexampled in the history of English-speaking peoples. The author has been aptly denominated "the intellectual daughter of Shakespeare," and several of her novels are ranked by many good judges of literature as worthy of a place beside the immortal work of Cervantes and other of the masterpieces of the world's fiction. No series of novels was ever written with a higher moral purpose or more conscientious literary effort. The publishers of the present edition enter with enthusiasm upon the production of what they believe to be the nearest approach to an appropriate mechanical and artistic reproduction of these incomparable works ever projected. This edition will be unique in point of illustration and manufacture.

Illustrated with 120 etchings and photo-etchings. In 24 volumes. 12mo. English silk-ribbed cloth, with ornamental cover stamped in gold.

Sold either in sets or separate works, at $1.50 per volume.

WORKS OF

Victor Hugo

In 24 volumes

Uniform in size and style with the Illustrated Cabinet Editions of George Eliot, W. M. Thackeray and Charles Dickens

Victor Hugo occupies not only an enviable place among the really great men of this century, but one that may be said to be entirely unique. His genius is brilliant and unquestioned, and his intellect bright, noble, and enlightened. He is at once novelist, poet, philosopher, artist, prophet, and moralist; a thinker of the highest rank, whose writings are growing in popularity, not only in his native country, France, but throughout the world; and at a time when the greatest works of many authors, who during his lifetime were considered his equals or superiors, are now unread ornaments on thousands of library shelves. The increasing demand for his works indicates most significantly the presence of certain qualities which commend them to the rising generation, and adapt them to the intellectual of all classes and all countries.

They appeal to the refinement of thought of the present age, and among them are found masterpieces of fiction and drama which will rank among the highest of all times and all countries. Among the novels, "Les Miserables" and "Notre Dame" are ranked as among the very greatest works of fiction ever produced in any age or country.

The illustrations will consist of etchings and photogravures by the most notable French artists, who have vied with one another to produce fitting designs to illustrate these masterpieces of modern literature. The photogravures have, in the main, been executed in Paris, by the celebrated firm of Goupil et Cie. There may be also especially mentioned etchings of many original compositions by the celebrated artist,

François Flameng, the exclusive right to which, with editions in this country, has been purchased by the publishers of this edition. In addition to these will be several portraits of the author. Among the famous artists and etchers whose work appears in this edition are Detaille, Leloir, Vibert, Perrault, Bonnat Merson, Lefevre, Frere, Hagborg, and others equally famous.

This is the only complete edition of Victor Hugo's Romances, and it contains also his celebrated Last Days of the Condemned, Things Seen, Poems, Dramas, etc.

Printed by the University Press, on the finest English-finish paper, from large, clear type, well leaded, and set in a small page. Bound in English silk-ribbed cloth, with a particularly unique and appropriate full gold back design, gilt tops, uncut edges.

The works will be sold separately as follows:

WORKS OF

Captain Marryat

Uniform in size and style with our Illustrated Cabinet Editions of John Ruskin and William H. Prescott

Captain Marryat, as a novelist and story-teller, possessed a lively imagination and a keen sense of humor, as well as sound literary talent, but he is dependent on none of these qualities for the lasting success and popularity of his works. He had, besides, the advantage which no other writer except Smollet had, of having passed his life among the events and scenes he used in his tales, and readers of Marryat do not have to content themselves with description at second hand. The sailor-author himself found in his own heroic career real events and incidents enough to fill his twenty odd volumes. That he has bestowed them on fictitious personages, instead of relating them as his own, does not detract from the vivid force and reality of his descriptions. This quality constituted the chief interest in his works, and has given them a prominent place among standard works of fiction.

The times he lived in and wrote of are of exceptional interest to the lover of sea tales. Ships and sailors battled for, and controlled the destinies of the world. The man-of-warsman was in the zenith of his glory. It is no wonder that Marryat, who wielded so ready a pen, and who passed his life among such stirring scenes of tempest and battle, should be the favorite author with lovers of the sea.

In announcing an authorized edition of Marryat's works, the publishers have availed themselves of exceptional facilities, and can promise all book lovers an extraordinarily fine work.

The set is complete in twenty-four tall 12mo volumes, which is bound in cloth, gilt tops. The text of the work is printed from new plates on Dickinson all rag deckle-edge laid paper. There are about 150 illustrations in photogravure from original drawings by F. W. Hayes, A. R. C. A., W. H. Overend, E. J. Wheeler, and Frederick Barnard, printed on Royal India etching paper. Valuable and interesting introductions to the different novels are contributed by W. L. Courtney, M. A., LL. D.

The set will be the best trade edition ever published in America. The works will be sold in sets or separately as follows:

Illustrated Cabinet Edition

OF WORKS ABOUT

Napoleon

The extraordinary revival of interest in the life and times of the great Napoleon has made it possible to issue in its present form, and in a uniform style, the three greatest works ever written on the subject, Hazlitt's Life, Bourrienne's Memoirs, and Madame Junot's Memoirs, which have been acknowledged by modern historians as being the most elaborate and impartial records of Napoleon's life ever published. It is not within the scope of any one historian to view the varied sides of this wonderful career and do the subject justice. It is for this reason that no one "Life" yet written contains the necessary data to properly judge the man.

There has been no question in the minds of the publishers as to the best works to be chosen, as the present selection remains in its entirety the most complete and reliable Life of Napoleon ever issued. The "Life" written by William Hazlitt was first published in 1830, and is a clear history of the period commencing with the causes which eventually resulted in the French Revolution and ending with the death of Napoleon at St. Helena. Hazlitt occupies a front rank among the great historians of the world.

For a number of years, commencing with his school-days, Bourrienne, the close friend of Napoleon, and later his private secretary, had an opportunity to watch the events which culminated in the greatest reign of modern times, and which permitted him to give to the world a work which would never have been written but for these favoring circumstances. He does not claim to have written a work which could properly be termed a "Life," but a recital of incidents which it is necessary to read in order to properly understand the causes and results which make this epoch of French history so fascinating. He deals almost exclusively with the Cabinet, and in his narrative the reader comes in personal contact with all the great statesmen of that period.

Madame Junot, Duchess d'Abrantes, occupied a position at court from the establishment of the Consulate to the completion of Napoleon's reign. Her acquaintance with him ripened into a warm friendship and admiration for his wonderful ability; and her cheerful, happy disposition made her a great favorite. Her opportunities for studying the social side of this period were many. Her husband was a favorite general of the Empire, and under such favorable auspices she could not be other than interesting. She has not attempted to deal with the political side of this career, but confines herself exclusively to her reminiscences of facts occurring at court.

The form selected will be a tall 12mo, with large, open-spaced type and ample margins. The illustrations — over eighty in number — will consist of proofs on Royal India etching paper of etchings and photogravures, made expressly for the work, and include a portrait of every marshal, general, and statesman who took a prominent part in Napoleon's reign. Many of the great battles will be represented, and are reproduced from originals which are owned by the French Government.

Particular attention will be paid to the portraits of Napoleon; and of these there will be a large number, showing him at various stages in his life; and in each instance they are made from the original painting or engraving.

The paper used will be a fine laid deckle-edge paper.

The work will be printed at the University Press, Cambridge, from new electrotype plates set from new type.

Illustrated Cabinet Edition

OF THE COMPLETE WORKS OF

Edgar Allan Poe

The works of Poe, both verse and prose, are increasingly in demand. This author has at last taken his rightful place as the greatest imaginative genius, with one possible exception, whom America has produced.

The Cabinet Edition contains all of Poe's immortal short stories, which some hold to be the greatest ever written, as well as his complete poetical works, criticisms, and general essays. It is prefaced by a sympathetic memoir from the pen of the late Richard Henry Stoddard, occupying over 220 pages, and embellished with facsimile autographs. It contains also brief appreciations by James Russell Lowell and Nathaniel Parker Willis, as well as a remarkable critical essay by Mr. Stoddard, entitled "The Genius of Poe." Of Poe's Tales Mr. Stoddard says: "There is nothing in English literature with which the stories of Poe can be compared, and nothing in American literature, except the stories of Hawthorne." The text is printed in large, clear type, with wide margins, on a handsome laid deckle-edge paper. The edition contains nearly 40 etchings and photogravures.

Illustrated Cabinet Edition

WORKS OF

John Ruskin

In 26 volumes

John Ruskin stands, without a peer, the most eloquent and original of all writers on nature, art, and architecture in the world.

As a writer of beautiful English, too, his "Sesame and Lilies," "Mornings in Florence," etc., have long been recognized as masterpieces.

His picturesque Saxon style, graphic, clear, and forcible, is justly considered one of the glories of modern English literature, and, as Charlotte Bronté says, "He writes like a consecrated priest of the abstract and ideal."

The "Spectator" says (Autumn, 1884): "No other critic ever occupied such a position. He is one of the best known and most appreciated figures in our generation. His older books are among the treasures of the bibliophile, his later works are purchased like scarce plates, his opinions are quoted like texts from a holy book."

Carlyle writes to Emerson, in the last letter he ever sent to him: "No other man in England that I meet has in him the divine rage against iniquity, falsity, and baseness that Ruskin has, and that every man ought to have."

No previous edition of Ruskin has fully met the requirements of exacting book lovers; the Illustrated Cabinet Edition, we believe, will.

Printed from beautiful, clear type, well spaced with indented side notes on deckle-edge, soft laid paper, equal to the finest hand-made as far as results in printing are concerned, and producing a volume light in weight.

The full-page illustrations number 288, and include all the colored plates, steel engravings, etchings, and process cuts, in all the original tints. In addition to the full-page illustrations are the cuts in the text — many hundreds of them altogether. A large proportion of these are from drawings by Mr. Ruskin, and are not only attractive in appearance, but are absolutely necessary for a proper interpretation of the text.

The volumes are bound with flat backs and uncut edges, gilt tops, in a handsome cloth, with an especially appropriate full gold back design. Size, a tall 12mo.

THE ROMANCES OF

Eugene Sue

Uniform in size and style with our Illustrated Cabinet Editions of John Ruskin and William H. Prescott

Although forty years have elapsed since the death of Eugene Sue, no fitting edition of this great author's works has ever been published; and yet he stands to-day the third member of the great triumvirate of French authors who not only did much for the literature of France, but did their share toward revolutionizing many old ideas. If choice of the three greatest French novels were made, the selection would undoubtedly consist of "Les Miserables," "The Three Musketeers," and The Mysteries of Paris, and hardly less great is The Wandering Jew.

This edition is printed on Dickinson's all rag deckle-edge laid paper, from a new set of plates set in a most artistic manner, and contains about 100 fine etchings by well-known French artists, printed on Royal India etching paper.

The volumes are bound with flat backs, gilt tops, and uncut edges, in cloth, with a handsome gold back stamp. Size, a tall 12mo.

The Romances of Eugene Sue consist of the following works:

Illustrated Cabinet Edition of

Scott's Poems

In 6 volumes.

Uniform with the Cabinet Edition of Scott's Waverley Novels, with introductions, glossaries, and notes for each volume by Andrew Lang, illustrated with more than thirty photogravures, besides numerous beautiful etchings by W. H. W. Bicknell. Six volumes, sold in complete sets or as separate works:

Vol. I. Lay of the Last Minstrel
Ballads
" II. Marmion
" III. Lady of the Lake
Miscellaneous
" IV. Rokeby
Vision of Don Roderick
" V. Lord of the Isles
Occasional Pieces
" VI. Bridal of Triermain
Minor Poems

This is the most sumptuous trade edition of Scott's Poems ever offered to the public, and the publishers anticipate for it a success commensurate with the large sale of the Cabinet Waverley. No library shelves are thoroughly furnished which lack the poems of the great Scotch Wizard, who first made his wide reputation, it will be remembered, by his verse rather than his prose. His "Lay of the Last Minstrel," "Marmion," and "The Lady of the Lake" have a rush and energy which recall the best passages of Homer, and many readers who do not care for poetry as such are devoted admirers of these great descriptive epics of the North. According to Lockhart "'The Lay' is generally considered as the most natural and original; 'Marmion' as the most powerful and splendid, and the 'Lady of the Lake' as the most interesting, romantic, picturesque and graceful of his great poems." The success of Scott's poems may be gathered from the single fact that twenty thousand copies of the "Lady of the Lake" were sold within a year after its publication. Scott was offered the position of Poet Laureate before he had published even one of his Waverley Novels. It will be seen, therefore, that the reader who owns only the prose romances can by no means lay claim to possessing the Works of Sir Walter Scott. The publishers are now able to offer the book buyer an opportunity of completing his set of Scott's collected works.

Illustrated Cabinet Edition

The Waverley Novels

By SIR WALTER SCOTT

With New Introductions, Notes, and Glossaries

By ANDREW LANG

An acquaintance with the Waverley Novels is a necessity to every intelligent reader, and no library should be without a set of these works. All other writers appreciate the rational and virtuous tendencies of Scott's works, and the historical knowledge which a careful reader gleans from them is of great value. A feature of these inimitable fictions is the delineation of national character with a fidelity the most exact, and the description of scenery with a picturesqueness almost unequalled.

The publishers of this edition propose to place before the American public these romances in a more appropriate form than they have ever been offered before in either Europe or America. The text will be reprinted from the author's favorite edition, and will contain all of his introductions and notes. To these will be added new introductions, notes, and glossaries by the world-renowned critic and author, Andrew Lang, who has had the coöperation of the Hon. Mrs. Maxwell Scott, of Abbotsford, the great-granddaughter of Sir Walter Scott, in preparing this edition, and who has had access to all of the manuscript and other material now at Abbotsford, so that new points of interest may consequently be expected in this edition.

This edition will also excel all previous editions in points of artistic merit. The illustrations will consist of two hundred and fifty etchings from original designs by some of the most distinguished artists in the world, printed on Japanese paper.

Among the artists and etchers whose work will appear in this edition may be mentioned the following:

Artists.

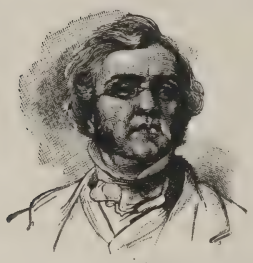
COMPLETE WORKS OF

William Makepeace Thackeray

In 20 volumes



Of the many editions hitherto published in Europe and America, it is believed that none are so well adapted to the requirements of those persons who really appreciate the masterpieces of these great novelists, and wish to preserve them in an elegant and convenient library form.

This edition of THACKERAY contains all of the novels and miscellanies contained in the best standard edition, issued in England with the author's approval.

A companion set to the Illustrated Cabinet Editions of George Eliot, Victor Hugo, and Charles Dickens, printed on the finest English-finish paper, from beautiful type, well spaced and set in a small page. Press-work by the University Press.

The volumes are a small 12mo, uniform in size with the Illustrated Cabinet Edition of Eliot, and bound with handsome full gold backs in English silk ribbed cloth, gilt tops.

One of the distinguishing features of this edition is a greater variety of illustrations than has ever appeared in any edition of THACKERAY'S WORKS, consisting of 210 woodcuts, mainly from the drawings of the author, which have become as thoroughly identified with his literary works as have the drawings of Cruikshank and Phiz with those of Dickens. These will be supplemented with reproductions of drawings by the celebrated English artists, Millais, Barnard, and Luke Fildes; and to these will be added two etched portraits, a series of original etchings, drawn and etched by Pailthorpe especially for the publishers of this edition, together with the famous etchings by George Cruikshank, six photo-etchings from the Character Sketches of Frederick Barnard, and many photogravures reproduced for this edition from photographs of real scenes referred to. Sold separately as follows:

Illustrated Cabinet Edition

OF THE WORKS OF

Count L. N. Tolstoy

Translated by Leo Wiener

We take pleasure in announcing a wholly new, complete, and authentic presentation of the works of Count Tolstoy, translated entirely afresh from the original Russian (uncensored) by Leo Wiener, professor of Slavic languages and literature at Harvard University. A famous critic has recently pronounced Tolstoy the foremost living writer of to-day, and very few would care to challenge this deliberate estimate. His works have a wider circulation than those of any living author, having been printed in more than seventy different languages and dialects. A special feature of value of this edition consists in it being the work of one single individual, a feature possessed by no other version; thus securing a uniform style and method of treatment. A final volume is added to the set, containing the life of Count Tolstoy, which has been as remarkable as his writings, and is the most trustworthy and brilliant biography of the great Russian novelist in print. Correct Russian spellings have been given to the proper names, with accents to obviate the difficulty of pronunciation to English readers. This edition will contain fully seventy full-page illustrations from very rare Russian books and manuscripts, or reproductions from the most celebrated paintings of famous Russian artists, among whom may be mentioned Vasili Vereschagin, L. O. Pasternak, I. E. Ryepin, and A. Kevshenko, together with the following European artists, Edouard Detaille, A. Desnoyers, Carl Buddeus, and others. Illustrated Cabinet Edition

OF THE WORKS OF

IN 12 VOLUMES.

Although the last century has been a grave of brilliant reputations, the fame of Tennyson is as secure as it was in 1842 or 1850. He belongs to the succession of the great English poets. In fact, after Chaucer, Shakespeare, Milton, and possibly Wordsworth, he stands in the opinion of not a few critics indisputably at their head. Every bookbuyer, even of the most limited means, has come to feel that it is a matter of imperative necessity to own a good set of Tennyson's Works. It is a gratification to the publishers that they can offer the finest edition of this great Victorian master which has ever been placed on the American market. This edition is edited and annotated by Prof. William J. Rolfe. It may be confidently pronounced the most beautiful edition of Tennyson's Poetical Works ever offered to the trade. It is issued in twelve volumes, with about five illustrations to each, including photogravures and etchings from paintings by Edward Lear, one of the poet's lifelong friends, and also from landscapes and figure paintings by Doré, Edwin A. Abbey, Frederick Dielman, and others. The text of the edition was collated and edited by Doctor Rolfe, with all of that scrupulous care which has made his name a synonym for accuracy, and the variorum readings and other critical memoranda are invaluable to the reader. In the prosecution of his work, the editor obtained the cordial approval and coöperation of Lord Tennyson and his family. This edition is in the most literal sense definitive. Sold only in sets, 12 volumes, cloth, 12mo, half calf or morocco.

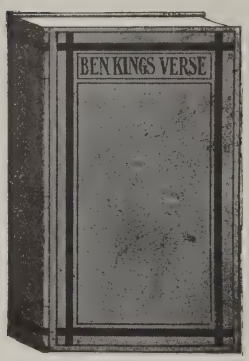
BEN KING'S VERSE

This book has had a larger sale than any book of humorous verse in recent years. Ben King's work is unique in American literature. His humor and pathos alike are different from that of any other author.



If I Should Die Tonight

If I should die tonight
And you should come to my cold corpse and say,
Weeping and heartsick o'er my lifeless clay—
If I should die tonight
And you should come in deepest grief and woe
And say, "Here's that ten dollars that I owe"—
I might arise in my large white cravat
And say, "What's that?"

If I should die tonight
And you should come to my cold corpse and kneel,
Clasping my bier to show the grief you feel—
I say, if I should die tonight
And you should come to me, and there and then
Just even hint 'bout payin' me that ten,
I might arise the while;
But I'd drop dead again.

Lovers of real poetry and of quaint, whimsical humor will treasure "Ben King's Verse" as a volume which can be read and re-read with pleasure, a companion for all moods and times.—The Journalist, New York.

"Ben King's Verse" possesses a humor and quaintness no other poet has approached.—San Francisco Examiner.

Finnigin to Flannigan

An' muddled up things t' th' divvle an' back

Afther th' wrick wuz all on agin;
That is, this Finnigin
Repoorted t' Flannigan.

Whin Finnigin furrst writ t' Flannigan,
He writed tin pa-ages, did Finnigin;
An' he towld just how th' wrick occurred—
Yis, minny a tajus, blundherin' wurrd
Did Finnigin write t' Flannigan
Afther th' cyars had gone on agin—
That's th' way Finnigin
Repoorted t' Flannigan.

Now Flannigan knowed more than Finnigin—
He'd more idjucation, had Flannigan.
An' ut wore 'm clane an' complately out
T' tell what Finnigin writ about
In 's writin' t' Musther Flannigan.
So he writed this back. "Musther Finnigin:
Don't do sich a sin agin;
Make 'em brief, Finnigin!"

Whin Finnigin got that frum Flannigan
He blushed rosy-rid, did Finnigin.
An' he said: "I'll gamble a whole month's pay
That ut'll be minny an' minny a day
Befure sup'rintindint—that's Flannigan—
Gits a whack at that very same sin agin.
Frum Finnigin to Flannigan
Repoorts won't be long agin."

Wan day on th' siction av Finnigin,
On th' road sup'rintinded be Flannigan,
A ra-ail give way on a bit av a currve
An' some cyars wint off as they made th' shwarrve.
"They's nobody hurrted," says Finnigin,
"But repoorts must be made t' Flannigan."
An' he winked at McGorrigan
As married a Finnigin.

He wuz shantyin' thin, wuz Finnigin,
As minny a railroader's been agin,
An' 'is shmoky ol' lamp wuz burrnin' bright
In Finnigin' shanty all that night—
Bilin' down 's repoort, wuz Finnigin.

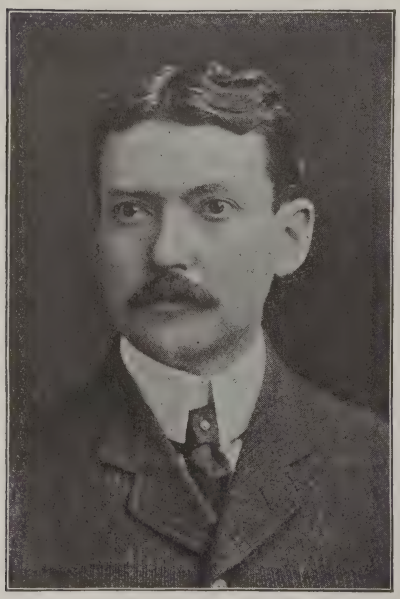
LOVE SONNETS OF AN OFFICE BOY



By
S. E. Kiser

With Twelve Pictures by John T. McCutcheon

Delightfully humorous verse written by the office boy concerning the stenographer. The book is considered a classic among books of original American humor.

This morning when that homely, long-legged clerk
  Come in he had a rose he got somewhere;
  He went and kind of leaned against her chair,
Instead of goin' on about his work,
And stood around and talked to her awhile,
  Because the boss was out—and both took care
  To watch the door; and when he left her there
He dropped the flower with a sickish smile.
I snuck it from the glass of water she Had stuck it in, and tore it up and put
  It on the floor and smashed it with my foot,
When neither him nor her was watchin' me—
  I'd like to rub the stem acrost his nose,
  And I wish they'd never be another rose.

Nervous States—Their Nature and Causes. By Paul Dubois, M.D. Authorized translation by E. G. Richards. 12mo, Cloth. Price, 75 cents net; postpaid, 80 cents.

Dr. Dubois points out in this new work that neurasthenia, contrary to general impressions, is not a new disease created entirely by the conditions of modern life. Most men and women are subject to various degrees of neurasthenia, due to the influence of fatigue by which are brought on psychic debilities, so that nature reacts and they become irritable or sad. The most healthy of men may become temporarily neurasthenic.

Beyond science, positive science, lies a borderland of facts and fancies, knocking as it were, to be admitted to the realm of the logical and the understood. Octavo, Cloth. 600 pp. Price, $3.00, net; postpaid, $3.17.

This volume has long been out of print, the publication of the present Edition having been delayed by the Author's desire to take full advantage of the demonstration of the Spirochæta pallida as the immediate cause of Syphilis, with the experimental work which has followed that discovery. He suggests that the spirochete is not to be regarded as representing the sum total of Syphilis, and that the complex group of symptoms which results from a spirillum invasium is often more importantly due to the patient's proclivities than to the parasite itself. Among other questions dealt with in the volume is the use of the salts of arsenic in the treatment of Syphilis.

Bertram, Rev. R. A.

A Homiletic Cyclopedia of Illustrations in Morals

It contains 5,000 useful illustrations and extracts relating to over a thousand religious and theological topics. The quotations are taken from the best authorities in the United States, England, and Continental Europe. The work also embraces the features of a homiletic commentary, throwing light on more than 4,000 texts of Scripture. Large 8vo, Cloth, 896 pp., $3.50; Sheep, $5.00.

The entire book is one extended index—each subject and all its heads and subdivisions are so arranged typographically that everything can be most readily found. In addition, there is a triple set of indexes, the first being an index of arrangements, with all the subdivisions. It serves as an exhaustive homiletical analysis of each topic. The second is the index of subjects, and the third is a textual index.

No book of illustrations for fulness, and, above all, suggestiveness, is worthy to be compared with this work.—Literary World, London.

I like Bertram's Homiletic Cyclopedia better than any collection of illustrations I have ever seen. Its analysis of subjects makes it much superior to a mere mass of quotations alphabetically arranged. It is not simply an orderly collection of beautiful stories, but a series of mosaics.—Josiah Strong, D.D.

To the average minister it will prove a library of valuable and suggestive sermonic material.—Arthur T. Pierson, D.D.

Nearest to our ideal of what such a cyclopedia ought to be.—The Congregationalist, Boston.

If one must read a book through, as usually he should before giving an opinion of its merits or defects, it will be some time before I can give you one about Bertram's Homiletic Cyclopedia. But if sipping at a spring may fairly test its waters, or if eating a bunch of grapes may leave a just impression of a fruit of a vine, I don't know why my scattered readings in this encyclopedia may not justify me in saying that it appears to me an immeasurably rich collection of instruction and suggestive thoughts collected from many writers, evangelical in tone, and sure to be helpful to the mind and heart of one using the volume.—R. S. Storrs, D.D.

Its ground plan is an alphabetical list of subjects, beginning with Adversity and ending with Worship. Each topic is divided sermon-wise into heads, and indeed is a sermon in itself. Under each of these illustrative quotations are given. Writers of every age and school have been laid under contribution.—The British Quarterly.

Its arrangement renders it a useful aid to all religious writers and preachers, and indeed to all religious readers also.—The London Times.

Any pastor who, by reading for fifteen minutes, could not find a sort of inspiration seizing him to go to work upon his sermon must be a man whom the Lord never made for a "preacher."—Bishop Coxe, D.D.

The ease with which any illustration is found is a commendable feature. . . . We are prepared from our examination to indorse the words of Spurgeon: "A very valuable compilation—a golden treasury—an important addition to a minister's library"—and to say that it is remarkably low at the price for which it is published.—The Christian Evangel, Chicago.

No one is likely to overestimate the influence of such a rich collection in a place where it is very difficult or even impossible to command the works of the best religious authors. For many it must necessarily serve as a library of reference and a cabinet of gems.—N. Y. Observer.

The editor of this volume has rendered good service to the cause of truth, and left the hard-worked minister without excuse for lack of familiarity with the Pentateuchal question. Little Talks to Little People

The various talks are arranged according to seasons of the year, one being provided for each Sunday. A special introduction has been prepared. This takes the form not so much of a serious setting forth of what Dr. Farrar has undertaken to do, as of a confidential little talk in simple language to young people. 12mo. $1.20, net; by mail, $1.30.

Ferguson, Charles

The Affirmative Intellect

A strong, new philosophy for the two classes of men who wage the real battles of the world—the men of the affirmative or creative intellect who are dominated by the ideal, and the men of the negative and passive intellect who are prostrated by an external law. The message in this book comes with ringing tone to both these classes. It is exhilarating and sympathetic to the one; it challenges and inspires the other. 12mo, Cloth, 204 pp. 90 cents.

The Religion of Democracy

The book propounds an eloquent gospel of optimism and of faith in the power of truth. It brings us face to face with the ideals toward which democracy has been groping through the ages. It makes plain the close relations in which the individual man is bound with the universal—the universal divine, the universal human, and the universal material. It is a plea for the appropriation and the use of the real in man and the real in nature for the accomplishment of man's high destiny. 12mo, Cloth, 175 pp. $1.00.

There is strength in this book—the strength of a crusader who strikes boldly and goes straight tothe point.—The Sun, Baltimore.

It is great in that it clearly belongs, as do few books in a century, to the prophetic literature of the world.—Rev. Philip Moxom, D.D.

Better Say

A book of helpful suggestions for the correct use of English words and phrases. Paper, 15 cents; Cloth, 25 cents.

Connectives of English Speech *

Giving the definitions with the correct usage of prepositions, conjunctions, relative pronouns and adverbs, so far as pertains to their office as connectives in the construction of English phrases and sentences. Special pains have been taken to indicate what prepositions should be used after those verbs with regard to which any question might arise. Decisions as to correct or incorrect use are sustained by numerous quotations. 12mo, Cloth. $1.50, net; by mail, $1.64.

I know of no place where there is to be found in one book, and for so light a price, any such amount of information about connectives at once correct and clearly stated. It is indispensable to teachers as well as to writers.—A. E. Winship, Editor Journal of Education, Boston, Mass.

It will be a very valuable volume for educators, for students in schools and colleges. . . . The work exhibits great research.—The Presbyterian, Philadelphia.

It is a very comprehensive guide for people who are inclined to confuse "which" with "that" and who become uncertain as to the "tos," "froms," "withs," and "buts" of formal discourse. The wide range of authorities given imparts to the volume an additional value as a book of quotations. The new publication will be found a useful shelf-mate to Mr. Fernald's "English Synonyms, Antonyms, and Prepositions," in which "just the right word" is indicated for each of more than 7,500 instances. —New York World.

English Synonyms, Antonyms, and Prepositions *

Over 7,000 classified and discriminated synonyms with nearly 4,000 antonyms. The correct use of prepositions is indicated by illustrative examples. Practical helps and hints on the correct and accurate use of words. 12mo, Cloth, 574 pp. $1.50, net; by mail, $1.63.

I do not hesitate to say that there is no book yet offered . . . which is its equal in imparting a mastery of words. . . . This book will do more to secure rhetorical perspicuity—propriety and precision of expression—than any other text-book of higher English yet produced.—President Cochran, of the Polytechnic Institute, Brooklyn.

Forbush, William Byron

Boys' Life of Christ, The

With the same vividness and movement that is found in the favorite juvenile biographies of popular heroes the author portrays the heroic Jesus. He is seen playing the games of boys; camping out with the fishermen; sailing the lake in the storm; braving the enmity of the Mighty; dying like a soldier for a holy cause. The book is dramatic; made of short sentences, crisp descriptions, plenty of dialog. It approaches the divine Jesus through human greatness. 12mo, Cloth, beautifully illustrated, ornamental Cover, 320 pp. $1.25.

Teachers' Edition. Specially prepared by the author to be used as a text-book containing, beside the text, questions and answers for class and home study. 12mo, Cloth, 320 pp. $1.25.

In the art of "writing down" to boys Dr. Forbush is a master. There is no sanctified Sunday-school book touch in the pages, no silly story-telling appealing to sentimentality, but a good, square, honest account of the life that was lived with such tremendous results for the good of the human race.—Newark Advertiser.

Abraham Lincoln, the Emancipator

Vol. V of "American Reformers" Series. This book deals with the man rather than with the statesman and the President, and seats us in cozy chat at the fireside, while the subject of its pages seems to tell his own story. 12mo, Cloth, 398 pp. $1.50.

This biography of Abraham Lincoln subordinates all environing conditions to their proper functions of presenting the personality of the subject in its true light, but also furnishes one of the most interesting ideals of the true American manhood.—The Southern Star, Atlanta.

Mr. French's enthusiasm is impressively genuine, his judgments of men and events notably wise and even-tempered. Nor is any fault to be found with him concerning matters of fact; and author and reader will do well to remember that plain truth about Abraham Lincoln has the charm of romance and almost the uplift of revelation.—Times, Boston.

The Next Step in Evolution

The Present Step—A Study. The Psychic Riddle

A record of psychic investigation since the publication of "The Widow's Mite and Other Psychic Phenomena," giving new typical cases of the several classes of phenomena. 12mo, Cloth, 243 pp., indexed. $1.00.

Without bias one way or the other, Dr. Funk neither condemns the spiritualistic explanation, nor accepts as conclusive the apparent evidence of a future life disclosed by his painstaking investigations. His point of view is that of an honest, intelligent reporter of things that he has seen and heard, or that have been fully substantiated, by testimony derived from unimpeachable sources. . . . The whole book is, in fact, a suggestive and highly important addition to the rapidly increasing number of treatises on this subject.—Boston Transcript.

The Widow's Mite

And Other Psychic Phenomena. This book brings psychic investigations and the best thought concerning them down to date. It presents hundreds of experiences along psychic lines, and reasons most carefully concerning them. It gives fairly all sides. The author says: "I say neither 'No' nor 'Yes' to telepathy, the subjective-mind theory, spiritualism, etc., for I don't know. I simply give the facts I and others have seen, and ask 'What is it?'" The answer of nearly forty of the world's best-known psychologists are here given with these marvelous experiences of a quarter of a century's careful investigations of psychic phenomena. Large 8vo, Cloth, 538 pages. $2.00.

This is a great book. . . . It makes men think.—Elbert Hubbard, Editor of The Philistine.

Grasset, Joseph, M.D. (Professor of Clinical Medicine, University of Montpelier, France)

Marvels Beyond Science (L'Occultisme Hier et Aujourd'hui)

Being a record of progress in the reduction of occult phenomena to a scientific basis. With a preface by Emile Faguet of the French Academy. Authorized English translation by René Jacques Tubeuf, Fellow of the University of Paris. Emile Faguet, of the French Academy, says of the present work, which deals with the success of scientific investigation in reducing occult phenomena to a scientific basis, that Dr. Grassett has succeeded thus far in his efforts to do what sailors do when they "calculate the reckoning of the ship." He has aimed scrupulously to mark the boundary between things already known and those which still remain beyond our understanding. Dr. Grasset has no prejudice. He seeks out causes in the known forces of life, and thus shows how remarkable is the progress that has been made in reducing these phenomena to science. He believes that such phenomena as are still regarded as occult will, in a comparatively short space of time, be included in the catalog of accepted scientific principles. Among these are mental suggestion, direct intercourse of thought, articles removed without touch, sight through opaque substances, telepathy, premonitions, materializations, etc. Beginning with the earliest manifestations of these phenomena in Europe, including Mesmer and Cagliostro, he brings within his survey the whole range of phenomena from that day down to our own, including Palladino. 8vo. $1.75, net; by mail, $1.90.

Being a Study of the Commission Plan as begun in Galveston, developed and extended in Des Moines, and already taken up by many other cities, East and West. 12mo, Cloth, 285 pp. $1.20.

It is a clear-cut, comprehensive exposition of the Des Moines or commission plan of government, not only carefully analyzed but written in excellent English. Certain chapters alone would give one the best conception he could possibly get of the Commission Plan of City Government—better, perhaps, than he could get elsewhere. . . . The author has been interested in municipal government for many years, including the adoption and initiation of the Commission Plan in Des Moines, and has been familiar with its workings ever since. The book should be in the hands of everyone; especially should it be distributed largely in those cities where the adoption of the commission plan of government is under consideration.—*Mayor James R. Hexaglot Bible, The Comprizing the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments in the original tongues. The work presents the Scriptures of the Old Testament in six languages, the Hebrew, Greek, Latin, English, German, and French, and the New Testament in Greek, Syriac, Latin, English, German, and French. The texts are conveniently arranged in six parallel columns, three columns on each of two opposite pages. Edited by the Rev. Edward Riches De Levante, M.A., Ph.D. Assisted by competent Biblical scholars. Six volumes, quarto, Cloth. $40.00.

The texts are those of the highest authorities. The Hebrew is that of Van der Hooght, carefully revised. The Greek in the Old Testament is Dr. Tischendorf's latest edition, with gaps supplied in brackets, from various sources, and in the New Testament, Dr. Tischendorf's eighth edition similarly supplemented. The Latin of the Old Testament is the Clementine edition of the Vulgate, and in the New Testament, Dr. Tischendorf's edition of the Codex Amiatinus, with gaps supplied in brackets, from the Clementine edition. The Syriac (in the New Testament only) is based on the noted "Biblia Sacra Polyglotta." The English is the Authorized Version; the German, Martin Luther's translation, and the French is the translation by David Martin with revisions.

It is not only a sumptuous book for a library, but is also a book of comparative versions which will be of incalculable convenience and value. . . . Each version has been committed to a scholar specially qualified for editing it, and the whole has been produced in a style of printing which places the work at the head of the Biblical texts of this country.—British Quarterly Review.

It seems to me to be a very valuable work, and is edited competently and correctly. The arrangement of the New Testament is excellent, and gives us every version of primary importance as well as the original Greek.—The Very Rev. the Dean of Canterbury.

I have satisfied myself that "The Hexaglot Bible" is useful to students.—His Grace the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury.

We have tested its accuracy in several passages, and certainly with gratification and success. It is clear that no pains and no expense have been spared on the production of this work, which does infinite credit to the enterprise and good taste of the publishers. It is a marvel of accurate and beautiful typography.—The Evening Standard.

Love and the Soul Hunters ‡

A novel which is considered to be one of the most successful literary achievements of this gifted author. The world in which it moves is the world of high aristocracy and high finance. Profit and Loss in Man **

The New Gospel of Patriotic, Economic, and Political Common Sense on the Temperance Question. The most up-to-date and powerful plea for Prohibition upon purely economic grounds that has been written in years. It is calm and dispassionate and discusses the problem from the cold matter-of-fact standard of dollars and cents. Contents:—I. The Cost of a Boy. II. Boy and Bar. III. Manhood and Gold. IV. Labor, Liquor, and Law. V. Christian Loyalty. VI. Barabbas. VII. Moral and Political Force. VIII. Moral Facts and Political Factors. IX. Dictionary Politics. X. A Curse, a Crime, and the Cure. XI. Publicans and Republicans. XII. Democrats and Drink. XIII. Methods of Settlements. 12mo, Cloth, 376 pp. $1.20, net; by mail, $1.32.

The unique idea of placing temperance on a commercial basis, of considering the difference between the actual cash value of a man who drinks and a man who abstains, is intensely interesting and profitable. Prof. Hopkins claims that each young man twenty-one years of age represents a cost to society of two thousand dollars ($2,000). Will he pay—will he "make good"—on the investment if he becomes a drinker? That's the question! In the United States are one and a half million of drunkards—a stupendous loss of an investment aggregating over five billions of dollars ($5,000,000,000).—Cumberland Presbyterian, Nashville, Tenn.

Will stir the heart of any pastor and awaken an earnest desire to meet more adequately the solemn claims of his office.—Zion's Herald, Boston.

A crisp, dainty story which rustles of feminine draperies so much that one can hardly believe a man wrote it. It fairly overflows with the schemes and pretty wiles by which a traveling American heiress woos and wins a German nobleman.—Minneapolis Times.

V. Esarhaddon, King of Assyria, and Other Stories ‡

Kleiser, Grenville

Great Speeches and How to Make Them **

Mr. Kleiser, in this work, aims to set forth, not only the sources of the power exercised by famous masters of oratory, but to point out methods by which young men may acquire and develop the art. His long experience as a teacher, and his own gifts as a speaker, not to mention his exhaustive studies of the lives and speeches of great authors, have fitted him for the preparation of a work that should make a strong appeal. The early part of the volume is occupied with matter of his own, dealing with what to say and how to say it; with the sources of power in speaking; the rhetoric of speaking; gestures and actions, and there is a chapter on types of orators and oratory. The reader is supplied with many specimen speeches which are recommended for study. First comes a group of after-dinner speeches, then others such as communicative, didactive, eulogistic, inaugural, political and miscellaneous speeches. 12mo, Cloth. $1.25, net; by mail, $1.40.

How to Argue and Win

The author gives different suggestions for training the mind to accuracy of thought and in the power of clear and effective statements. His method is thoroughly practical, being, in fact, the result of his experience in teaching men how to "think on their feet." He insists on clearness and conciseness in statements, skill in selection of words and an effective personality, tactful methods, and a long course of discipline in debate. 12mo, Cloth. $1.25, net; by mail, $1.40.

How to Develop Self-Confidence in Speech and Manner

By means of a prescribed plan the author believes students "may systematically develop a high type of manly self-confidence." He sets forth a series of suggestions for thirty-one days to be followed in the cultivation of qualities that make for power, these to be used systematically by the student in improving himself. 12mo, Cloth. $1.25, net; by mail, $1.40.

How to Read and Declaim **

Mr. Kleiser aims, in this work, to present a course of instruction in reading and declamation, with his prime object the cultivation of taste and refinement. He maintains that the foundation of all good speaking lies in naturalness and simplicity. Few technical terms are employed in Mr. Kleiser's teaching—the fewest possible. Instead of using an arbitrary system, he resorts to what may be called the suggestive method, believing that distinctly better results can be achieved. The book presents two courses of study—first, preparatory; second, advanced. In the first, emphasis is laid on naturalness of manner, combined with confidence, alertness and animation. In the second, he emphasizes the values of thought, and deals with divisions and directions of thought, following these with comments on such topics as power, climax, persuasion and character. Then are given selections for use in practise. These have been chosen from standard authors and comprize both poetry and prose. 12mo, Cloth. $1.25, net; by mail, $1.40.

Lodge, Henry Cabot, LL.D. (and others)

The Best of the World's Classics‡ (Restricted to Prose)

Henry Cabot Lodge, Editor-in-Chief; Francis W. Halsey, Associate Editor. As Senator Lodge sets forth in his Introduction, this work represents "an attempt to give, from all periods and languages of Western civilization, examples of what is best and most memorable in their prose literature." In this endeavor, personal preferences have been suppressed and general principles followed on broad and enduring lines. The term "classics" has been used, not in a narrow or technical sense, but rather in the sense of Thoreau, who defined them as "the noblest recorded thoughts of mankind." Examples, therefore, have been taken from great writings which have moved and influenced thought; from writers historically important, and from works representative of the various literatures of the world, including specimens from the masters of English prose. Senator Lodge's Introduction is an essay, notable in itself, comprizing, as it does, twenty-five pages of the work. 10 volumes, illustrated with frontispieces. The persons who hold to the cheerful doctrine that one's life is largely what she or he wants it to be, will gather fresh courage in reading this book. It is cheerful, hopeful reading intended largely for the serious-minded reader and others who desire to do right for right's sake and for the value of their influence in bringing comfort and happiness to the hysterical-minded persons, whose condition the author believes, is largely due to lack of spiritual development.—Rochester Democrat-Chronicle.

Modern Sermons by World Scholars

Ten volumes of over seventy sermons, each being given entire, and each being selected (oftentimes by the preacher himself) as most representative of the authors' style and force. The topics embraced are of timely interest and furnish excellent reading for the laymen, as well as for the clergyman. Oehler's "Theology of the Old Testament" has for a generation been considered as at the head of all treatises on the subject—a subject which just now has assumed unusual prominence, especially to those who are persuaded that the Old Testament and the New stand or fall together.—T. W. Chambers, D.D.

Oehler represents the best results of the study of "Progress of Doctrine in the Old Testament," and prepares the way for the construction of Biblical theology proper, in the unity of a system founded on theological principles, viz.: the relations of divine self-manifestations and communications, and operations throughout the period of the history of revelation to the ends of revelation.—*Joseph T. FEATURES OF THE WORK AND ARRANGEMENT OF THE VOLUMES.

In the ordinary sense of the term the "People's Bible" is not a Biblical Commentary. The scope is broader. It is a work not only for the minister and student, but for the people. It is not intended to take the place of verbal or critical commentaries. It is not a series of sermons. There are no sermons, as such, in the entire work. The volumes are arranged as follows : 1. Genesis; 2. Exodus 3. Leviticus–Numbers, xxv.; 4. Numbers, xxvi.–Deuteronomy; 5. Joshua–Judges, v.; 6. Judges, vi.–I Samuel, xvii.; 7. I. Samuel, xviii.–I. Kings, xiii.; 8. I. Kings, xv.–I. Chronicles, ix.; 9. I. Chronicles, x.–II. Chronicles, xx.; 10. II. Chronicles, xxi.–Esther; 11. Job; 12. The Psalms; 13. Proverbs; 14. Ecclesiastes–Isaiah, xxvi.; 15. Isaiah, xxvii.–Jeremiah, xix.; 16. Jeremiah, xx.–Daniel; 17. Hosea–Malachi; 18, 19, 20. Matthew; 21. Mark–Luke; 22. John; 23, 24, 25. The Acts; 26. Romans–Corinthians–Galatians; 27. Ephesians–Revelation; 28. Index Volume to the entire work.

The Pulpit Bible ‡

The entire text of the Bible is printed in large clear type with bright and suggestive illustrations in an ample margin opposite each significant verse. The author's notes alone run to over 750,000 words. The notes are all original and they indicate the special pulpit use of each verse (where available) in the Bible. Each note is thus a suggestion for a sermon. Where space has not permitted a sufficient treatment of any passage, a copious and most carefully detailed Index indicates in which of Dr. Parker's other books the particular interpretation is provided. Quarto, Full Morocco, 1,351 pp., one volume. $15.00.

A page of Parker is worth a whole volume of some sermons that we have seen in print, and the preacher who studies him and makes an honest adaptation of his pungent expositions can not fail to make himself a more interesting and profitable teacher of the Word.—The New York Observer.

Preacher's Complete Homiletic Commentary on the New Testament

Uniform size and style with the Homiletic Commentary on the Old Testament. Cloth, 10 vols. (and index volume), 6,000 pp., $30.00; per vol., $3.00.

FEATURES OF THE CONTENTS.

IT BRINGS TO THE PREACHER'S ATTENTION hundreds of texts heretofore almost wholly passed over by the pulpit. Spurgeon, in his Commenting and Commentaries, says: "We have next to nothing on Kings." In the Homiletic Commentary we have on Kings alone 743 treatments of texts. The same is true of other books, as Jeremiah. New expositions, critical notes, illustrations, etc., are poured in upon neglected texts, and additional light thrown upon old texts.

IT IS THE ONLY COMMENTARY that supplies a sermonic treatment of homiletic suggestion on every verse of both the Old and New Testaments that can be used to advantage as a sermon text.

IT CONCENTRATES THE LIGHT of all ages and of all countries on the text.

IT IS WHOLLY FREE FROM DENOMINATIONAL BIAS, being strictly evangelical.

IT SUGGESTS THOUSANDS OF THEMES AND ILLUSTRATIONS for sermons, also many hundreds of useful illustrations.

IT THROWS NEW LIGHT upon the present controversies over the Old Testament.

THE COMMENTARY IS WHOLLY IN ENGLISH, avoiding Hebrew and Greek, except here and there in the critical notes.

THE INDEXES are useful and practical.

Prescott, William Hickling, LL.D., The Works of ‡

Titles: Conquest of Mexico, two volumes; Conquest of Peru, two volumes; Philip the Second, three volumes; Ferdinand and Isabella, two volumes; Charles the Fifth, two volumes; Biographical and Critical, Miscellaneous, one volume. 8vo, 12 vols., Half Leather, full gilt cover design, tinted top, rough edges, illustrated with steel and photogravure portraits and maps. 6x9 inches. $3.00 per volume.

The "History of Ferdinand and Isabella" is a work that unites the fascination of romantic fiction with the grave interest of authentic events. —H. T. Tuckerman: Sketch of American Literature.

The genius of Mr. Prescott as a historian has never been exhibited to better advantage than in this very remarkable volume ("Philip the Second"), which is grounded on varied and ample authority. It marches like a cavalry squadron; it is swift, animated, glittering; it is radiant, pictorial, and flushed, as tho the writer were exulting in his amplitude of materials and perfect mastery of details.—Lord Macaulay.

So long as in ages far distant, and not only in countries now refined and polished, but in those not yet brought into the domain of civilization, the remarkable epoch which he has described shall attract the attention of men; so long as the consolidation of the Spanish monarchy, and the expulsion of the Moors, the mighty theme of the discovery of America, the sorrowful glories of Columbus, the mail-clad forms of Cortez and Pizarro and the other grim conquistadores, trampling new-found empires under the hoofs of their cavalry, shall be subjects of literary interest; so long as the blood shall curdle at the cruelties of Alva, and the fierce struggle of the Moslem in the East—so long will the writings of William H. Prescott be read.—Edward Everett.

Prevention of Disease, The ‡

It furnishes the latest and most conclusively demonstrated facts and expert opinions on the prevention of every form of human disease. Each of the separate organs, systems, and tissues of the body is systematically treated. Among the subjects are: The History of the Prevention of Disease; General Prophylaxis; Internal Diseases; Diseases of the Blood; Diseases of Metabolism; Infectious Diseases; Diseases of the Lungs; Diseases of the Heart; Diseases of the Digestive Organs; Surgery; Diseases of Women; Midwifery; Diseases of Children; Diseases of the Nervous System; Mental Diseases; Diseases of the Eye; Diseases of the Ear; Diseases of the Teeth and Mouth; Diseases of the Throat and Nose; Diseases of the Urinary Organs and of the Male Generative Organs, and Venereal Diseases and Diseases of the Skin. The work is a distinctly valuable one. Those consulting the different sections will seldom fail to discover matter of interest and practical utility.—British Medical Journal.

Rightly used, "The Pulpit Commentary" can not fail to be a rich resource for both intellectual and spiritual stimulation and culture to any student.—Prof. W. C. Wilkinson, D.D., University of Chicago.

The exposition is scholarly, without the slightest trace of pedantry, and is characterized not only by great historical knowledge, but by considerable freshness of treatment and spiritual insight.—The Literary World, London, Eng.

The volumes of this commentary complete an immense work; they are the ripe fruit of leading scholars and homilists. This commentary will be one of the greatest achievements of sanctified learning in the closing years of the nineteenth century. They admirably combine exegetical skill and homiletical application. One is filled with admiration at the wealth of sermonic material furnished in these remarkable volumes.—R. S. MacArthur, D.D., New York.

"The Pulpit Commentary" has the merit of giving, in advance of its homiletical suggestions, a thorough exegetical and expository treatment of the text, furnishing to the honest sermon-maker all the material for an independent outline, which he may afterward improve by comparison with the methods of other men as given in the homiletical section.—T. D. Witherspoon, D.D., Louisville Presbyterian Theol. Seminary.

Of all distinctly homiletical commentaries on the Holy Scriptures that I have examined, this is the most complete and thoroughly elaborated. —William F. Warren, D.D., President of the Boston University.

Exceedingly valuable helps to a clergyman.—James O. Murray, D.D., Dean of Princeton University.

I have no hesitancy in saying that the "Pulpit Commentary" is probably the best investment for the cost which ordinary clergymen can make in the line of commentaries.—G. Frederick Wright, D.D., LL.D., Professor, Oberlin, Ohio.

Among the multiplying exegetical and critical works having the same general character, this one has the specific merit and value of rendering assistance and fruitful suggestion to the preacher and teacher.—Bishop F. D. Huntington, of the Diocese of Central New York [Episcopal].

It is worthy of the largest circulation, and will do good wherever it is read. It is eminently fitted for the use of pastors of churches.—Howard Osgood, D.D., Rochester Theological Seminary.

It would not be easy to find within the same compass a discussion at once so full of knowledge and learning, so lucid and terse.—The Spectator, England.

The Psychology of Inspiration

An attempt to distinguish religious from scientific truth and to harmonize Christianity with modern thought. 12mo, Cloth, 340 pp. $1.40.

I find it (i. e., the psychological basis from which the main thought of the book is developed) "new and valuable."—Dr. J. Mark Baldwin, Professor of Psychology, Johns Hopkins University.

Studies in all fields of esthetics and literature have given him a special power to present a great many current religious questions in a way that will prove acceptable to serious-minded people who find themselves on the borderland between the Christian and the non-Christian fields of belief. I predict that it will interest many and prove helpful to them all.—Hon. William T. Harris, formerly U. S. Commissioner of Education, Washington, D. C.

A book that everybody should read . . . medicinal for profest Christians, and full of guidance and encouragement for those finding themselves somewhere between the desert and the town. The sane, fair, kindly attitude taken gives of itself a profitable lesson. The author proves conclusively that his mind—and if his, why not another?—can be at one and the same time sound, sanitary, scientific, and essentially religious.—The Examiner, Chicago.

"Professor Raymond is a clear thinker, an able writer, and an earnest Christian, and his book is calculated to be greatly helpful to those in particular who, brought up in the Christian faith, find it impossible longer to reconcile the teachings of the Church with the results of modern scientific thought."—Newark (N. J.) Evening News.

As the gain to the idea of the organic brotherhood of man will be proportionate to the widening of the horizon and the deepening of the sympathies of each individual traveler, so will the gain be to the idea of the organic Christian unity on each spiritual traveler voyaging across the sea of truth, in search of new aspects of it for himself. The object of Prof. Raymond's book is to encourage him to make the voyage.—Book-News Monthly, Philadelphia.

Few have succeeded in treating the subject as convincingly as Prof. Raymond.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

The author writes with logic and a 'sweet reasonableness' that will doubtless convince many halting minds. It is an inspiring book.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Atonia Gastrica *

Atonia gastrica, by which term is understood abdominal relaxation and ptosis of the viscera, is a subject of vast importance, as has been proved by the avalanche of literature it has caused during the last decade. The relation of some ailments to abdominal relaxation has only been recognized since the author's method of abdominal strapping has been adopted and extensively practised. This book gives in attractive form all we know in regard to the etiology of the subject; it describes and treats of the significance of the plaster strapping as the most rational therapeutic measure. The illustrations given with the description will prove of much practical value to those who wish to give the method a trial, but who have not had the opportunity to see the Rose belt applied. 12mo, Cloth. $1.00, net.

Carbonic Acid in Medicine *

This book to many readers will be a revelation. It sets forth facts about the healing qualities of carbonic acid gas, which were known centuries ago, and then strangely passed into disuse until they had became unjustly forgotten. 12mo, Cloth, 268 pp. $1.00, net; by mail, $1.08.

From this little volume the practitioner can derive much valuable information, while the physiologist will find a point of departure for new investigations.—The Post Graduate, New York.

An uncommonly interesting chapter of medical history is given in the volume entitled "Carbonic Acid in Medicine."—Daily Republican, Springfield, Mass.

Rosenbach, Prof. O., M.D.

Physician vs. Bacteriologist *

Rosenbach has published a large number of clinical, experimental, and critical papers on diagnostic, therapeutic, hygienic, and general pathological questions. One of his works, forming part of Nothnagel's great encyclopedia, has already appeared in English translation. Among the prominent men of the medical profession of to-day Rosenbach is certainly, more than any other, an original thinker, observer, and investigator, who makes no concessions to the extravagant fashions in medicine at the present time. His aim is to place medicine on a rational basis, whence bacteriological aberrations have been endeavoring to banish it. This book treats on morbid proliferation of specialism in medicine and a one-sided organotherapy; it opposes unjustified and unwarranted claims of the bacteriologist, aiming at tuberculin and the legion of serums. Translated from the German by Dr. Achilles Rose. 12mo, Cloth, 455 pp. $1.50, net; by mail, $1.66.

The thorough and comprehensive manner in which the author has examined and discussed the subject can not fail to be of very great interest, if not enlightenment, to the medical profession.—The Medical Summary, Philadelphia.

It is a book which furnishes much food for thought and should be read by every physician and surgeon.—St. Louis Medical and Surgical Reporter.

It is a rich storehouse for every physician and will give much food for thought.—The Post-Graduate, New York.

Every physician, and particularly every eclectic practitioner, should have a copy.—Eclectic Review, New York.

It is entertaining reading, and the author has the ability to make his reader think.—Medical World, Philadelphia.

Thoughts on the Relations of Employer and Workman

A lecture. 8vo, Paper, 16 pp. 10 cents; per hundred, $7.00.

Through this essay, which outlines the evolution of industry, he does not lose sight of his principles; namely, that labor and capital are but equivalents of each other; that the sum of the labor problem is the discovery of the just terms on which the exchange should be made; that the employer has failed to pay proper attention to the labor problem of to-day; that the workmen have studied the problem and have discovered means for the betterment of their own condition.—Current Literature, New York.

Nerves in Order ‡

Dr. Schofield's books are always welcomed by medical men and laymen. The Home Life in Order ‡

This book deals with subjects of pressing and every-day interest to us all. Dr. Schofield writes not alone of the household and its hygiene, but of the human body as to its organization, functions, and needs in the matter of care. The Force of Mind, or the Mental Factor in Medicine ‡

The action of the mind in the cause and cure of many disorders is considered from new and scientific standpoints in this work, with suggestions for the practical use of this knowledge by physicians and laymen. The author shows that the mental factor is the one out of many ever present in some form in all disease and how this information can be used by physicians and patients. The various systems of faith cures, quack medicines, and the like are considered, and a plea is entered for the physician to study men as men and master the combined intricacies of spirit, soul, and body. This volume is endorsed and used as a text-book by the founders and practitioners of the Emmanuel Movement. 12mo, Cloth, 347 pp. $2.00.

The work seeks to show that this mind is the seat of character and of conscience and spirit-life, and a most important factor in psychical and physical life. The subjects of habit, memory, muscular action, therapeutics, education, sensation, disease, character, sex, etc., are discussed in their relation to the unconscious mind. 8vo, Cloth, 451 pp. With diagrams. $2.00.

Schuyler, William

Sermon Bible, The ‡

A sermon library, containing 4,800 sermon outlines with more than 24,000 homiletical references and embracing the whole of the Sacred Scriptures. It gives the essence of the very best homiletic literature of the present generation, and it is a source of inexhaustible help to the preacher, student, or other Christian worker. In 12 volumes. 12mo, Cloth. $1.50 per volume ; $18.00 per set.

FEATURES OF THE CONTENTS.

The plan of the work, in general, gives under each text, each being in its consecutive order from Genesis to Revelation: (1) Outline of important sermons by eminent preachers which exist only in manuscript or periodicals, and are thus inaccessible; or, (2) less full outlines of sermons which have appeared in volumes that are not well known or easily obtained; or, (3) reference to or very brief outlines of sermons which appear in popular volumes such as are likely to be in a preacher's library; and (4) full references to theological treatises, commentaries, etc., where any help is given to the elucidation of the text. Thus the preacher, having chosen his text, has only to refer to the Sermon Bible to find some of the best outlines and suggestions on it and very helpful references to all the aids available. Blank pages are bound in the end of each volume for manuscript notes.

In spirit the reader can visit with a delightful comrade all the nooks of jollity known only to the initiated, and enjoy all the sparkle and glitter of that ever-moving panorama of gaiety. 135 illustrations, six in colors, 16 full-page half-tone inserts, 58 full-page text drawings, 55 half-page and smaller text drawings by the author and several French artists. 12mo, Cloth, ornamental cover, 334 pp. $1.50.

In London Town

This is the fourth book from the pen and brush of this talented author, the first three presenting vivid and highly entertaining prose and picture studies of life in Paris. In his new book he has changed his sphere of action and "In London Town" he will be found at his best. The hotels, the music halls and those who frequent them, the gay procession on the Strand, and in fact all the phases that go to make up every-day (and night) life in the great British maelstrom are flashed before the reader's eyes in a captivating fashion. Cloth, profusely illustrated with sketches and photos. $1.50.

It is brilliantly written. The glimpses of London are not at all like anything we are accustomed to in descriptions of London. Mr. Smith knows London well and has written a charming and graceful sketch of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Parisians Out of Doors

It is said of the French that they live out of doors, and Mr. Smith in this book gives a true picture of this real life of the Parisian. On the land and on the water, in the gardens, the parks, at the summer resorts in the mountains and at the seashore, the automobile trips, the reader mingles with the throng of pleasure-seekers, of dilettanti, of workers. 12mo, Cloth, water-color frontispiece by F. Hopkinson Smith, and numerous drawings and photographs by the author. $1.50.

It is a kaleidoscopic miscellany of anecdote, grave and gay; brief bits of biography and impressionistic portrayal of types, charming glimpses into Parisian life and character, and, above all, descriptions of the city's chief, and to outward view, sole occupation—the art of enjoying oneself. Tourists have learned that Mr. Smith is able to initiate them into many mysterious uncatalogued or only guardedly hinted at by more staidly respectable and professional guides.—The Globe, New York.

The Real Latin Quarter

Racy sketches of the life and characters of the famous Bohemia of Paris. So real are its descriptions that the reader feels that he has taken an actual trip through the Quarter, enjoyed the good cheer at Lavenue's, listened to the chansons at Marcel Legay's, looked down upon the giddy whirl of the Bal Bullier, peeped into studios, chatted with models, and seen every nook and corner of this celebrated community. With 100 drawings and camera snap shots by the author, two caricatures in color by the French caricaturist Sancha, and water-color frontispiece by F. Hopkinson Smith. 12mo, Cloth, 205 pp. $1.20.

It is like a trip to Paris.—Charles D. Gibson.
It is the real thing.—John W. Alexander.

This essay is worthy of a place in every American library.—Morning Star, Boston.

It presents him as he was, indomitable, persevering, careless of the opinion of others, believing in the one cause to which he was devoted, and fighting on in immovable self-confidence until the day of his triumph came, and slavery was abolished throughout the land.—The Presbyterian, Philadelphia.

"The Clew of the Maze" means, with Mr. Spurgeon, the interpretation which every believer in the Bible can find in its pages for the perplexities of life.—The Brooklyn Eagle.

The best single phrase we know of to express the character of the book is "uncommon common sense." It is not a work simply for scholars; it is for everybody, and most of all for those who have done the least reading of this sort.—Pittsburgh Telegraph.

The Greatest Fight in the World ‡

A brilliant conference address, combating the prevalent anti-Biblical spirit and illustrating with great power the inspiration of the Scriptures. From the text "Fight the Good Fight of Faith"—1 Tim. vi. 12. 12mo, Leatherette, 64 pp. 35 cents.

One of the most striking and telling utterances of England's greatest preacher. It is a powerful address, full of those striking Spurgeonisms which one never forgets.—Standard Union, Brooklyn, N. Y.

It is a discourse of remarkable power, and maintains the plenary inspiration of the Bible from beginning to end. It will serve as an admirable tonic to all ministers and Christians generally, and especially to any who have had their faith shaken by theories of modern critics.—Lutheran Observer, Philadelphia.

The Salt-Cellars ‡

A selected collection of the best proverbs and quaint sayings with homely notes thereon, collected for twenty years from ancient and modern literature and folk-lore. Chosen and preserved with a view to their usefulness to teachers and speakers in giving point and force to moral lessons. 8vo, Cloth, 733 pp. $2.25.

The Salt of Proverbs is of great service if discreetly used in sermons and addresses; and I have hoped that these "Salt-Cellars" of mine may be resorted to by teachers and speakers, and that they may find them helpful.—Spurgeon in his Preface.

The Spare Half Hour ‡ (see "The Clew of the Maze")

Containing among other papers the following: Honeywood Park; Voices from Pompeii; Christ's Hospital; Ghost Stories for Christmas; St. Brelade's Bay; Sundew—a Strange Plant. (For price, etc., see "The Clew of the Maze.")

"The Spare Half Hour" is a series of most engaging and instructive papers suggested by the author's travels on the continent.—Pittsburgh Telegraph.

I have used Mr. Spurgeon's "Treasury of David" for three years, and found it worthy of its name. Whoso goeth in there will find rich spoils.—Theodore L. Cuyler, D.D., Brooklyn.

To preachers the homiletical hints which abound on every page will afford a rich treasury indeed.—The New York Observer.

It contains more felicitous illustrations, more valuable sermonic hints, than can be found in all other works on the same book put together.—The Christian Herald, New York.

This work will prove a storehouse of perpetual spiritual suggestions to the thoughtful preacher.—Zion's Herald, Boston.

Bible Selections for Daily Devotion

Its aim has been to bring together such devotional passages as will form a volume that can be opened at any place with the assurance that any and every passage will be found suited in character and length for readings before the home circle and other general gatherings. The contents comprise about one-third of the contents of the entire Bible. Appropriate readings are afforded for marriages, deaths, Christmas, Easter, Thanksgiving, etc. 12mo, Cloth, 686 pp. $1.00. Presentation Edition, bound in full Flexible Morocco, divinity circuit, gold on red edges. $2.50.

Any one who has felt the need of a volume that can be opened at any point with the assurance of finding a well-selected passage of Scripture suited in length and character for devotional reading will greatly appreciate this valuable and helpful book.—Christian Leader, Cincinnati.

The only book of its kind published, and of great value.—Herald and Presbyter, Cincinnati.

This volume meets a felt want among good people generally, who look with great apprehension upon the apparent decay of daily family worship.—The Lutheran Observer.

The work has been done with care, and will commend itself to those who think that such compilations are superior to the Bible itself.—The Congregationalist, Boston.

Methods of Church Work

Suggestions for the successful management of the church—religious, financial, social—for preachers of all denominations. The contents include practical helps for organization, saving the young, religious meetings, revivals, social meetings, pastors' aids, financial questions, benevolent work, etc., etc. 8vo, Cloth, 304 pp. $1.50.

It is stimulating, helpful, and worth its weight in gold to any minister who wishes to accomplish anything for the kingdom of Christ.—New York Christian Intelligencer.

There is hardly a phase of Christian labor within the limits of church development which does not find adequate and intelligent treatment.—The Outlook, New York.

It wastes no space in discussing the need of work in the perfecting of the Christian character; that it takes for granted. After spending but a few pages in enforcing the need of some real method in arrangement of church work, and in a second chapter discussing the value of the pulpit, pastoral work, praying bands, cards, etc., etc., in stirring a church into activity, our author plunges boldly into the practical work. . . . We heartily commend this book. It is clearly written. It is practical. It is rich in answers to questions occurring to every active pastor, as well as to every one interested in the active work and prosperity of God's cause.—Church Press, New York.

DISTINGUISHING FEATURES.

COMMON MEANINGS GIVEN FIRST.—The common meaning of the word is given first, the rarer meanings and etymology afterward. This makes the Standard Dictionary easier to consult and more useful for practical purposes than any other dictionary.

DISPUTED SPELLINGS AND PRONUNCIATIONS have been dealt with more thoroughly than ever before. Not only were they referred to a committee of fifty-seven of the most eminent philologists in English, American, Canadian, Australian, and East-Indian universities for consideration, but the preferences of each member of the committee, and also of all other dictionaries, are given in a special appendix. This is an exclusive feature of the Standard Dictionary.

THE PROPER USE OF PREPOSITIONS has been explained with many illustrations throughout the Standard. This helpful feature is not equaled in other dictionaries.

A VALUABLE SYSTEM OF GROUP INDEXES is provided exclusively in the Standard Dictionary. By this system all the facts concerning important classes of words—such as coins, fruits, flowers, measures, weights, carpentry, printing, astronomy, colors, etc.—are easily ascertained.

COMPOUNDING AND SYLLABICATION OF WORDS have been, for the first time in dictionary-making, reduced to a scientific system in the Standard Dictionary.

THE PROPER USE OF CAPITAL INITIAL LETTERS is indicated throughout the vocabulary, only such words as should be written with a capital being so printed. No other dictionary is a guide in this matter.

THE SOURCES OF QUOTATIONS used to verify or illustrate the meanings of words have been fully indicated, so that any quotation can be easily found in the book or periodical from which it was taken.

THE MANY COLORED PLATES in the Standard are marvels of exquisite art work and definitive value, and far excel in number and beauty anything of the kind in other dictionaries.

THE APPENDIX, containing over 47,000 additional entries, brings together in one alphabetical order the important proper names that are pronounced and explained.

A VALUABLE DEPARTMENT OF "FAULTY DICTION" gives many examples of the wrong use of words, and corrects many common errors.

THE ATLAS OF THE WORLD, with 96 pages of the latest and best colored maps, is an extremely valuable feature of the Standard Dictionary. (In Subscription Edition Only.)

THE NEWEST WORDS INCLUDED.—Many thousands of important new words, brought into use by the various sciences, trades, etc., are exclusively recorded and defined in the Standard.

FULL LISTS OF SYNONYMS AND ANTONYMS.—To the important department of synonyms and antonyms the Standard Dictionary devotes more space than any other dictionary. The Standard is the only dictionary that gives antonyms.

PERMANENT CALENDAR; PORTRAITS OF EDITORS.—A perfect calendar for every year in the Christian era and the portraits of the staff of editors and specialists engaged in preparing the Standard Dictionary are provided. (In Subscription Edition Only.)

It passes the wit of man to suggest anything which ought to have been done that has not been done to make it a success.—Sir J. Norman Lockyer.

I regard it as a monumental work—a work perfect of its kind.—Hon. Justin McCarthy, M.P., famous Irish Historian.

It is a triumph in the art of publication. It is the most satisfactory and most complete dictionary yet published.—The New York Herald.

It is wonderfully comprehensive; it is superb.—Hon. Elmer Ellsworth Brown, U. S. Commissioner of Education, Washington, D. C.

It is the most perfect dictionary ever made in any language, and I have them and consult them in six different languages almost daily.—A. G. Wilkinson, Ph.D., Principal Examiner in the U. S. Patent Office.

Clear, concise, accurate, comprehensive; at once scholarly and popular; admirably arranged, easy to consult; a delight to the eye and to the mind.—Prof. A. M. Wheeler, Yale University.

It is a noble example in which the modern tendency to popularize knowledge has risen to the highest level yet reached.—The Independent, New York.

Standard Family Physician, The **

This work is a translation and American edition of Reissig's "Das Aerztliche Hausbuch," a work by thirty or forty leading German medical specialists. It has been edited and Americanized by equally eminent authorities in this country, including Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe (Nervous Diseases, Professor of Pharmacognosy and Instructor in Materia Medica and Therapeutics Columbia University, Attending Neurologist City Hospital, Managing Editor Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease); Dr. Frank E. Miller (Nose and Throat, Consulting Laryngologist St. Joseph's Hospital, Consulting Laryngologist Metropolitan College of Music, Member of American Laryngological and Rhinological Association); Dr. Geo. R. Fowler (General Surgery, Consulting Surgeon St. Mary's Hospital, Surgeon Methodist Episcopal Hospital, Surgeon-in-Chief Brooklyn Hospital, Senior Surgeon German Hospital, Member American Surgical Association); Dr. Isadore Dyer (Genito-Urinary Diseases, Lecturer and Clinical Instructor in Dermatology Medical Department of Tulane University, Dermatologist to the Charity Hospital, Consulting Dermatologist Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital, Professor of Diseases of the Skin, New Orleans Polyclinic, Member of American Dermatological Association); Dr. G. R. Butler (Heart and Lungs, Attending Physician Methodist Episcopal Hospital, Author of "Diagnostics of Internal Medicine"); Dr. H. V. Wurdemann (Eye and Ear, Professor of Ophthalmology and Otology Milwaukee Medical College and Chief of Eye Clinic; Ophthalmic and Aural Surgeon Trinity Hospital, Milwaukee County Hospital, Children's Hospital, Milwaukee County Hospital for the Insane); Dr. Arthur R. Elliott (Internal Medicine); Dr. William A. White (Mental Diseases, Superintendent Government Hospital for the Insane, Washington, D. C., Professor of Nervous and Mental Diseases, Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., Professor and Clinical Professor of Mental Diseases, George Washington University, Washington, D. C.); Dr. Douglas W. Montgomery (Skin Diseases). While the text of the work is couched in clear, plain language, making it easily understood by the layman, the work is absolutely authoritative and is officially indorsed by the Congress of Physicians which recently convened at Rostock. It is the first medical book that has been compiled in a popular manner by recognized professors and physicians. It treats of the construction of the body; the origin, the diagnosis, and treatment of diseases; the relation of physician and patient. In the second part it gives in about one thousand pages alphabetically arranged all that is worth knowing about the origin, the course, treatment, and prevention of diseases; about nursing, nutrition; the several kinds of treatment (water, light, air, massage); first help in case of accident; the relation between vocation of the patient and the disease, and many other things. Nearly 500 illustrations, including 24 colored plates scientifically executed. Two volumes, Buckram. $15.00 per set, net. Three-quarter Morocco, $20.00, net. Carriage extra.

I have examined with care the Standard Family Physician, and I am glad to recognize in it a work which the medical profession can safely endorse. I hope it will meet with a large sale, and thus help to dissipate the deplorable ignorance of the masses regarding hygiene and health which is daily brought to the attention of this department. No home should be considered complete without it.—Thomas Darlington, M.D., Pres. Board of Health, New York City.

Standard First Reader, The (see also under "Teachers' Manual")

This is the first book of the Funk & Wagnalls Standard Reader Series, and is the result of many years of careful labor and of consultation with prominent educators both in America and in England. Throughout the making of this Reader the editors have kept constantly in mind the fact that a child learns words by trying to understand or by trying to tell some thought, and that he will learn these words as readily if the thought is something worth while as if it is trivial. Of the various instructive thoughts preference is given in this Reader to those that give in-form-ation, that build character. Edited by Isaac K. Funk, LL.D. (Editor-in-Chief of the Standard Dictionary), and Montrose J. Moses, B.S. With illustrations by Charles M. Relyea, Louise L. Heustis, Harrie A. Stoner, Oliver J. Nugent, and music by Harriet Ware and Harvey Worthington Loomis. Square 12mo, Cloth, 112 pp. 35 cents.

DISTINGUISHING FEATURES.

I. WORDS ARE TAUGHT IN CONNECTION WITH THOUGHT.

In teaching words to a child the words should not be separated from the thought, and the child should be kept as free as possible from self-consciousness.

II. PUPILS ARE LED TO THINK THOUGHTS THAT ARE WORTH KNOWING AND THAT BUILD CHARACTER.

It is the aim in this series of Readers to make each lesson instructive and character-building.

III. CAREFUL PROVISIONS ARE MADE FOR DRILLS IN THE VOWEL AND CONSONANT SOUNDS.

The object is to have the children, by the time they have finished the book, familiar with the sounds that make up the language.

IV. THE SCIENTIFIC ALPHABET, INVENTED AND RECOMMENDED BY THE LEADING PHILOLOGISTS OF AMERICA AND ENGLAND, IS USED FOR PRONUNCIATION PURPOSES; ONE SOUND FOR EACH SYMBOL, ONE SYMBOL FOR EACH SOUND.

This system of diacritics is superior to all other systems in simplicity, exactness, and thoroughness for training the pupils to pronounce the sounds of the language.

V. THE PUPIL IS TAUGHT TO DETECT AND PRODUCE THE SOUNDS THAT MAKE THE LANGUAGE.

Experiments made by the United States Commissioner of Education, W. T. Harris, show that reading based upon a phonetic system is more readily learned than reading taught without any phonetic system.

VI. THE AIM IS TO GET RID OF EVERYTHING THAT HINDERS CLEAR ENUNCIATION.

Effort should be made to detect and overcome every defect in the action of the organs of speech, such as drawling, stammering, and weakness of voice.

VII. THE ILLUSTRATIONS ARE BY THE VERY BEST ARTISTS, AND HELP TO EXPLAIN THE TEXT.

The aim has been to help fasten thought, not simply to make a picture.

VIII. EVERY EFFORT HAS BEEN MADE TO BRING THE CHILD IN CLOSE SYMPATHY WITH NATURE THROUGH NATURE LESSONS.

A First Reader, especially, is fatally faulty that does not smell of the earth, of the woods, of the new-mown hay, of flowers.

IX. SIX SONGS, SPECIALLY COMPOSED BY MUSICAL EXPERTS, ARE USED IN CONJUNCTION WITH THE PHONETIC DRILLS.

A staff of music is given with each lesson, and all the staves under one group of sounds make a complete song.

X. THE SCRIPT LETTERS USED ARE SO SIMILAR TO PRINT AS TO MAKE THE LEARNING OF SCRIPT INCIDENTAL; THIS LEADS TO NO CONFUSION.

XI. EFFORTS ARE MADE TO INSPIRE PATRIOTISM, HONESTY, COURAGE, CONSCIENCE, INDUSTRY, LOVE FOR FELLOWS, THE BEGINNINGS OF PUBLIC SPIRIT; TO MAKE THE PUPILS SELF-DEPENDENT AND RESOURCEFUL.

No better service can be rendered a child than to give him noble thoughts of his being and of his destiny.

XII. THE TEACHERS' MANUAL, WHICH ACCOMPANIES THE FIRST READER, PRESENTS SUGGESTIVE MATERIAL FOR ALL LESSONS.

A marvel of attractiveness and good sense. Founded upon best methods of the new education and in accord with advanced psychological theories.—The Bulletin, Norwich, Conn.

No other word than "charming" will apply to the appearance of this text-book. No other word than "admirable" will describe its methods. It should be in every school.—The Courier-Journal, Louisville, Ky.

It is the most ambitious attempt in the direction thus far noted. Every aid that it is possible to arrange and that will assist the child has been brought out, and all in a scientific manner. It is the greatest First Reader ever published, and ought to be used in the Cleveland schools.—The Daily World, Cleveland, O.

A book that ought to inspire any teacher.—The Boston Times, Boston, Mass.

At last we have the scientific, practical, pedagogical primer. . . . The book makes a distinct and new epoch in the production of primary readers.—Education, Boston, Mass.

Represents a new idea in education.—The Spy, Worcester, Mass.

If a teacher using your book and following your Manual does not accomplish as much in one year as is usually done in three, something is radically wrong with the teacher and not with the book.—Leo Elskamp, Principal, McKinley, Minn.

Standard First Reader, The

Phonetic Edition

On account of a demand for a First Reader entirely in phonetics, the Funk & Wagnalls Standard First Reader has been issued in a new form for the advocates of a phonetic system. This new edition contains all the features to be found in the common edition of the Standard First Reader with but a few changes where absolutely necessary. Adhering entirely to the phonetic idea, this edition of the Standard First Reader contains only those spellings that are in phonetic forms; but it is so arranged that the Teachers' Manual, published with the common edition of the Reader, may be used to advantage with the Phonetic Reader. 12mo, Cloth, 112 pp. 35 cents.

Standard Second Reader, The

The second book of the Funk & Wagnalls Standard Reader Series contains many distinguishing features of great practical value. It adheres to the idea that only those thoughts are worth remembering that give in-form-ation, that build character, and the editors have aimed to give unity to the entire text of the book by preparing lessons along definite lines. Edited by Isaac K. Funk, LL.D. (Editor-in-Chief of the Standard Dictionary), and Montrose J. Moses, B.S. With illustrations by Reginald B. Birch, Dan Beard, Carter Beard, Oliver J. Nugent, Charles M. Relyea, etc. 12mo, Cloth, 208 pp. 50 cents.

DISTINGUISHING FEATURES.

I. The Second Reader aims to be a literary reader without confining itself entirely to literary subjects.

II. Six systematic lessons on simple subjects in science, easily demonstrated by actual experiments in the classroom, are introduced.

III. Six lessons on flowers, with full-page colored illustrations, make the pupil familiar with some of the common flowers of field and home.

IV. Six lessons dealing with trees tell in story-form and in description much about some of the most familiar trees. These lessons are accompanied by accurate pictures.

V. Six lessons introduce some of the most common animals in such a way as to give the pupil a clear idea of the difference between domestic and wild animals.

VI. In this practical age it is well for children to become familiar with some of the crafts that have entered into and furthered the progress of the nation. Six lessons dealing with crafts have been written with this idea in mind.

VII. The child of seven or eight begins to take interest in the past. Six lessons dealing with events in American history have been carefully graded.

VIII. In literature, lessons have been based upon Washington Irving and his "Knickerbocker History of New York"; Tennyson and his "Idylls of the King"; Longfellow and his stories of "Hiawatha"; Shakespeare and the story of "As You Like It" told from the nature standpoint.

IX. In the belief that where it is possible, subjects taken from literature should be told by the literary men themselves, many quotations showing the simplicity of great literary style have been taken directly from the masters; hence, quotations from Benjamin Franklin, John Ruskin, John Burroughs, and from the poets will be found throughout the book.

X. With the idea that the imagination of a child is dependent largely upon fables, many of the lessons deal with some of the most familiar legends in literature. The story of Lohengrin is told in simple language; many of Æsop's fables have been given in full, all illustrated with pictures that lend themselves readily to special talks by the teacher.

XI. Believing likewise that children enjoy reading for the mere fun of reaching quaint ideas many poems and jingles, to be read and to be memorized, are introduced throughout the book.

XII. Believing also that hands at times should be as busy as brains, a graded series of drawing lessons have been introduced dealing with the simple elements of drawing.

XIII. Each lesson has had a special illustration made for it. Carter Beard, Dan Beard, and Oliver J. Nugent have done some of the nature-drawings; Edwin Willard Deming, the famous Indian artist, has been employed for the lessons on Indian life; Reginald Birch of "Lord Fauntleroy" fame has done some of his best work for the "King Arthur" and "As You Like It" lessons. These are but a few instances to show the care with which the book, from an artistic standpoint, has been prepared.

XIV. The strong educational features so marked in the Funk & Wagnalls First Reader have been further advanced along the same lines in the second book. The Scientific Alphabet is used to a limited degree for pronunciation purposes only, and pronunciation drills and phonetic drills have been carefully mapped out.

XV. All of the lessons have been specially prepared with the idea that they are to appeal to children of a certain age. The editors believe that children will learn only so far as they become interested in a subject. They believe that a simple vocabulary should be aimed at, but that simplicity should not sink into a simpleness that makes the text stiff and artificial. Children are very susceptible to style, without knowing definitely what is meant by the word.

XVI. A Teachers' Manual has been specially prepared to go with this Reader. In it are to be found valuable suggestions regarding the manner of treatment in each lesson, with references to classroom literature, outlines of stories, outlines for lessons apart from those given in the Reader, bibliographies of nature-books, song-books, fables, etc.

His new work, dealing with "Life, Death and Immortality," will be received as another notable contribution to the study of man's destiny. He approaches his subject from a scientific basis and much attention will be attracted to the fact that his conclusions point distinctly to immortality. Dr. Thomson, it may be added, is the son of William M. Thomson, who was widely known for two generations, and who is still not forgotten as the author of "The Land and the Book." 12mo, Cloth. $1.20, net; by mail, $1.30.

Tolstoy, Count Leo (see also under Crosby, Hawthorne, and Maude)

Esarhaddon, King of Assyria, and Other Stories (see "Hour-Glass Stories")

Plays: Also Annotated List of Works ‡

This volume, a new translation by Louise and Aylmer Maude, contains Tolstoy's three great plays, together with the Russian folk-tale, of which one of them is the dramatized version. It also includes a complete annotated and chronological list of Tolstoy's works of special helpfulness to all readers and students of the great Russian writer. List of the plays: The Power of Darkness, or if a Claw is Caught the Bird is Lost.—A drama in five acts. The First Distiller.—A comedy in six acts. Fruits of Culture.—A comedy in four acts. Including also, The Imp and the Crust.—This is a Russian folk-tale, of which "The First Distiller" is the dramatized version. 8vo, photogravure frontispiece, ornamental cover, deckle-edged, gilt top, ribbed olive Cloth. $1.50.

To their literary merit Tolstoy's plays add the quality of being excellent acting dramas, as their success both in Russia and elsewhere has abundantly shown. Mr. Laurence Irving lately wrote: "I suppose England is the only country in Europe where 'The Power of Darkness' has not been acted. It ought to be done. It is a stupendous tragedy; the effect on the stage is unparalleled."

"Between Tolstoy's two great plays," says the translator, "'The Power of Darkness' and 'The Fruits of Culture,' the contrast is very striking. The first is intensely moral, terrible in its earnestness and force. . . . Very different is 'Fruits of Culture': a play brimful of laughter and merriment."

Sevastopol and Other Military Tales ‡

A new translation by Louise and Aylmer Maude, specially approved by the author. This book relates the author's own experiences, sensations, and reflections during the most noted siege of modern history The translation has been authorized by Count Tolstoy, who has specially commended it for its accuracy, simplicity, and directness. Cloth. $1.50.

No other modern book approaches 'Sevastopol' in the completeness and directness with which it unveils the realities of war. There are picturesque glimpses in Mr. Kipling's vulgar stories of fighting. But the strongest meat Mr. Kipling can provide is milk for babes beside Count Tolstoy's seemingly casual sketches, which yet comprehend with merciless amplitude the whole atmosphere of war.—The Morning Leader, London.

Thoroughly competent and satisfactory, not to say authoritative.—The Athenæum, London.

Tolstoy's Letters and Essays ‡

Containing new translations and fresh matter translated by Aylmer Maude. 12mo, Cloth, 372 pp. $1.00.

As an interpreter, Mr. Maude is excellent, and his earlier chapters have real value in establishing exactly what Tolstoy has meant by his religious speculations and his moral reforms.—The Saturday Review.

Tolstoy on Shakespeare

A Critical Essay on Shakespeare by Leo Tolstoy. Translated by V. Tcherkoff and I. F. M. Followed by "Shakespeare's Attitude Toward the Working Classes," by Ernest Crosby, and a letter from G. Bernard Shaw. Also other remarks on the subject. With characteristic vigor and keen insight Tolstoy analyzes the works of the immortal bard. In relentless fashion he strives to show that Shakespeare's genius as a dramatist is much overrated. To do this he measures the man and his works by the modern rules and axioms of the drama. Many readers will not accept Tolstoy's verdict as final, but none can gainsay his wonderful gift of penetration, and his clear method of presenting his view. 16mo, Cloth. 75 cents.

Valuable and important SUPPLEMENTS in the shape of Index Lexicons to the Old and the New Testaments have been made, which will prove of great service to those unacquainted with Hebrew or Greek. Furthermore, there is given in this new edition a Complete List of Scripture Names, showing their MODERN pronunciation, with accurate transliteration of the originals. The Sketch of Recent Exploration in Bible Lands has been brought down to date.

FEATURES OF THE CONTENTS.

ITS ANALYTICAL CHARACTER.—It gives at a glance the various shades of meaning of related words represented in the English by one word. ARRANGEMENT OF PROPER NAMES.—The proper names of all persons and places, unlike most concordances, are given in their alphabetical order with meanings. Dates and eras of all persons are also given, so that they may be distinguished from others of the same name. USEFUL FEATURES FOR STUDENTS.—It enables every student to be his own commentator even if he has no knowledge of the Greek or Hebrew languages. ESPECIALLY HELPFUL ARRANGEMENT.—Every word is given in alphabetical order, and arranged under its Hebrew or Greek original, with the literal meaning of each, and its pronunciation. VALUABLE COMPLEMENTARY ARTICLES.—Helpful supplemental articles add value to this Concordance. The Rev. Thomas Nicol, B D., of Edinburgh, contributes "A Sketch of Recent Explorations in Bible Lands," outlining the results of recent topographical and archeological investigations in their bearing upon Scriptures. There are also 71 instructive "Hints and Helps on Bible Interpretation."

There can be no question of the vast merits of this work. Such a work is simply indispensable, and none are worth using but the very best.—The Congregationalist, Boston.

It is unquestionably the best and most complete work of the kind ever published.—The Episcopal Recorder, Philadelphia.

It is a masterpiece of our time. Any Bible student will find it invaluable.—The Religious Telescope, Dayton, Ohio.

The most accurate, comprehensive, and best work of its kind in all respects that has ever appeared in the English language.—Lutheran Observer, Philadelphia.

Horace Greeley: The Editor

Vol. II. of "American Reformers" Series. With portrait and copious index. 12mo, Cloth, 398 pp. $1.50.

This new biography of Greeley is worthy to stand beside the biographies of Henry Clay by Carl Schurz and of Patrick Henry by Professor Moses Coit Tyler.—The Evangelist, New York.

A book which the young, especially the boys, will surely read with interest and profit.—The Chicago Post.

A very fresh, readable account of the life of this eccentric and remarkable man.—The S. Louis Central Baptist.

Zangwill, Israel

Blind Children ‡

The essentially poetic character of Mr. Zangwill's genius in his prose writings has been recognized by the critics. This volume, the first book of poems which Mr. Zangwill has published, supports the truth of this criticism in a remarkable manner. The material of the collection is largely personal, the spirit is imaginative, and the message which reaches his readers is subconscious in its revelation. 12mo, Cloth, ornamental covers, 141 pp. $1.20.

A broad intellectuality flows steadily along, absorbing little rivulets of humor, pathos, keen analysis, wholesome criticism, and practical ideas, forming a definitive connection between the apparently widely separated themes of the poems.—Philadelphia Item.

The strength and depth of their meaning will recur over and over again. . . . The material is largely personal, but wrought together with lively imagination and a subtle charm, which descends to wonderful depths without the slightest effort.—Washington Post.

Zenos, Prof. Andrew C., D.D. (see also under Bible Dictionary, Standard)

The Elements of the Higher Criticism

The object of this work is not to advocate or oppose any set of theories, but to state and explain the principles and methods of the higher criticism, with reference to the large and growing periodical and book literature on the subject. 12mo, Cloth, 268 pp. $1.00.

While the work is neither a plea nor a philippic, it is eminently reassuring as to the Divine Source of the Holy Scriptures, the Bible.—Arena, Boston.

This is a book of intense interest to all religious folk.—George A. Hepworth, D.D., in the New York Herald.

Zwemer, Samuel M., D.D., F.R.G.S.

Raymund Lull

The life story of the first Christian missionary who carried the gospel to the Moslems. The record of Raymund Lull's life reads like a romance. From the dissolute life of a gay knight in the Court of King James II. of Aragon, he became a monk. So numerous were his literary productions on philosophy, sociology, logic, and theology that their number is unknown. His daring trips to Africa, his unflinching courage, his great strength of faith, his intense suffering, and his tragic death after fifty years of saintly devotion to his mission of converting the Saracens to Christianity, all form some of the most glowing pages in the lives of the world's illustrious Christian heroes. 12mo, Cloth, ornamental covers, 172 pp., 12 full-page half-tone illustrations, introduction by Robert E. Speer, complete bibliography, etc. 75 cents.

It appeals strongly to those who love the heroic, and are fascinated by a picturesque personality.—Chicago Evening Post.

Told in Dr. Zwemer's inimitable style, and with the scope and grasp supplied by his almost unequaled understanding of things Mohammedan, this little biography is sure to be of great value to the cause in behalf of which it was written.—The Mission Field.

It is with fellowship of spirit that the author introduces his readers to this hero of the thirteenth century, this little-known man who ranks among the greatest missionaries of all ages.—The Children's Missionary, Baltimore.

This admirable biography emphasizes Lull's own motto: "He who lives by the life can not die!"—Boston Times.

The advantages of the Biflex over other loose-leaf devices

1. EASE OF MANIPULATION. The entire pack of paper may be inserted or removed by one simple operation. Single sheets or several sheets can be inserted or removed with greater ease than with any other loose-leaf binder.

2. UNBROKEN ARCHES. There is no chance for paper to catch and tear.

3. SIZE OF ARCHES. The arches are large enough to allow free movement of the paper. Paper can be punched at a greater distance from its edge than with other binders.

4. COMPLETE WITHIN ITSELF. There are no rings or metal parts to scratch the polished surface of a desk.

5. CONSTRUCTION. The metal parts are securely riveted to the cover, giving strength and durability.

6. FLY LEAVES. These are reinforced so that they lend strength to the entire pack.

ADAMS, FREDERICK UPHAM.

John Burt. With illustrations and inlay cover.

A Stock Exchange story, vividly told. The human passions, this age of commercial and industrial barbarism have never been so effectively portrayed. The love story that runs through the book is charming, is handled with infinite skill and never loses its interest.

ADE, GEORGE.

In Babel.

Gives vivid scenes from the Human Comedy in the Babel of Chicago. The foibles and follies of the characters are touched up with Mr. Ade's delightful humor and are sketched with the clearness of a keen observer.

AITKEN, ROBERT.

The Golden Horseshoe. With frontispiece, inlay cover, and wrapper in color by Harrison Fisher.

The heroine is the cousin of a President of a South American Republic, who abducts her from New York, and plots to marry her against her will; the hero is the disowned son of an American millionaire, who loves the girl, and follows her to South America, for the purpose of rescuing her from her plotters. A fascinating story.

ALEXANDER, GRACE.

Judith. With illustrations by George Wright.

A story of Southern Indiana in the candle-lit fifties, and of Judith La Monde and her lovers—a farmer and a minister. It is the chronicle of a soul's struggle against overmastering temptation; a love deep and lasting, and refusing to be denied—the very magnitude of which endows it with a certain dignity and justification.

ALLEN, JAMES LANE.

The Choir Invisible.

A strong and most beautiful story of the "blue-grass region," portraying the defeated passion of a young schoolmaster for a beautiful but shallow Kentucky girl. Through this woman's treachery, he comes to appreciate another woman, and carries this love in his heart to the end.

ATHERTON, GERTRUDE FRANKLIN.

The Californians.

A study of California from life. The central character is a young, gifted girl, half Spanish and half American. She loves, and, because of this love and its influence upon the warring impulses of her blood, the story assumes a character quite apart from ordinary fiction.

The Conqueror: The True and Romantic Story of Alexander Hamilton.

Alexander Hamilton's life ended in a dramatic episode quite in keeping with that mysterious romance which surrounds his origin and lineage, and lends itself to Gertrude Atherton's purposes of "a dramatized biography" better than any other that could be selected. The tragedy of such an end is one of the ironies of history.

The Splendid Idle Forties. With illustrations by Harrison Fisher.

A narrative of Monterey in the days before the golden skeleton within the sleeping body of California had been laid bare—days of idleness and pleasure among the Spanish residents, broken by the appearance of the "Yankees." Love stories spring into life at the meeting of races so dissimilar, and are related with brilliancy, beauty and realism.

BACHELLER, IRVING.

Darrel of the Blessed Isles. With illustrations by Arthur Keller.

Another tale of the North Country, full of the odor of wood and field. In Darrel, the clock tinker, wit, philosopher and man of mystery, is portrayed a force held in fetters and covered with obscurity, yet strong to make its way, and widely felt.

D'ri and I: A Tale of Daring Deeds in the Second War with the British. Being the Memoirs of Col. Ramon Bell, U. S. A. Illustrated by F. C. Yohn.

A tale of the adventurous and rugged pioneers who were ever at war with the wilderness of the northern frontier. "D'ri" was a mighty hunter, quaint, rugged, wise, truthful. He fights magnificently on the Lawrence, and is a striking figure in this enthusiastic romance of early America.

Eben Holden: A Tale of the North Country.

A story of the hardy wood-choppers of Vermont, who founded their homes in the Adirondack wilderness. "Eben," the hero, is a bachelor, who came over the mountains to dwell among them, a man of cheerful temper, and an imagination that was a very wilderness of oddities.

Silas Strong: Emperor of the Woods. With a frontispiece.

A simple account of one summer life, as it was lived in a part of the Adirondacks. Silas Strong is a woodland philosopher, and his camp is the scene of an impressive little love story. The author has skilfully interwoven with his story a strong plea for the preservation of our forests.

Vergilius: A Tale of the Coming of Christ.

A thrilling and beautiful story of two young Roman Patricians whose great and perilous love in the reign of Augustus leads them through the momentous, exciting events that marked the year just preceding the birth of Christ. A well-told story; true to the time; and a great triumph in the art of historical portrait painting. The final scene is a crowning touch of rare beauty.

BARBOUR, A. MAYNARD.

At the Time Appointed. With a frontispiece by J. N. Marchand.

Relates the fortunes of a young mining engineer, who, through an accident, loses his memory and identity. In his new character and under his new name, the hero lives a new life of struggle and adventure. A highly romantic story, full of thrilling adventure and sentiment. Vivid in its characterizations and thrilling in its dramatic situations.

Breakers Ahead. With a frontispiece in colors by James L. Wood.

"Mac" Denning is a resourceful, clever and attractive man, but very selfish. He accumulates a large fortune, but still is not happy, for he cannot throw off the memory of the wife he has deserted. On the eve of a great triumph, his "harvest of wild oats" appears to defeat him.

That Mainwaring Affair. With illustrations by E. Plaisted Abbott.

A novel with a most intricate and carefully unraveled plot. Hugh Mainwaring, in his beautiful home at Fair Oaks, maintains an expensive household, over which a widow, beautiful and mysterious, acts as housekeeper. The woman plays a part throughout the story that places "That Mainwaring Affair" among the most baffling mysteries.

BARNES-GRUNDY, MABEL.

Dimbie and I. Illustrated. A chronicle of the first year of married life of a young and devoted couple.

Amelia, the racy maid of all work, the "sensible" Miss Fairbrother, Dr. Renton, who is "in love," and many other delightful characters are revealed in this tender little story, with its pathetic undercurrent of brave cheerfulness and undying affection.

Hazel of Heatherland.

The refractory doings of a headstrong young woman, and the way she winds herself around the heart of a plain male individual of sober, sterling qualities, form the motif for this delicious little comedy of rural England. The romance is aided by tactful Aunt Menelphe, who understands the fluffy bit of girlhood her niece represents, and renders excellent service in disentangling a badly tangled love affair.

BARR, AMELIA E.

The Bow of Orange Ribbon. With frontispiece.

This exquisite little romance is of New York city when the old Dutch families clustered around Bowling Green. The orange ribbon figures as a love token, and it leads the little Dutch maiden through many experiences.

The Maid of Maiden Lane: A Love Story. With illustrations.

A sequel to "The Bow of Orange Ribbon." The time is the gracious days of Seventeen-Hundred-and-Ninety-One, when "The Marseillaise" was sung with the American National airs, and the spirit affected commerce, politics and conversation. In the midst of this period the romance of "the sweetest maid in Maiden Lane" unfolds.

A Song of a Single Note: A Love Story. Illustrated by Anna Whelan Betts.

A graphic picture of social life in New York during the British occupation. The story, however, does not concern itself directly with the war, but with "the song of a single note" whose name is Love—a song whose lustrous notes swept the hearts of the young New Yorkers of this day of the past.

Thyra Varrick. A Love Story . With illustrations by Lee Zeigler.

A story of the days of "Bonny Prince Charlie." Thyra loves and is beloved by Robert Thorson, but meets Hector MacDonald, a fervent adherent to the Pretender, and her heart is won at sight. For her wavering devotion, she pays a heavy price, but from the rough-hewn ends of her life a beautiful destiny is shaped.

BARR, ROBERT.

Cardillac. Colored frontispiece and inlay from drawing by A. G. Learned.

A clean, dashing novel of adventure and love. The scene is in France in the reign of Louis XIII. The book is a satisfying romance, full of love, fighting and plotting. It is accurate historically in atmosphere and incident. Cardillac himself is a real Gascon—glowing with bravado and bravery—quick to anger, impulsive and warm-hearted. Therese de Montreuil sparkles with individuality and humor, and it is her clever scheming that often saves the day.

A Chicago Princess. With illustrations by Francis P. Wightman.

A characteristic, breezy and humorous romance of a girl with a craze for titled personages.

The father of the heroine is a Chicago multimillionaire, and while traveling in the East, she visits Korea, where the Emperor falls violently in love with her. His courtship is fast and furious, and leads to many strange complications.

A Rock in the Baltic. Illustrated by Herman Heyer.

The rock was used as a prison by Russian Grand Dukes, and a young English officer, temporarily in command of a cruiser, fires upon it, supposing the sole inhabitants to be sea gulls. Troubles ensue, and the young Englishman has many adventures before he emerges from them. A specimen of graceful, elusive American girlhood is the heroine of the story.

Tekla: A Romance of Love and War.

A romance of love, war and politics of the thirteenth century. The scenes are laid in Germany. "Tekla," the beautiful girl who loved the Emperor Rudolph when she believed him to be only an unknown lord, is one of the most charming figures of that period—a period when those greater than she were swayed by the forces about them.

BARRETT, WILSON.

The Sign of the Cross. Reproductions of Scenes from the Play.

An absorbing book, dramatic in every page. The story of Nero and the early Christian persecutions was never more picturesquely told. As a play it proved a notable success; it has delighted thousands, and is certain to hold the stage for years.

BARRIE, JAMES M.

The Little Minister. Illustrated from Photographs of Scenes of the Play.

One of the classics of recent literature and one of the most widely read novels of this generation. "Babbie" is altogether lovely, "the little minister" is a delightful creation, and the whole story captivates by its freshness.

BARTLETT, FREDERICK ORIN.

The Seventh Noon. With illustrations by Edmund Frederick.

A plot that is begun and ended in seven days. A New York attorney only learns the value of life when he believes his days are numbered, and then he resolves to live and to taste life in all its sweetness.

BEECKMAN, ROSS.

Princess Zara. Illustrated by Bert Knight.

A Russian noblewoman, whose sister has been exiled to Siberia, degraded by Russian officers, and lost her reason, is the heroine of this remarkable novel.

An American whose official position brings him in touch with the princess becomes her lover and a strange complication develops because of their antagonistic sympathies.

The Last Woman. Frontispiece by Howard Chandler Christy.

The characters are taken from New York's busy world of finance. A dash of Western chivalry supplies the romantic element of the story, the heroine of which is an admirable girl with good common-sense and noble sentiment, happily combined.

BELL, LILIAN.

Abroad with the Jimmies.

The European itinerary of four jolly Americans described in the intimate and fascinating first person. Paris and Nordau; Moscow and Tolstoy; Strasburg, Baden Baden, The Passion Play, The Tyrol, Vienna—all are skilfully touched on with keen observation.

At Home with the Jardines.

Picturing with the most contagious humor the first experiences at housekeeping of a young playwright and his wife. They acquire a New York city apartment, and an Irish maid that drops blessings and denunciations with equal facility. They skirt the border of Bohemia, and yet maintain their ideals of a genuine American "home, sweet home."

Carolina Lee. Frontispiece by Dora Wheeler Keith.

The story of an ardent little Southener brought up in Paris and accustomed to all the luxuries of life. She is suddenly deprived of all these things, and under new conditions and among new friends she learns to rise above the loss of material things—she learns the possibilities of happiness within herself.

The Concentrations of Bee. Frontispiece by A. P. Button.

A circle of clever young people in New York, with Bohemian tendencies, are prevented from spoiling their destinies by the clever brain work of a widow. A fascinating story—a piquant blend of sweet and sharp.

Hope Loring. Illustrated by Frank T. Merrill.

The most delightful side of Southern character is revealed here; its generosity and tactfulness, its weaknesses even, so human that they are lovable, are all revealed in the home life of the Lorings, making a beautiful setting for Hope, the aristocratic little tomboy. A bit of Miss Bell's cleverest work.

BELLAMY, EDWARD.

Looking Backward, 2000-1887.

The "Uncle Tom's Cabin" of Industrial Slavery of to-day—a noble dream admirably wrought out. The attention of the reader is held, fascinated by the glowing picture of life as it might be if ideal economic conditions were brought about.

BENSON, B. K.

The Old Squire: The Romance of a Black Virginian.

This novel is written, not to defend slavery, but to do justice to the slave. It tells of a faithful slave whose attachment to his young maser is truly pathetic. The character of the old man is exquisitely drawn, his native humor, his nonchalance and simple faith being cleverly brought out.

BENSON, E. F.

The Climber. With frontispiece.

The story of ambitious Lucia Grimson, who gains the goal of her dreams—social leadership—at the expense of all that is best in life, to realize the futility of it all when the law of recompense demands a remorseless accounting. This is Mr. Benson's best novel; it reaches a splendid and enduring level in contemporary fiction. An unsparing analysis of an ambitious woman's soul—a masterly novel of modern society.

BINDLOSS, HAROLD.

The Cattle Baron's Daughter. A Novel. Illustrated by David Ericson.

The strife between the herdsmen and the homesteaders for possession of the plains is the basis for this exciting story. Intense interest is aroused by its pictures of life in the cattle country at the critical moment of transition, when the great tracts of land used for grazing were taken up by the incoming homesteaders.

Delilah of the Snows.

The setting of Northwest Canada is given to this narrative.
The hero has staked a claim, discovered gold, and offset his good luck by becoming madly infatuated with the wrong woman. A terse, powerful, yet graceful, story.

For Jacinta. With frontispiece in color by G. W. Wood.

The story of two men, one a plucky and forceful American, the other an Englishman of leisurely and artistic tastes, each influenced by a particular woman in a certain way. One of these women is the charming Jacinta. The two men go to the West Coast of Africa on an exciting adventure, which expedition results in an unexpected climax.

The Greater Power. With frontispiece and cover in color, and illustrated by W. Herbert Dunton.

In its wilderness setting. and in its pioneer struggle with the forces of nature, this book is similar to the many that the author has written of life in the Canadian Northwest. To the intelligence and ability of the hero are united the foresightedness and initiative of the heroine—a combination that is bound to transform wildernesses into places of habitation.

Winston of the Prairie. With frontispiece and cover in color by W. Herbert Dunton.

A man of upright character, young and clean, but badly worsted in the battle of life, consents, as a desperate resort, to impersonate for a period a man of his own age, but of a scoundrelly type, though of an aristocratic and moneyed family. This is the beginning of a tangled web, and an unexpected unraveling.

BISSON, ALEXANDRE, and McCONAUGHY, J. W.

Madame X. Illustrated with scenes from the play. Photogravure wrapper in color.

This story fulfills its mission by telling the experiences of "Madame X," made an adventuress and a wanderer on the face of this earth because her husband would not forgive her for a wrong committed against him in her youth. The beautiful tie of parenthood which is a benediction in so many homes was in this case almost a mutual grief—to the father because his son was motherless and to the mother because her life placed her beyond the joy of her young son's love and reverence. "Madame X" is a courageous book, individual and clever beyond the ordinary. It has been a great dramatic success, and to both the reader and the theatregoer it speaks the beautiful gospel of forgiveness.

BLOSSOM, HENRY M., Jr.

Checkers: A Hard Luck Story. With Scenes from the Play.

"Checkers" is an interesting and entertaining chap, lively of wit, a distinct type, with a separate tongue and a way of saying things that is oddly humorous. The racing part is clever reporting, and as horsey as one could ask.

BOOTH, EDWARD C.

The Post Girl. With cover of striking beauty by Denman Fink.

A story as witty as it is wise—an illumination of life, and its reading is an education for the mind and the heart. "The Post Girl" is the dearest, most bewitching piece of quaintness and tenderness put into a book for many a long day.

BONNER, GERALDINE.

Rich Men's Children. With illustrations by Charles M. Relyea.

An extremely absorbing romance of early California, dealing with the conflict of generations and the bold passions of the Far West. It is unique in plot, powerful in situations, graphic in style, and told with intense force. The denouement is wonderfully well managed, and the surprise is as complete as possible.

The Pioneer. Illustrated by Harrison Fisher.

A story of California and Nevada in the bonanza silver days, when fortunes were made and unmade daily among the miners. Full of human interest.

BRADY, CYRUS TOWNSEND.

A Little Traitor to the South: A War-time Comedy with a Tragic Interlude. With illustrations by A. D. Rahn, and decorations by C. E. Hooper.

A Southern war story, the scene of which is Charleston and Charleston harbor. The girl and her two lovers are ardent Confederates, and she only becomes a traitor inconsequentially. It is a charming story, breathing the atmosphere of the quaint old town, from which is gleaned an excellent conception of the spirit of her people.

BREBNER, PERCY.

Princess Maritza. Illustrated by Harrison Fisher.

The hero is an English officer, who turns his back on his own country, and confines himself to a little kingdom called "Wallaria." There are tricky ministers, intriguing women, soldiers, and lovers, a princess and a soldier of fortune concerned in this stirring narrative.

Vayenne. With illustrations by E. Fuhr.

This romance, like "The Princess Maritza," is charged to the brim with adventure, in which an unlawful successor to the Duchy of Montvilliers resorts to foul treachery to push his claim, but is outwitted by a young soldier of fortune and a court fool. Romance and sword play mingle in dramatic episodes that are born, flourish, and pass away on every page.

BROUGHTON, RHODA.

Foes in Law.

A wonderful character study of two women, sisters-in-law, mentally antipathetic, yet forced to meet in daily association. The result, often humorous, sometimes tragic, creates a series of dramatic incidents of fascinating interest.

BROWN, ALICE.

Meadow-Grass: Tales of New England Life.

Shows how rich one village among the New England hills is in the quiet, and perhaps almost unnoticed, vagaries of human life. It has a pathos that springs from its dignified naturalness, and there is a quiet humor which is deliciously captivating. The stories are full of tenderness love and human sympathy.

Rose MacLeod. With frontispiece by W. W. Churchill, Jr.

Rose MacLeod is the daughter of a "brotherhood-of-man" agitator, who, while denouncing selfishness, basks in the material warmth of Mammon. A couple of sprightly grandmothers make a fine leaven of comedy, sustaining the balance of this "story with a purpose."

BROWNE, PORTER EMERSON.

A Fool There Was. Illustrated by Edmund Magrath and W. W. Fawcett.

Marriage is not the end of this book, any more than it is the end of life, and the terrible story of this man's downfall, spiritual and physical, begins there—in the environment of home, loved and cared for by a beautiful wife and child. A woman gloriously beautiful, with as little humanity as Kipling's "Vampire," beckons him to destruction. One of the big stage productions that are making theatrical history.

BUCK, CHARLES NEVILLE.

The Key to Yesterday. Illustrated by R. Schabelitz.

The central idea of this story is the rare, though not unheard of, case of forgotten identity.

Robert Saxon, a prominent artist, has an accident, while in Paris, which obliterates his memory, and the only clue he has to his former life is a rusty key. What door in Paris will that key unlock? He must know that before he wins the girl he loves.

BURGESS, GELETT.

The Heart Line. Illustrated by Lester Ralph. Inlay cover in colors.

A story of Bohemian life in San Francisco, before the disaster, presented with mirror-like accuracy. Compressed into it are all the sparkle, all the gayety, all the wild, whirling life of the glad, mad, bad, and most delightful, city of the Golden Gate.

A Little Sister of Destiny.

In this ingenious story an American heiress, with a spirit of adventure, becomes, successively, a New York chorus girl, cashier, manicurist, artists' model and maid servant. The story is novel, clever and entertaining.

The White Cat. Illustrated by Will Grefé.

An odd, original and most unusual novel, stamped with the author's genius for whimsical sentiment, piquant adventures and psychological romance. The plot turns on dual personality, which is now a phenomenon familiarly known to science, but which has never yielded up its full measure of fictional value.

BURNETT, FRANCES HODGSON.

The Making of a Marchioness. Illustrated with half-tone engravings by Charles D. Williams. With initial letters, tail-pieces, decorative borders. Beautifully printed and daintily bound and boxed.

The scene is laid in an English country house, where an amiable English nobleman is the centre of matrimonial interest on the part of both the English and Americans present. Mrs. Burnett has done nothing more charming than "The Making of a Marchioness." It is a book about which one is tempted to write ecstatically.

The Shuttle. With inlay cover in colors by Clarence F. Underwood.

This great international romance relates the story of a remarkable American girl, who, in rescuing her sister from the ruins of her marriage to an Englishman of title, displays splendid qualities of courage, tact and restraint. As a study of American womanhood of modern times, the character of Bettina Vanderpoel stands alone in literature.

BURNHAM, CLARA LOUISE.

A Great Love.

A story of New England. The heroine is a girl capable of the greatest sacrifice any woman can make—to give up the man she loves to another woman, because it is right. The charm of the book is the tenderness of the human touch throughout.

BURNHAM, CLARA LOUISE.—Continued.

Dr. Latimer.

A fresh, wholesome little story, the larger part of the scene of which is laid in Casco Bay. It details in fascinating fashion the struggles, trials and happy termination of all the afflictions of three most charming girls. Dr. Latimer is a very lovable character, and his entry into the lives of the Ivison girls is fraught with blessed consequences to them.

Jewel: A Chapter in Her Life. Illustrated by Maude and Genevieve Cowles.

A sweet, dainty story, breathing the doctrine of love and patience and sweet nature and cheerfulness. Nobody can read it without feeling wonderfully touched and uplifted. A delightfully natural picture of child life, which has a charm for all readers.

Jewel's Story Book. With illustrations by Albert Schmitt.

Readers of "Jewel" will recall that she was left in charge of her grandfather, while her parents went to Europe, and that she completely won the hearts of him and all his household, as well as those of her readers. The present book sustains the standard set by the former, and brings Jewel's parents back to a happy homecoming.

The Leaven of Love.

A story whose situation grows out of the separation of a jealous wife from her husband. The scene shifts from Boston to Regina Beach, at which latter place the leavening work progresses, presided over by a young girl, whose common-sense and sunny philosophy bring happiness to all.

Miss Pritchard's Wedding Trip: A Novel.

The heroine is a New England spinster, disappointed in an early love, and requitted in an original fashion. The man she loves dies, and intrusts to her his daughter, who so much resembles her father that the European trip on which Miss Pritchard accompanies the girl assumes for her the semblance of a wedding journey.

The Opened Shutters. Frontispiece by Harrison Fisher.

The islands of Casco Bay form the setting for this story, whither comes Sylvia Lacey, orphaned and embittered, to accept the hospitality of her mother's cousin. Here she learns a happy solution of all life's problems—right and harmonious thinking—and the shutters of her soul open to let in the blessed sunlight, the opulence of a new life.

The Right Princess.

A most entertaining and vivacious story, with a lovely and lovable girl as the heroine. Our sympathies are quickly enlisted for her, and we applaud her well-earned victories. A novel with a purpose at once absorbing and forceful, and with a delightful love interest through it all.

Sweet Clover.

A tender little love story, that has for its mise-en-scene the exquisite "White City" of the days of the World's Fair. Amidst this cosmopolitan crowd a woman learns the secrets of her own heart, and the way to retrieve her past.

BUTLER, ELLIS PARKER.

Kilo. Illustrated.

A New York author, in pursuit of fresh material, spends a summer in Kilo, a Middle Iowa village, where, amidst the rich material for her pen, springs up Eliph Hewlitt, a book agent.

Cursed with the fatality of never becoming detached from his book, Eliph displays his advertising finesse even in his wooing, going through all the phases of his existence hampered by his ball and chain—"Jarby's Encyclopedia." Told with Mr. Butler's well known humorous skill.

CABOT, OLIVER.

The Man Without a Shadow. Illustrated.

A young man, after a lapse of consciousness, awakes one day in a sanitarium, to find that by some queer freak his memory was left behind. Although apparently enmeshed in a network of intrigue, with little hope of escape from his evil guardians, he cheerfully lays plans to regain his liberty.

The scenes shift from New Jersey to Paris, introducing a variety of characters that gives the narrative a distinctive place among other works of fiction.

CAINE, HALL.

The Christian. With Reproductions of Scenes from the Play.

High life and low life in the weltering Babylon of London does Mr. Caine portray. From a great West End hospital, where his heroine is a nurse, we follow her through varying fortunes to the leading lady at a London theatre, where her will is law. At the very moment of her triumph she gives up all for love of John Storm, "the Christian."

The Eternal City.

The hero, David Rossi, is a twentieth century Rienzi, whose dream is the glorification of Italy and of Rome. The monarchy is to be abolished and there is to be a republic of perfect liberty, and the Pope the arbiter of the world. Rome is once more to become a model and example for all the nations. A fascinating remorseless production.

The White Prophet. Illustrations and picture on wrappers by R. Caton Woodville.

A novel of Egyptian life and English life in Egypt in which the author "attempts to recreate the course of the events of the last quarter of a century as they ought to have happened." It portrays social and official life in government and military circles of Egyptian cities and follows the course of the "White Prophet," half Christian, half Mohammedan, as leader of the new Nationalist movement.

CASTLE, AGNES and EGERTON.

Flower o' the Orange: and Other Tales of Bygone Days.

Love, gallantry, devotion, sword-play—there is a sufficiency of these elements in this group of tales. That they are cleverly done goes without saying, for the Castles are at home in this special field of fiction, and can write a short story of the days of Stuart or Hanoverian or Jacobite, that will assume all the reality of a novel of to-day.

My Merry Rockhurst: Being some Episodes in the Life of Viscount Rockhurst, a friend of King Charles the Second, and at one time Constable of His Majesty's Tower of London. Illustrated by Arthur E. Becher.

In these eight stories of a courtier of King Charles Second, which are here gathered together, the Castles are at their best, reviving all the fragrant charm of those books, like "The Pride of Jennico," in which they first showed an instinct, amounting to genius, for sunny romances.

The Secret Orchard. With illustrations by Charles D. Williams.

Artfully contrived and full of romantic charm, it possesses ingenuity of incident, animation of manner, and a diction of absolute touch and delicacy. The secret orchard is a figurative designation of the unhallowed scenes in which unlicensed love accomplishes and wrecks faith and happiness.

CASTLE, EGERTON.

Young April. With illustrations by A. B. Wenzell.

It is everything that a good romance should be, and it carries about it an air of distinction both rare and delightful. With regret one turns to the last page of this delightful novel, so delicate in its romance, so brilliant in its episodes, so sparkling in its art, and so exquisite in its diction.

CATHERWOOD, MARY H.

Lazarre. Illustrated by André Castaigne.

Lazarre is no less a person than the Dauphin, Louis of France, and a right royal hero he makes. A prince, who, for the sake of his lady, scorns perils in two hemispheres, facing the wrath of Kings in Europe and the bullets of savages in America; who at last spurns a kingdom, that he may wed her freely.

CHAMBERLAIN, ESTHER and LUCIA.

The Coast of Chance. With illustrations by Clarence F. Underwood, and reproduction on the cover of the famous Chatworth Ring.

A book of intense interest, a most ingenious and startling story. Its wholly unexpected climax, its uncommon love story, and its marked distinction should make it extremely popular. Just one good, interesting story, clean in word, and, above all else, alluring in mystery.

CHAMBERLAIN, LUCIA.

The Other Side of the Door. With illustrations by Herman Pfiefer.

Is unique, in that it actually presents some situations new to fiction, and makes the reader's heart beat hard and fast. Distinctly among the stories of early San Francisco that are worth while. Forcefully told, with charm and reminiscent directness that capture the imagination.

CHAMBERS, ROBERT W.

Ashes of Empire: A Romance.

Two British journalists during the siege of Paris, lodge at a shop kept by two pretty convent-bred French girls. These girls aid the Empress in her escape from Paris, and they become objects of suspicion to the Republican clubs of the neighborhood. The two journalists protect the girls from their enemies, share their danger, and through all the tumult and struggle, manage to fall in love with them. A memorable novel.

The Danger Mark. llIustrated by A. B. Wenzell. Wrapper in colors and gold.

A story of the idle and overrich in New York. An interesting girl, who inherited a dangerous appetite, with great wealth, is thrust into the mad whirl, and almost oversteps "the danger mark"—that mark which the fashionable world has set as the limit to gaiety. A strong, daring story.

The Firing Line. Illustrated by F. H. Foster.

The scenes of this story are laid principally at Palm Beach, and show that the salvation of society lies in the constant injection of new blood into its veins. His heroine, the captivating Shiela Cardross, of unknown parentage, yet reared in luxury, suddenly finds herself on life's firing line, battling with one of the most portentous problems a young girl ever had to face.

The Reckoning. With illustrations by Henry Hutt.

The tale of the love of Carus Renault and Lady Elsin Grey in the last days of the Revolutionary War. Never was there daintier heroine or more daring hero. Never did the honor of a great-hearted gentleman triumph to such an extent over the man. Never were there daintier love passages in the midst of war.

CHESTER, GEORGE RANDOLPH.

Young Wallingford. Illustrations by F. R. Gruger and Henry Raleigh. Wrapper in colors and gold.

Young Wallingford's real name was Wix, but he shook the dust of his home town from his feet and changed his name after he had buncoed his old-time associates out of good money by selling them a bad bucket-shop. This is his start in life, and the book contains an account of a series of clever swindles, each of which is just on the safe side of a State's prison offence. The denouement is original and clever.

CHURCHILL, WINSTON.

The Celebrity: An Episode.

An inimitable bit of comedy describing an interchange of personalities between a celebrated author and a bicycle salesman of the most blatant type.

A story which is American to the core.

Coniston. Illustrated by Florence Scovel Shinn.

A deft blending of love and politics distinguishes this book. The author has taken for his hero a New Englander, a crude man of the tannery, who rose to political prominence by his own powers, and then surrendered all for the love of a woman.

It is a sermon on civic righteousness, and a love story of a deep motive.

The Crisis. With illustrations by Howard Chandler Christy.

A book that presents the great crisis in our national life with splendid power and with a sympathy, a sincerity, and a patriotism that are inspiring. The several scenes in the book in which Abraham Lincoln figures must be read in their entirety, for they give a picture of that great, magnetic, lovable man, which has been drawn with evident affection and exceptional success.

The Crossing. With illustrations by Sydney Adamson and Lillian Baylis.

A well-planned, well-constructed and well-written novel. It describes the battle of Fort Moultrie and the British fleet in the harbor of Charleston, the blazing of the Kentucky wilderness, the expedition of Clark and his handful of dauntless followers into Illinois, the beginning of civilization along the Ohio and the Mississippi, and the treasonable schemes builded against Washington and the Federal Government.

CLARK, HENRY SCOTT.

The Legionaries. Illustrated.

The scene of this remarkable and artistic novel is laid in Kentucky and Indiana, and the backbone of the story is the raid of the intrepid Morgan—one of the most romantic and reckless adventures ever attempted in the history of the world.

CLOUSTON, J. STORER.

The Lunatic at Large. With illustrations by Latimer J. Wilson.

A young physician is given an opportunity to travel with a lunatic. He does not fancy the job, but the fee is alluring, and he takes the lunatic to a private asylum, and with a confederate impersonating the patient, he goes for a good time on the Continent: a curious web of deception has to be unraveled as a consequence.

COLBRON, GRACE ISABEL, and GRONER, AUGUSTA.

Joe Muller: Detective.

A few of the many interesting cases that have come within the experience of Joseph Muller, secret service detective of the Imperial Austrian police, are narrated in this volume. This clever detective is a welcome addition to the gallery of immortal detectives in the line of Sherlock Holmes.

CONNOR, RALPH.

The Man from Glengarry.

A story of the Canadian Highlanders of Glengarry, whose forefathers emigrated because of the injustices attendant on the conversion of the tribal system of land tenure, after 1745, into the baronial tenure favored by England.

The narrative brings us into contact with elemental, and even volcanic, human nature, which the "kirk" labors to subdue through discipline.

Glengarry School Days. Illustrated by E. S. Paxson. Typical cover design in colors.

In this rough country of Glengarry, Ralph Connor has found human nature in the rough. He has brought it to the light, that we of the world may see and judge and admire what he has found, for it is sterling. Those who have read "The Man from Glengarry" will need no introduction to the minister's wife, Mrs. Murray, who here, as there, is the real heroine of the book.

CORELLI, MARIE.

Barabbas: A Dream of the World's Tragedy.

Power, grandeur authority and truth are expressed in this great Scriptural novel, in which all the most important characters in Biblical history are introduced. It deals with the events grouped about the ministry of Christ in Judea. One of the principal characters in the book is Judith Iscariot, with whom Barabbas is in love.

Holy Orders.

A dramatic story, in which is pictured a clergyman, a figure of faith and courage, in touch with society people, stage favorites, simple village folk, powerful financiers and others, each presenting vital problems to this man "in holy orders"—problems that we are now struggling with in America.

The Master Christian. New Edition.

In vigor of style, in boldness of conception, in tenderness and pathos, and in its wide appeal, "The Master Christian" presents features of extraordinary interest. It is impossible to sketch the outline of this romance, and it is enough to say that it deals with the great problems of humanity and religion, the eternal struggle between the spirit and the flesh. An allegory of striking beauty runs through the book.

The Sorrows of Satan; Or, The Strange Experience of One Geoffrey Tempest, Millionaire. With a frontispiece.

Geoffrey Tempest, a starving literary hack in London, suddenly finds himself heir to an unaccountable estate of five millions. He makes the acquaintance of Lucio Rimanez, and he marries Sibyl Eaton, the daughter of a nobleman, who tells him that "she, like all the unmarried women in her sphere, was for sale to the highest bidder." The denouement is startling and unexpected.

The Soul of Lilith. With a frontispiece by E. B. Starkweather.

"A psychological and theosophical story dealing with the return to earth of a disembodied spirit. The dominant characteristic of this strange and striking book is its poetic quality. . . . Passages of a psalm-like dignity and melody are of frequent occurrence; happy metaphor and brilliant illustration spring readily to hand.

Temporal Power: A Study in Supremacy. With a Special Preface to American Readers.

A book that aroused the English "smart set" to keen interest by the audacious imagination of the author. "Temporal Power" seeks to point out the enormous good a king might do if he would personally hear and attend to some of the public grievances without the intervention of secretaries and court officials. A "king of character," more human than royal is the one depicted in the story.

CRADDOCK, CHARLES EGBERT.

The Fair Mississippian.

A talented young man goes to live on a cotton plantation down South, and has adventures with river pirates and floods, and a romance with a lovely Southern widow.

A Spectre of Power.

The author has pictured the Tennessee mountains and the mountain people in striking colors and with dramatic vividness, but goes back to the time of the struggles of the French and English in the early eighteenth century for possession of the Cherokee territory. The story abounds in adventure, mystery, peril and suspense.

The Storm Centre: A Novel.

A war story; but more of flirtation, love and courtship than of fighting or history. The tale is thoroughly readable, and takes its readers again into golden Tennessee, into the atmosphere which has distinguished all of Miss Murfree's novels.

CRAWFORD, F. MARION.

Saracinesca.

His highest achievement. It has two distinct merits, either of which would serve to make it great—that of telling a perfect story in a perfect way, and of giving a graphic picture of Roman society in the last days of the Pope's temporal power.

Sant Ilario: A sequel to Saracinesca.

A singularly powerful and beautiful story, admirably developed, with a naturalness beyond praise, fulfilling every requirement of artistic fiction.

Don Orsino: A sequel to Sant Ilario

The third in a remarkable series of novels dealing with three generations of the Saracinesca family. . . . These novels present an important study of Italian life, customs, and conditions during the present century. Each is worthy of very careful reading, and offers exceptional enjoyment in many ways, in the fascinating absorption of good fiction, in the interest of faithful historic accuracy, and in charm of style. The new Italy is strikingly revealed in "Don Orsino."

Fair Margaret. With illustrations by Horace I. Carpenter.

Tells the story of Margaret Donne, the beautiful and fascinating English girl, whose wonderful voice carries her to world-wide triumph as Margarita da Cordova, the greatest diva of the age. The characters are of all nationalities, and the atmosphere is so cosmopolitan that the book has been classed as one of the "international novels."

The Primadonna: A Sequel to "Fair Margaret." With frontispiece.

Living in a musical Bohemia, surrounded by professionals of latent coarseness, sordid impresarios, men and women in all walks of life, Margaret remains the same, and the reader will rejoice in her success as a great primadonna.

The Heart of Rome: A Tale of the Lost Water.

This striking title is perfectly descriptive of the book. Mr. Crawford, who has studied Rome in all its phases, has undertaken to put "the heart of Rome" into his latest novel. The author of "Saracinesca" has here written his strongest and best work; a novel in which, around an absorbing love story, are described the manifold elements that go to make up the whole of the Eternal City as it exists at the present time. It will stand, as a picture of Roman and Italian life, without a peer.

In the Palace of the King: A Love Story of Old Madrid. With illustrations by Fred. Roe.

A bold, daring and dramatic love story. Maria Dolores de Mendoza, an exquisite Spanish girl, loved the halfbrother of King Philip of Spain—a sad love, because a royal marriage seemed inevitable for Don John. But those who long held the cards in their hands, and who played for high stakes found fortune failing them, and a splendid destiny worked out for those they tried to injure.

Mr. Isaacs: A Tale of Modern India.

Mr. Isaacs, the strong figure of this narrative, the man who looked like an Italian and spoke like a fellow of Balliol, is a personality fascinating and potent enough to steep every page of this uncommon novel of modern India. A story of a tender, uplifting friendship.

Via Crucis: A Romance of the Second Crusade. Illustrated by Louis Loeb.

The main outline of the story is based on a broad study of history. The time is the twelfth century, and Queen Eleanor and St. Bernard both figure as characters. As a romance, "Via Crucis" is pure and strong, and it possesses a distinctly spiritual element.

CREWDSON, CHARLES N.

Tales of the Road. With illustrations by J. J. Gould.

Salesmanship is the business of the world; and here you meet a variety of the hustlers who sell things. Replete with the road's wit and wisdom. Points on Tricks of the Trade; Tactics in Selling; How to Get on the Road; Salesmen's Don'ts; Clerks, Cranks, and Touches, and a sympathetic chapter on "Hearts behind the order books." Read it, and increase your efficiency. A clever book all the way through.

CROCKETT, S. R.

The Men of the Moss-Hags.

Mr. Crockett has given us a book that is full of strength and charm. Every page exhibits a robust faith in the higher possibilities of our nature, and the result is distinctly successful. Those to whom humanity in its most primitive and least complex aspect is interesting, will find real pleasure in studying Mr. Crockett's strong and sympathetic presentment of Scottish peasant life.

CULLEN, CLARENCE LOUIS.

Tales of the Ex-Tanks: A Book of Hard Luck Stories.

Tales of good fellows, who have won out from many odd and humorous predicaments; tales that treat of the "strenuous life" from the viewpoint of men who have been up against the real thing. They illustrate the fact that there is no game of hard luck from which a man of fair wit and inherent pluck cannot win out.

CURWOOD, JAMES OLIVER.

The Danger Trail. Illustrated by Charles Livingston Bull.

The danger trail is over the snow-smothered North. A young Chicago engineer, who is building a road through the Hudson Bay region, is involved in mystery, and is led into ambush by a young woman.

DANBY, FRANK.

The Heart of a Child.

Records the career of a London alley-waif, who, through innate purity of temperament, steers her way safely amid the dangers of her life as factory hand, cloak model, dancing girl and musical comedy artiste to the position of honored wife to an English lord.

DASKAM, JOSEPHINE.

The Memoirs of a Baby. Illustrated by F. Y. Cory.

In these amusing memoirs the author has given the reflections of a baby upon the processes to which he is subjected by well-meaning parents and nurses, and his wonder at the curious habits of grown-ups. Baby Binks has become a greater favorite even than "Helen's Babies," and the efforts of the attendant court to amuse the young sovereign are intensely humorous.

DAVIS, FOXCROFT.

Mrs. Darrell. With illustrations by Sherman Potts.

An exceptionally good story of the social side of high political life in the national capital. Its very genuine people are sketched with a light touch, a delicacy of expression, that makes the book enjoyable reading.

DAVIS, RICHARD HARDING.

Soldiers of Fortune. With illustrations by Charles Dana Gibson.

One of the cleverest books Mr. Davis has ever written. In the modern social life of New York, he projects picturesque, ideal soldiers of fortune—the most interesting and astonishing sketches of men who will, in any walk of life, make their own fortunes.

DAVIS, WILLIAM STEARNS.

A Friend of Caesar: A Tale of the Fall of the Rome Empire.

The aim of this story to present these days from the Pagan point of view, even as "Quo Vadis" presented them from the Christian point of view. It shows with brilliancy a world of culture, unity and social stability, where Christianity could win an adequate and abiding triumph.

DEEPING, WARWICK.

Uther and Igraine. With illustrations by W. Benda.

A passionate and curious tale, aglow with color, alive with movement, concerning the troubled love adventures of Uther of Britain, the chivalrous father of Arthur of the Table Round. Igraine, the novice, with the intense power for love and hate, suffocates in her gray gown, but when she casts it off she stands only at the edge of deep trouble.

DEY, FREDERIC van RENSSELAER.

A Gentleman of Quality. Colored frontispiece and cover inlay by Frank P. Fairbanks.

To be suddenly claimed as husband by a lovely woman, to be recognized as master by a good servant, to fall heir to title and money, and to be surrounded by people who claim to be old friends, is certainly an experience that comes to few men. A young American found himself in such a situation at a time when he was most in need of the things that make life pleasant, and he yielded to the temptation offered him—with strange results.

DELAND, MARGARET.

Dr. Lavendar's People. Illustrated by Lucius Hitchcock.

Dr. Lavendar's home, Old Chester, has become almost as real to the world as Mrs. Gaskell's Cranford, and its inhabitants so well known and beloved, that the author has actually received pleading letters imploring her not to let Dr. Lavendar die. The remembrance of the ripe sweetness of the old clergyman's nature is an effective antidote to modern pessimism. Danny, Willy King and his wife, Miss Harriet, and a score of others lead their full lives in the peaceful frame of this quiet inland village.

Old Chester Tales. Illustrated by Howard Pyle.

This book, with its companion volume, "Dr. Lavendar's People," have taken their places as classics among all English-reading people. The inhabitants of this peaceful, quaint little Pennsylvania town talk like real people, and like people we would wish to know. The plote of the stories are simple, but the author's style is so inimitable, that we learn that true romance is linked with the life of ordinary towns, if we have only eyes to see and hearts to understand and feel.

DICKSON, HARRIS.

The Black Wolf's Breed. Illustrated by C. M. Relyea.

A story of France in the old world and the new—happening in the reign of Louis XIV.

It is full of tender lovemaking and gallant fighting, and the pages are crowded with courtiers, adventurers, knights and ladies, Indian braves and stalwart frontiermen.

She That Hesitates. With illustrations by C. M. Relyea.

The scene of this dashing romance shifts from Dresden to St. Petersburg, in the reign of Peter the Great, and then to New Orleans. The hero is a French soldier of fortune, as brave a blade as ever rode through fiction. And the Princess who hesitates—but you must read the story to know how she that hesitates may be lost, and yet saved.

DILLON, MARY.

In Old Bellaire. With illustrations by C. M. Relyea.

A quaint old Pennyslvania town, with its cavalry school and dashing young officers at the east, and its students and intellectual mentors at the west, is the scene of this story of the early sixties. A prim little Puritan maiden has a handsome, fastidious, daring Southern-bred lover, and there is a fight with her conscience as to his claims.

The Rose of Old St. Louis. With illustrations by Andre Castaigne and C. M. Relyea.

A genuine love story of the days of the Louisiana Purchase—full of incident. The author has done her work in a delightful fashion, blending the historical and the romantic so deftly that each helps the other to the working out of a complete and satisfying impression. The dainty Pelagie, with the hero whose name she whispers, will be found sufficient to interest any reader with a heart for wooings and winnings.

DIX, BEULAH MARIE.

The Fair Maid of Graystones.

Miss Dix has made peculiarly her own the period of Cavalier and Roundhead. "The Fair Maid of Greystones" is an example of her subtle art, direct, graphic, almost uniquely innocent of dialect or technicality, pure and vigorous in style. It is full of a faithful, generous and sympathetic knowledge of life in an old English countryside just after the surrender of the Cavalier stronghold of Colchester to the Parliamentary forces in 1648.

DIXON, THOMAS, Jr.

Comrades. Illustrated by C. D. Williams

A novel dealing with the establishment of a Socialistic colony upon a deserted island off the coast of California. The band is headed by the son of a wealthy San Francisco business man, who deplores his son's Socialistic proclivities, and foresees a cure for his folly in allowing him full bent, secretly donating a million dollars to the cause.

The way of disillusionment is the course over which Mr. Dixon conducts his reader.

The Leopard's Spots. A Story of the White Man's Burden. 1865-1900. With illustrations by C. D. Williams.

The epic of the South; portraying in a most graphic manner the dramatic events of Destruction, Reconstruction and Upbuilding. The work is able and eloquent, and the love element that runs through the story is skilfully handled. It has been called the "most noteworthy book of recent years."

The Clansman. With illustratons by Arthur I. Keller.

Pictures of the fearful condition of a certain part of the South during the Reconstruction period, under the domination of negroes and carpetbaggers. Mr. Dixon is undoubtedly writing with great sincerity, candor, even self-restraint. It is a big subject to him, something very near to his heart, and through it all there is the ring of truth and honesty and hot-eyed indignation.

The One Woman. A story of Modern Utopia.

A story with the divorce problem, but, as well, a love story and character study of three strong men and two fascinating women. The hero is a popular preacher and Socialist, who abondons church and family in his infatuation for a Venus-like charmer with millions, who builds a temple for her "affinity." Nemesis lands the shattered idol in limbo, for killing his rival.

The Traitor. A story of the Fall of the Invisible Empire. With illustrations by C. D. Williams.

"The Clansman" ended with the political triumph of the Klu Klux Klan, an Invisible Empire. "The Traitor," the scene of which is laid in North Carolina (the closing volume of a remarkable trilogy of novels relating to Reconstruction), deals with the Secret Service organization, and is a thrilling story of love, adventure and treason.

DONNELL, ANNIE HAMILTON.

Rebecca Mary. Illustrated by Elizabeth Shippen Green.

The heroine of this story is a strait-laced little New England child, and her pathetic enjoyment of lonely pleasures and her unspoken longing for affection appeal strongly to all who love children. Her quaint, mispelled diary and Thomas Jefferson, her white rooster, are her two confidantes. The author has shown a rare insight into the heart of a lonely little girl, and tears and smiles follow close upon each other in the pages.

DOUGLAS, HUDSON.

The Lantern of Luck. Illustrated by Howard Chandler Christy.

Oswald Ingersoll, through the defalcation of his partner, loses his fortune, and is reduced to actual poverty because he insists upon paying all his obligations.

The efforts of this splendid man to rehabilitate himself, his unswerving determination to do the right thing in the face of the harsh criticism of his old friends, sustained only by the unfaltering devotion of the woman he loves, make a story of strong realism, one that is bound to appeal to all who believe in the ultimate triumph of right.

The Man in the Mirror. Illustrated by Will Grefé. Elaborate wrapper in colors and gold.

A story full of gallantry, humor and love. It concerns the doings of a European prince and a plain American man. The scene opens in Europe and shifts to New York and Long Island, whither the prince pursues the woman of his heart. There is a duel that is more humorous than tragic, and the story moves with a swing that is engrossing and fascinating.

A Million a Minute. With illustrations by Will Grefé.

The scene is laid partially in New York and partially in Paris, both places being vividly and accurately described. It is full of thrills and heart-throbs. It is a dainty love yarn, involving three men and a girl, with not a dull or trite situation in the book.

DOYLE, A. CONAN.

The Hound of the Baskervilles. Another adventure of Sherlock Holmes. With illustrations by Sidney Paget.

Dr. Doyle has provided a criminal who, as Mr. Holmes admitted, is indeed a foeman worthy of his steel. Hitherto he has found it comparatively easy to unmask his antagonists. But in this case he finds himself checkmated again and again. There is pitted against him a skill nearly equal to his own, and he wins the game almost by a hair.

Tales of Sherlock Holmes. With illustrations.

A collection of the best known "adventures," as those thrilling detective stories have been termed. Dr. Holmes tells us that his literary recognition began with "The Study in Scarlet," and this was followed by "The Sign of the Four," when a writer of real merit was welcomed. Besides these—the longest and most important and most absorbing of all his stories—the volume contains "A Case of Identity" and "A Scandal in Bohemia."

The Return of Sherlock Holmes.

In response to the urgent demands of a multitude of readers, to whom Holmes has become the most interesting personage in fiction, Dr. Doyle was compelled to bring him back to life, which he has done in "The Return of Sherlock Holmes." The thirteen stories are marked with the fertility and ingenuity of imagination characteristic of the previous writngs.

DREISER, THEODORE.

Sister Carrie. With frontispiece, and wrapper in colors.

An unflinching history of the physical and moral ruin of a man, for the sake of a woman who did not care—a pretty, self-centered things, who suffers his presence while he is useful to her, and then turns away. It is a strong work, and the characters are etched in incisively.

DUNCAN, NORMAN.

Doctor Luke of the Labrador. With frontispiece and inlay cover.

How the doctor came to the bleak Labrador coast, and there, in saving life, made expiation. In dignity, simplicity, humor, in sympathetic etching of a sturdy fisher people, Doctor Luke is worthy of great praise. EGGLESTON, EDWARD.

The Hoosier Schoolmaster: A story of Backwoods Life in Indiana. Revised, with an introduction and notes on the District by the author, with Character sketches by F. Opper and other illustrations by W. E. B. Starkweather.

Racy with Western primitive life, and ranks among the classics of American literature. "The Hoosier Schoolmaster" was the earliest of the dialect stories—the folk speech of the southern part of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois of nearly sixty years ago. It depicted the old Western life with essential truth—and this explains its long-continued popularity.

EGGLESTON, GEORGE CARY.

A Daughter of the South. Illustrated by E. Pollak, and decorated cover.

One of the best novels of the South that has been written. A love story as sweet and pure as any one could wish, is set in a vivid picture of war's terrible effects. Warm human sympathy relieves the picture, and there is a happy ending to the love episode.

Dorothy South: A Love Story of Virginia Just Before the War.. With illustrations by C. D. Williams.

A story of the Virginias and Carolinas as they really were before the war between the States. We see the planter as he was; we are taken into the life of the people; we are shown the hearts of men and womn. Light and shade are skilfully handled, and characters are clearly drawn and incidents are skilfully presented.

Irene of the Mountains. Illustrations and cover inlay by Frank T. Merrill.

Like his earlier novels, this is a charming story of the South, this time in old Virginia, with a spirited romance between a young girl fresh from the mountains and the only son of an old Virginia family. Especially interesting is the old mountain character, Judy Peters, who handles the mountaineer votes in one hand, while she mixes apple toddy or mint julep with the other.

Love Is the Sum of It All. With illustrations by Hermann Heyer.

"Love Is the Sum of It All" is first and last and all the time a romance of love and high purpose. There are two—even three—tender love stories embodied in it. There are two unusually interesting heroines, utterly unlike each other, but each possessed of a peculiar fascination which wins and holds the reader's sympathy, but the "sum of it all" is the intensely sympathetic love story.

The Master of Warlock: A Virginia War Story. Illustrated by C. D. Williams.

Like the other stories, this one is ideal in its purity of sentiment, and presents a Southern woman's character at a trying period in a beautiful light. Life in old Virginia is reproduced with fidelity. Adventure and tender love are skilfully intermingled. The soldiers in it are drawn with a masculine hand, but the same hand also depicts the tenderness and mystery of a true woman's heart.

Two Gentlemen of Virginia. Illustrated by Frank T. Merrill.

This story deals with a pretty girl who was saved from a convent in New Orleans, with an old gentleman of the old school, with a grand dame of the old school, and with two young men who are in love with the pretty girl. None of the admirers of Mr. Eggleston's works—and they number thousands—can afford to miss "Two Gentlemen of Virginia."

EVANS, AUGUSTA J.

St. Elmo. With eight full-page illustrations specially drawn for this edition by Culmer E. Barnes.

With the exception of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "Ben Hur" there has probably never been a novel written by an American author that has so endeared itself to the reading public. Not a line of it was penned that was not inspired by sincerity and belief in lofty ideals. It has done much to brighten the lives of hundreds of readers. It is a noble work, the work of a noble woman.

EYRE, ARCHIBALD.

The hero of this story starts out in life as the son of a mill-foreman, passes his youth in a factory town, goes to Harvard, and has the friendship of one of the students, who gives him his social impetus. He moves to New York, hangs out his lawyer's shingle and begins the ascent of fortune's hill. With all his ambition, he is too human to have left out of his life the tenderer emotions, and a woman plays no mean part in the development of the Honorable Peter Stirling.

Janice Meredith: A Story of the Revolution. With Colored Frontispiece and colored inlay cover.

Undoubtedly the most popular historical novel of the past decade. Janice. her pretty coquetries overlying the sterling qualities of her character, is one of the most lovable and interesting figures in modern fiction.

The Story of an Untold Love.

The unconventional purity and sweetness of the story are singularly striking. Never has a hero given a more perfect portrait of himself to the world in the wholesome spirit of humility. He tells, through all the chapters of this modern little story, how love can live on and maintain its ideals even amidst the tangles of modern existence.

Tattle-Tales of Cupid. Illustrations in color by Henry Hutt.

Some indiscreet revelations of the little god of love made to Paul Leicester Ford and retold by him in a manner as sweet, amusing and refreshing as youth. All the little unpleasant knots that Cupid has bungled over are gently disentangled and new ones made in stronger places "for better or worse." A pretty bit of fiction as an introduction to Poul Leicester Ford's works and a charming addition to a Ford collection.

FORD, SEWELL.

Cherub Devine.

An aristocratic little lady is brought into daily contact with a specimen of the "newly rich," in the form of "Cherub" Devine. She considers him a rather heavy and vulgar young man and gives him "short talks" on becoming a more graceful and agile ornament of society. He, in return, gives her and her father several lessons in finance and common sense.

Shorty McCabe. Illustrated by Francis Vaux Wilson.

"Shorty" is a combination of good nature, wit and humor; he catches your fancy and makes you a firm friend. He longs for "a life's sentence to stay in little old New York," and he surely would be priceless as a chronicler of the every-day events of the big city, for he has the typical American idea of wit and genuine fun.

Side-Stepping With Shorty. Illustrated by Francis Vaux Wilson.

Sprightliness, sympathy with human nature and an abounding sense of humor are the requisites for "Side-Stepping with Shorty." When once the reader has acquired the necessary momentum, there is no stopping until he reaches the last page. For Shorty makes no pauses for observation; he sees in transit, thinks while on the move, and delivers himself of his wit at every breath. The twenty skits present people with their foibles lying close to their saner ideals.

FRASER, MRS. HUGH.

The Custom of the Country: Tales of New Japan.

Impressionistic little tales of the land of cherry blossoms, tea gardens and fireflies—told with an intense sympathy and a liberality of view possible only to one who has lived among them. FULLER, ROBERT H.

The Golden Hope: A Story of the Time of Alexander the Great.

Among stories that help to recreate the classic past this tale of the times of Alexander the Great will take an honorable place. The pictures of the life in democratic Athens, the loves of Clearchus and Artemesia, of Thais and Chares, and the stirring scenes incident to Alexander's conquest of the East are told with a vigor and sympathy that make the dead ashes of history glow into living flame.

A story of American village life, abounding with quaint characters, among whom Calliope Marsh with a feminized David Harum wit and wisdom is well in the foreground. A welcome addition to the books of homely American life.

The Loves of Pelleas and Etarre.

The author of "Friendship Village" gives us a unique book, and it does not seem rash to prophesy that it will take a place of its own in our literature. Because Pelleas and Etarre after their fifty years of married life are still so completely in love with each other, they are also in love with the whole world. and it is this spirit that keeps them perennially young. The whole book is strong with the quiet power of true love.

Two charming love affairs, which are admirably handled, a vein of piquant sentiment and a style of unmatched grace unite to make this story a golden nugget among novels.

GALLIZIER, NATHAN.

The Sorceress of Rome.

For downright adventure, intrigue and love, few romances present more dramatic possibilities than "The Sorceress of Rome." Otto is a striking and pathetic figure. Description of the city, the gorgeous ceremonials of the court and the revels are a series of wonderful pictures; the action is terrific at times, and mystic scenes and prophecies give a singular fascination to the tale, which is strong and forceful in its portrayal.

GARLAND, HAMLIN.

The Captain of the Gray-Horse Troop.

Mr. Garland is at his best in "The Captain of the Gray Horse." Strong, direct, dramatic, with the human touch that rings true to historical fact. A work of remarkable realism and dramatic intensity.

GAY, MAUDE CLARK.

The Knitting of the Souls: A Romance of Seventeenth Century Boston. With illustrations by Frank T. Merrill.

While Virginia and its neighboring States have been so freely drawn upon in the field of Colonial fiction, the impressive early history of Boston has remained undeveloped by novelists of sufficient power, with the exception of Hawthorne. to do it justice. Maude Clark Gay has found here a triumphant opportunity, and her book will at once take rank with the strongest American fiction of recent years.

GEORGE, HENRY, JR.

The Romance of John Bainbridge.

Its chief value is in its vivid portrayal of the means by which men have acquired vast wealth, and the use they have made of it in controlling legislation, press, university and pulpit. It is the most important contribution to the vital, social, political and economic literature of America that has appeared for years.

GIBSON, CHARLES D.

My Lady and Allan Darke.

An exciting tale of early plantation days in Virginia, brightly written, with an undercurrent of dainty romance. A wilful but yet a most winsome girl is the heroine. There is a cleverly concealed mystery in this thrilling plot unguessed to the end.

GLASS, MONTAGUE.

Potash and Perlmutter. Illustrated.

This is an absolutely new kind of story. It is a cross-section of business life. It seems not so much like a story as like sitting in a business office watching human nature in its workshop. The varying fortunes of these kindly men, how they were stung occasionally, how they outwitted the other fellow even more frequently, how by business insight and diligence they grew more and more successful. make up both a fascinating story and a sort of business education.

GLYN, ELINOR.

Elizabeth Visits America.

Elizabeth has had a tiff with her husband. and flown to the arms of her great-aunt Maria and is whisked across the Atlantic upon an extended American tour. The gist of the book lies between these two poles, and consists of Elizabeth's letters to her mother describing her experiences. The Mayor's Wife. With illustrations by Alice Barber Stephens, and an inlay cover picture by Clarence F. Underwood.

A detective story without a detective, but none the less entertaining because of the absence of that irrepressible official. The story seems to come toward the reader from the page and take hold of him in its compelling grip. The suspense is increased from chapter to chapter, and the solution, awaited with breathless interest, is not given till the very end.

Tales of the Argonauts.

Emmy Lou is irresistibly lovable, because she is so absolutely real.. It is a wonderfully human and appreciative book that will bring tears of delight to the eyes of any one who has ever loved a fledging slip of a girl.

MARTIN, HELEN R.

Tillie: A Mennonite Maid. With illustrations by Florence Scovel Shinn.

The little "Mennonite Maid" who wanders through these pages is something quite new in fiction. She is ambitious for self-development amid the most deadening surroundings, and hungry for books and beauty and love; and she comes into her inheritance at the end.

MASON, A. E. W.

Clementina. With illustrations by Bernard Partridge. Bound in extra vellum cloth, stamped in colors.

The author of "The Four Feathers" gives us a delightful romance told in a spirited way of the early Eighteenth Century, when James Stuart was a young man and in love with the charming Princess Sobieski.

The Four Feathers.

"The Four Feathers" is a story of action. The feathers are white—the badge of cowardice—presented by the hero's brother officers, and his fiancée, upon the discovery of his flunking at the outbreak of the Soudan War. How he redeems himself and wins back the love of the heroine is the story, a stirring one of intense interest.

Lawrence Clavering.

The story of a gallant Jacobite gentleman and a charming and intrepid young Jacobite maiden, and the disastrous attempt of 1715. As a story of personal adventure it is original in plot and is well written.

MATHEWS, FRANCES AYMAR.

My Lady Peggy Goes to Town. Illustrated by Harrison Fisher.

A sparkling comedy of the days of George III. A heroine almost too charming to be true is Peggy, and it is a churlish reader, who is not at the end of the first chapter prostrate before her red slippers. The most whimsical and delicate humor pervades the story.

MERRICK, LEONARD.

Lynch's Daughter. With illustrations by George Brehm.

A story of to-day, of love versus "tainted millions." To Betty Lynch, the daughter of "old man Lynch" of Wall Street, comes, through much stress, the meaning of an ideal, and the beauty and dignity of simple living. Mr. Merrick has developed an absorbing and very human story out of one of the vital problems of present-day ethics.

MERRIMAN, HENRY SETON.

Barlasch of the Guard. With illustrations by The Kinneys.

A gray and faithful veteran of Napoleon's guard devotes himself heart and soul to the service of a girl of Dantzig, who has been married and parted at the church door. He joins Louis d'Arragon in the search of her husband, and together they witness the disaster and horror, the snowy agony of the Russian retreat.

MERWIN, SAMUEL.

The Road Builders. With illustrations by F. B. Masters.

The plot centers in the struggle to build a little connecting link of railway. Financial life or death depends upon the hero putting it through, and no trick known to Wall Street strategy or legal chicanery is left untried.

MERWIN, SAMUEL, and WEBSTER, HENRY K.

Comrade John.

A subtle satire on the modern tendency to accept new religions. Herman Stein had invented a religion of "toil and triumph"; and planned to exploit it in showman style, having as his assistant a young architect and a young, beautiful and emotional woman. The architect's duty would be to add finish to Stein's shrewd but badly expressed conceptions, while the woman's duty would be to interpret them to the world and win converts.

MICHELSON, MIRIAM.

In the Bishop's Carriage. With illustrations by Harrison Fisher.

Nance Olden, a girl of mettle, gay, emotional, unscrupulous—a little desperado in petticoats—riots in the foreground of this story. Her varied experiences to the day that she emerges a happy wife and a triumphant actress hold the reader in thrall.

MIGHELS, PHILIP VERRILL.

Bruvver Jim's Baby.

In "Bruvver Jim's Baby," Mr. Mighels, who has a keen understanding of child nature, tells the story of a little boy in a Western mining camp. The baby has been lost, and is cared for by a rough bachelor miner and his pals, and the humor of the situation is apparent. Bruvver Jim is a homely philosopher, given to witty aphorisms, and his relations with the baby are laughable and touching.

The Furnace of Gold. Illustrated by J. N. Marchand.

The scenes are in Nevada and represent a wild scramble for gold, with all the accompanying excitement attendant to locating a new mining camp. The hero is a romantic Westerner, and the reviewers have described this story as the best Western romance since "The Virginian."

MILLER, ELIZABETH.

The City of Delight. A Love Drama of the Siege and Fall of Jerusalem. With illustrations by F. X. Leyendecker.

To make a love story of the first Christian century more vivid, more human and more intense than the romances of to-day—is the feat Elizabeth Miller has accomplished. A little group of most vital men and women stand out in splendid relief against the magnificent spectacle of Jerusalem's fall.

Saul of Tarsus.

The same splendid imagination that reconstructed the Age of the Pharaohs and revivified the glory of Egypt in "The Yoke," here plays with lambent flame about the great Roman world in the years immediately succeeding the Crucifixion. The Apostle Paul, the Martyr Stephen, Herod Agrippa and the Emperors Tiberius and Caligula are among the mighty figures that move through the pages. A remarkable religious romance.

The Yoke.

Against the historical background of the days when the Children of Israel were delivered from the bondage of Egypt, the author has sketched a romance of compelling charm. It is a biblical novel as great as any since "Ben Hur."

MITCHELL, JOHN AMES.

The Pines of Lory. Decorations by A. D. Blashfield.

The central characters of this story are a man and a maiden marooned, unintentionally, on one of the St. Lawrence islands, where nothing seemed alive and moving but the waves. They are sole companions for a year and a day—and when rescued, they find love has been growing around them, and they decide to be companions for evermore.

MITCHELL, S. WEIR.

The Adventures of Francois. With illustrations by Andre Castaigne.

The hero is a young French lad, whose life phases show him successively as foundling, thief, juggler and fencing master—a vagabond of singular charm. The French Revolution with its dramatic background of broken hearts, disappointed hopes and grand achievements is the stage upon which this picturesque life lives its day.

Constance Trescot.

A powerful story of a woman's vendetta, the scenes of which are laid in a Southern city just after the Civil War. This novel presents in Constance Trescot a psychological study of a New England woman of splendid character and of high birth and culture. It shows how even a woman of this refinement will degenerate when the purpose of destruction becomes a fixed idea. It is a brilliant study of the effect which a strong passion has upon a woman's mind.

MOWBRAY, J. P.

A Journey to Nature. With illustrations.

Casual observation, curiosity, sympathetic attention, sentimental interest, affection, love and chastened disappointments—these are the successive notes in the gamut of the relationship between a man and a maiden. It is a familiar sequence, but not often presented with such delicacy and charm.

MUNN, CHARLES CLARK.

The Girl from Tim's Place. With illustrations by Frank T. Merrill.

Figuring in the pages of this story there are several strong characters. Typical New England folk and an especially sturdy one, old Cy Walker, through whose instrumentality Chip, the heroine, comes to happiness and fortune. There is a chain of comedy, tragedy, pathos and love, which makes a dramatic story.

The Hermit: A Story of the Wilderness. With illustrations by A. B. Shute.

A thrilling double mystery in the depths of the Maine wilderness, involving the character who gives the title to the book. It is, moreover, a genuine old-fashioned love story of the kind that the public never tires of reading. The humor is rich, and the characters strong and well sustained.

Myrtle Baldwin. With illustrations by Henry Roth.

A strong and interesting presentation of life in the under world of a great city. In it we see the gentle and lovable "Myrtle Baldwin" transplanted from the island home in the sea to the city, and pass with her through the many pitfalls that line her pathway. That she is one girl in a hundred that meets the same temptations and conquers them undefiled is the keynote of the volume.

Rockhaven. With illustrations by Frank T. Merrill.

It is a clean, forceful picture of men and women as we know them. It has to do with emotions, schemes, plots, and counterplots, joy nd sadness, success and disappointment of the present time. In delineating New England traits and speech Mr. Munn is at his best, and his best is wholesome and entertaining.

Uncle Terry: A Story of the Maine Coast. With illustrations by Helena Higginbotham.

A hearty and truthful tale of New England character in its best qualities of sturdy purpose, honest simplicity, and a certain trait which one might term sweetness at the core. Uncle Terry is an estimable type of hardy fisherman, honest and plain-spoken, but manifesting in his phrasing a subtle sarcasm that is amusing.

NICHOLSON, MEREDITH.

The House of a Thousand Candles. With a frontispiece in colors by Howard Chandler Christy.

The hero of this story is required to spend a whole year in an isolated house, which according to his grandfathers will shall then become his. If the terms of the will be violated the house goes to a young woman of whom he has never heard, and whom the will, furthermore, forbids him to marry. A story of mystery and hidden treasure.

NICHOLSON, MEREDITH.—Continued.

The Main Chance. With illustrations by Harrison Fisher.

A "traction deal" in a Western city is the pivot about which the action of this clever story revolves. But it is in the character-drawing of the principals that the author's strength lies. Exciting incidents develop their inherent strength and weakness, and if virtue wins in the end, it is quite in keeping with the carefully-planned antecedents.

The Port of Missing Men. With illustrations by Clarence F. Underwood.

A stirring drama involving the throne of Austria is enacted among the Virginia hills. The love story of an American heroine, who follows her heart against her reason, and of a hero who is heir to much Austrian greatness but who, after doing service for his country, renounces all for America, hold the reader enthralled. War and strategy lend adventure to the tale.

Rosalind at Red Gate. With illustrations by Arthur I. Keller.

A story of two girls as like as two peas and constantly being mistaken for one another, of a susceptible young Irishman, who goes to the rescue of beauty in distress and blunders persistently, of a brace of brothers, one deeply wronged and forgiving, the other villainous and revengeful, and a maiden aunt and an egregious young lover. A distracting mystery story.

NORRIS, FRANK.

Blix.

Frank Norris has written in "Blix" just what such a woman's name would imply—a story of a frank, fearless girl comrade to all men who are true and honest because she is true and honest. How she saved the man she fishes and picnics with in a spirit of outdoor platonic friendship, makes a splendid story.

McTeague: A Story of San Francisco.

Since Bret Harte and the Forty-Niner, no one has written of California life with the vigor and accuracy of Frank Norris. "McTeague" has settled his right to a place in American literature. It is one of the best novels America has produced.

A Man's Woman.

Arctic exploration is the theme upon which the whole tale hangs; but it is at the same time essentially a woman's book, and the story works itself out in the solution of a difficulty that is continually presented in real life—the wife's attitude in relation to her husband when both have well-defined careers.

The Octopus: A story of California.

A story of wheat raising and railroad greed in California. It immediately made a place for itself. It is full of enthusiasm and poetry and conscious strength. One cannot read it without a responsive thrill of sympathy for the earnestness, the breadth of purpose, and the verbal power of the man.

The Pit: A Story of Chicago.

This is a story of Chicago, telling of a deal in the wheat pit, and holds the reader from the beginning. The social existence, the gambling in stocks are all vigorously portrayed, making a very human tale of modern life and love.

NORTON, ROY.

The Garden of Fate. Illustrated by Joseph Clement Coll.

The colorful romance of an American grrl in Morocco, and of a beautiful garden, whose beauty and traditions of strange subtle happenings were closed to the world by a Sultan's seal. O'NEILL, ROSE CECIL.

The Ordeal of Elizabeth. With frontispiece.

A love story which will force every woman that reads the book to place herself in the position of Elizabeth, and ask herself what she would have done if subjected to the same ordeal. The picture which it represents of the social life of New York is realistic and yet without satire.

OSBOURNE, LLOYD.

Infatuation. With illustrations by Karl Anderson.

The strange infatuation of a young girl of charm and refinement for a man not possessing the usual qualities of a hero and the stranger transformation wrought in his common clay by her "genius for loving" are set forth with stunning and extraordinary vigor in this boldly unconventional story.

ORMOND, FREDERIC.

The Three Keys. With frontispiece in color by Harrison Fisher, and half-tone illustrations.

How the hero of this story takes stocks from one safe, uses them as security, and returns them to another safe without the real owner knowing, makes a story that keeps the reader on the qui vive all the time; but, aside from the money complication, the hero has to extricate himself from a situation that also involves two women, one of whom is his fiancée.

OUIDA (Louise de la Ramee).

A Prince of Europe: or Helianthus.

The Kingdom is imaginary, but it seems evident that the author intended the characters to portray certain royal personages in Europe. It is the old tragedy of the prince of the blood who may not marry the woman he loves. "Helianthus" is the last work of this gifted woman, and shows throughout her passionate love for humanity, her intense love of liberty.

PARRY, DAVID M.

The Scarlet Empire. With illustrations by Herman C. Wall.

This romance of socialism is a keen bit of satire and a romantic counterblast to "Looking Backward." A young socialist, by strange chance, finds himself on the lost island of Atlantis under the sea. Here a thoroughgoing social democracy is in active operation. He passes through many exciting adventures, has an enthralling love affair, and learns by the way how destructive to all the interests of life, how ruinous to the State are the principles of socialism when carried to their logical conclusion.

PATERNOSTER, G. SIDNEY.

The Second Generation. With illustrations by Fletcher C. Ramson, and inlay cover.

It is a story that proves how, in some cases, the greatest harm a rich man may do his children is to leave them his money. The first generation is the fine typical American that has risen by his own efforts from nothing to riches—an aristocracy of achievement. The second is often the arrogant, hateful, ridiculous snob.

RIVES, HALLIE ERMINIE.

The Castaway. With illustrations in color by Howard Chandler Christy.

The book takes its title from a saying of Byron's: "Three great men ruined in one year—a king, a cad and a castaway." SCOTT, JOHN REED.—Continued.

The Colonel of the Red Huzzars. Illustrated by Clarence F. Underwood.

The mythical kingdom of Valeria is the background of a romance between a young American army officer, who becomes a grand duke, and a beautiful princess. The story is full of love and intrigue of court life, masques and duels.

SEAWELL, MOLLY ELLIOT.

The Fortunes of Fifi.. Illustrated in color by T. de Thulstrup.

Fifi is a glad, mad little French actress. Beautiful and ambitious, talented and mischievous, she ventures on some remarkable performances, in which the Emperor, the Pope, a lottery ticket, a monkey and a blue satin bed are all somehow involved. A delicious comedy of youth, high spirits, captivating people and charming sentiment.

Francezka. Illustrated by Harrison Fisher.

Miss Seawell has told a story of youth, splendor and tragedy with an art which links it with summer dreams; which drowns the somber in the picturesque, which makes pain and vice a stage wonder. The period is the first half of that most fascinating, picturesque and epoch-making century—the eighteenth—and the story is tempered with the gay, mocking debonair philosophy of the time.

Throckmorton: A Novel of old Virginia.

In the midst of the patrician elegance of those mannerly times is born a man with the unrest of genius. He has been a colonel in the Northern Army, a fact that makes his coming back to his ancient Southern estate not quite so joyous as he had hoped. His courtship of a charming girl, the mischievous interference of his own son, his disappointment, and final settling down are told with many touches of humor and pathos.

SHAFER, SARA ANDREW.

The Day Before Yesterday.

A delightful glimpse into the life of the Central West before the unrest of recent years. It bears the dainty distinction of old-time courtesy and the day when America partook more of the quiet of the old world. The little daughter of a physician, mischievous but lovable, is the central character, and the author sketches with rare fidelity to the childish spirit of the neighbors and their social activities as they appeared to Rachael—a little maid of yesterday.

SIBLEY, EDWIN DAY.

Stillman Gott, Farmer and Fisherman.

A tender, beautiful, sunshiny, strong story of life on the coast of Maine. The plot involves a young farmer who went to Boston to better his fortune, leaving a sweetheart behind. Her ambitious mother cleverly puts the daughter in the way of a wealthy New Yorker, and complications follow. Old Still, the real figure in the story, with his wise sayings, shrewd ways and homely wholeheartedness, gives a strong New England twang to the narrative.

SINCLAIR, MAY.

The Tysons. With frontispiece in colors.

Nevill Tyson is a man of plebeian birth, with a veneer of cleverness and polish. His wife is very pretty but is generally regarded as a fool. She loves her husband with complete devotion, but its true nature is beyond his comprehension and a misunderstanding involving others arises. A study of a woman that makes a vivid impression on the reader.

SINCLAIR, UPTON.

The Jungle: A Novel of Chicago.

This is the terrible and unforgettable book. It is the story of a Lithuanian family in Chicago's "Packing-town," and there has never been any such overwhelmingly realistic novel of American life.

SMITH, ALICE PRESCOTT.

Montlivet. With frontispiece by Jay Hambidge.

The end of the seventeenth century in Canada, English and French rivalries, Indian friends and foes and a prisoner—such are the materials of a story into which Mrs. Smith infuses life and freshness. The story interest centers around Armand de Montlivet, a French trader, and Mary Starling, an English prisoner, in disguise, whom Montlivet rescues.

SMITH, F. HOPKINSON.

Caleb West. Illustrated.

This is not only the best story that Mr. Smith has written, but it is one of the strongest, manliest, breeziest stories America has produced. It is thoroughly typical of American versatility, energy and achievement. Mr. Smith has the happy faculty of investing the building of a lighthouse with a lively interest, introducing several strongly individual characters, not a few dramatic situations, and a natural love story.

Colonel Carter of Cartersville. Illustrated by E. W. Kemble and the author.

A fine old Southern gentleman bears in his mind a railroad scheme, upon which he is volubly building a fortune, bolstering up the declining faith of his creditors with the same frail material. His friends doubt, but after all the brave childlike faith of the Colonel is vindicated, and even "Chad," the faithful negro who cooked and served the "canvas backs" for the Colonel, and who relieved the Colonel's financial straits by his accumulated "tips"—"Chad" is fixed for life.

A Gentleman Vagabond.

An amusing and sharp-sighted study of a Southern gentleman in reduced circumstances, but glorying in the beautiful theory that the good things of the world are his, nevertheless—a theory so strong that his friends are almost hypnotized into the same belief. A loving portrayal of a delightful "vagabond."

Tom Grogan. With illustrations by Charles S. Reinhart.

The author's interest centers around a plucky, very human woman, who is in the midst of groups of men whose plots and antagonism she successfully meets. A first-hand portraiture of life under exciting industrial conditions, mellowed by Mr. Smith's exquisite humor.

SOMERVILLE, CHARLES and BUCHANAN, THOMPSON.

A Woman's Way. Illustrated with Scenes from the Play.

Is the story of marital troubles which arise from misunderstandings, which too often grow up between the unemployed rich because there is no common ground upon which a husband and wife can center their interests. "The Woman's Way" was the way that averted scandal and avoided divorce and won back a recreant husband. The novel is as entertaining as the play, and that is saying much, as the play scored a tremendous success.

STACPOOLE, H. DeVERE.

The Blue Lagoon.

The story of two castaways, a boy and a girl, who, alone on an island, grow into primitive beings, discovering for themselves the facts of love and life.

STANLEY, CAROLINE ABBOT.

A Modern Madonna.

How a woman's character may develop in strength and tenderness in the crucible of suffering is shown with remarkable force in this story of American life. A splendid plot handled with power, showing the glow of goodness and justice that finally overcomes the evil that men do.

STANTON, CORALIE.

The Adventuress. With color frontispiece by Harrison Fisher, and attractive inlay cover in colors.

As a penalty for her crimes, her evil nature, her flintlike callousness, her more than inhuman cruelty, her contempt for the laws of God and man, she was condemned to bury her magnificent personality, her transcendant beauty, her almost superhuman charms, in gilded obscurity at a King's left hand. A powerful story powerfully told.

STEELE, JACK.

A Husband by Proxy. Cover inlay and wrapper in colors and gold.

An alluring, baffling, thrilling detective story, the scene of which is laid in New York. A young criminologist, but recently arrived in the city, is drawn into the mystery, partly through financial need and partly through his interest in a beautiful woman who is concerned in it. The hero, at first curious, then personally interested in the woman, who seems at times the simplest child and again a perfect mistress of intrigue, enters into the work with consummate skill.

STEPHENS, ROBERT NEILSON.

An Enemy to the King.

An historical romance of the sixteenth century, and a royally strong piece of fiction, describing the adventures of a young French nobleman at the Court of Henry IV. and on the field with Henry of Navarre. Brilliant as a romance novel and equally brilliant as a play.

STEPHENS and WESTLEY.

Clementina's Highwayman. With illustrations by Adelaide Everhart.

The story is laid in the mid-Georgian period. A wager made in jest results in the hero's turning "highwayman." Clementina's coach is the first "hold-up," and the account of his endeavors to extricate himself from the ensuing complications, both humorous and serious, make a fascinating tale.

STRATTON-PORTER, GENE.

At the Foot of the Rainbow. With illustrations in color by Oliver Kemp, decorations by Ralph Fetcher Seymour, and inlay cover in colors.

The scene of this charming, idyllic love story, by the author of "Freckles," is laid in Central Indiana. The story is one of devoted friendship, and tender self-sacrificing love; the friendship that gives freely without return, and the love that seeks first the happiness of the object.

Freckles. With illustrations and decorations by E. Stetson Crawford.

"Freckles" is a nameless waif when the tale opens, but the way in which he takes hold of life; the nature friendships he forms in the great Limberlost Swamp, where his patron, McLean, is lumbering; the manner in which everyone who meets him succumbs to the charm of his engaging personality, and his love story with "The Angel" are full of real sentiment. It is a book which leaves "a pleasant taste in the mouth" and a warm feeling about the heart. Everybody is enchanted with "Freckles."

STREETER, JOHN WILLIAMS.

The Fat of the Land: A Story of an American Farm.

This book refutes the oft-repeated statement that "farming doesn't pay," and shows that brain power directed to farm management will be as liberally recompensed as when put to work in any other line. Aside from its value to the man on the farm its vivacity, frankness and good humor make it more interesting to the nature-loving reader than if it were a novel of the most exciting kind.

TARKINGTON, BOOTH.

The Gentleman from Indiana. With a frontispiece.

A strong and realistic novel of love and politics in the Middle West. The pictures of a country editor's life in Indiana are extraordinarily real; but the final charm of the tale lies in the delicacy and the romance of the love story that forms its basis as well as its sustained interest.

The Guest of Quesnay. Illustrations by W. J. Duncan.

Through an automobile accident in the streets of Paris a young American loses the memory of his life that had gone before—a life which was rapidly winning him one of the most unsavory reputations on the Continent. He becomes the charge of a friend, who undertakes a most astonishing method of restoration.

Monsieur Beaucaire. With illustrations by C. D. Williams. Red Cloth, gold stamping and gold top, and decorative end-sheets.

A historical gem in which Prince Louis Philippe de Valois, cousin of Louis XV. of France, while living in England as "Monsieur Beaucaire," plays a pretty part against an unprincipled Englishman. As dainty as a Watteau painting, and the very flower of romance.

TAYLOR, BERT LESTON.

The Charlatans. Frontispiece in color and illustrations by George Brehm.

Hope Winston, the most charming young person in the world, goes to the metropolis to get a musical education. She gets it with a vengeance at The Colossus, a huge conservatory run on strictly modern principles. The revelation of the methods of musical quacks amounts to an expose, but it amounts also to a tremendous quantity of fun. Mr. Taylor bubbles over with his merry spirit. His heroine learns more than music—she learns her own ability in many directions.

TERHUNE, ALBERT PAYSON.

The Fighter.

Caleb Conover, whose career had "short cutted" from tally-boy in the railway yards to president of a railway line, is the "fighter," his heritage of blood urging him on in his Napoleonic progress. The author presents in this man a relentless portrayal of outward vulgarity and savagery, and a sympathetic insight into his better nature as shown to Desiree, the real woman of his rought heart.

THANET, OCTAVE.

By Inheritance. Illustrated by Thomas Fogarty. Elaborate wrapper in colors and gold.

With the genuine story teller's art, the author of this really serious study of negro conditions, has produced a novel that claims not only the reader who is interested in this problem, but also those who simply want to be entertained. A wealthy New England spinster with the most elaborate plans for the education of the negroes goes to visit her nephew in Arkansas, where she learns the needs of the colored race first hand and begins to lose her theories. The plot is most interesting and the human happenings are vivid and dramatic.

The Lion's Share. With illustrations by E. M. Ashe.

The hero is a United States army officer who, when the time comes for him either to uphold the laws and Constitution of his country as he has sworn to do, or protect and aid his relatives in a criminal proceeding, decides on the latter course, easing his conscience by resigning his commission. An irresistible story of mystery.

The Man of the Hour. With illustrations by Lucius W. Hitchcock.

This, the first long novel by a famous writer of short stories, combines more American qualities than any book of many years. It has American humor, American optimism, American vigor, and above all the American ideal of love and labor. It is a concentration of American problems, especially as they are found in the Middle West.

THOMPSON, MAURICE.

Alice of Old Vincennes. With illustrations by F. C. Yohn and Howard Chandler Christy.

A novel of Revolutionary days in the West, containing one of the most superb chapters in fiction—the raising of the "Emblem of Glory" over old Fort Vincennes. The character of Alice, beautiful, youthful, buoyant, is a splendid addition to the favorite heroines of historical fiction. A high pulsing, youthful story.

THURSTON, KATHERINE CECIL.

The Fly on the Wheel. With frontispiece in color by Harrison Fisher.

In characterization, in dramatic power and in the brilliancy of storytelling, "The Fly on the Wheel" is as good a story as Mrs. Thurston has ever written. The hero, strong, self-willed, successful, but bound down in a routine from which he is helpless to escape; and the heroine, young ,eager, impulsive, vibrant, interest you at once. The story increases in interest and strength as it moves along, and ends in a climax of intense dramatic power.

The Gambler: A Novel. With illustrations by John Campbell.

In "The Gambler" Mrs. Thurston shows her ability to construct a well-knit and engrossing plot, full of dramatic situations and developed with the same skill and charm of narration that made the success of "The Masquerader." It tells of a high-strung young Irish woman who has a passion for gambling, inherited from a long line of sporting ancestors. She has a high sense of honor, too, and that causes complications. She is a very human, lovable character, and love saves her.

The Masquerader. With illustrations by Clarence F. Underwood.

Two men, not related but looking absolutely alike—one married, the other a bachelor—secretly change places. The novel develops along lines new to fiction, and is a forceful, compelling story; not a story of style and words, but a story of doing, a history of life in action. The moral problem involved is a strange one.

THWING, EUGENE.

The Red-Keggers. With illustrations by W. H. Dunton.

A story of a Michigan farming and lumbering community. The people live and love and fight for their living and grow with their own woods, but to a diviner purpose. A strong, dramatic story with a humor that is spontaneous and natural.

TILTON, DWIGHT.

The Golden Greyhound. A novel. With illustrations by E. Pollak.

A thoroughly good story that keeps you guessing to the very end, and never attempts to instruct or reform you. It is a strictly up-to-date story of love and mystery, with wireless telegraph and all the modern improvements. The events nearly all take place on a big Atlantic liner and the romance of the deep is skilfully made to serve as a setting for the romance, old as mankind, yet always new, involving our hero.

My Lady Laughter: A Romance of Boston Town in the Days of the Great Siege. With illustrations by Charles H. Stephens.

A lively historical nocel of Boston during the great siege. Glimpses are given of such characters as Washington, Hancock, Adams, Warren and Paul Revere. The heroine, a vivacious Tory beauty, turns patriot, a fact which is known only to a few who are in her confidence. Thus, by having the inside track on both armies, she uses her woman's wit to advantage for the patriot cause.

TOLSTOY, COUNT LEO.

Resurrection. Translated by Mrs. Louise Maude. Illustrated by Pasternak.

A novel of surpassing interest and considered by all critics to be the masterpiece of the great Russian. The story is intensely dramatic and it was but a natural step to the stage, where the dramatized version has been produced with tremendous success.

TOMPKINS, JULIET WILBOR.

Doctor Ellen. With a frontispiece in colors by R. Ford Harper.

A book that will be read with genuine enjoyment by a wide circle of readers. It is a love story, a character story, and the history of a brave woman's struggle against ignorant prejudice, all moulded into a single narrative. A brave, wholesome story.

Open House.

The story of the development of a young woman who upon the death of supposedly wealthy parents finds herself penniless. Mentally ill from the efforts of idleness and discontent, she attracts the attention of a physician, who offers her a position in his office and a home with himself and sister, and she comes to realize her own latent executive ability and learns from the tactful humorous, hard-working doctor and the cheerful patients of this "open house" a healthy, happy outlook on life.

TOWNLEY, HOUGHTON.

The Bishop's Emeralds. With a frontispiece by Will Grefé, and full-page illustrations by Burt Knight.

A story of English Church society, involving the dashing wife of the Bishop of Ripley, who, in her early life, secretly eloped with a man who deserted her after the birth of a girl baby, and later caused her to be informed that he and the child were dead. As the marriage had been secret, she returns to her old home and becomes a devoted church worker, wedding the poor curate in the guise of a spinster. Many years later her rightful husband and her daughter come into her life again, and she is entangled in a net of scandal.

The Gay Lord Waring. Illustrated by Will Grefé.

A story of smart society in England. A young girl is injured at a hunting party and rewards the man responsible for the accident with her love. Lord Waring's brother Mark, a selfish and cowardly scoundrel, menaces their happiness, and some exceedingly exciting incidents develop.

The Scarlet Feather. Illustrated by Will Grefé.

A beautiful woman yields to the temptation of altering a check to meet her financial needs. The fact that she is the wife of a clergyman complicates the situation and makes more necessary the suppression of the scandal. She finds a way out of the difficulty, but at a fearful price.

TRACY, LOUIS.

The Captain of the Kansas.

A story of love and the salt sea—of a helpless ship whirled into the hands of cannibal Fuegians—of desperate fighting and tender romance, enhanced by the art of a master of story telling who describes with his wonted felicity and power of holding the reader's attention. Filled with the swing of adventure.

The Great Mogul.

All through the charming and adventurous tale, "The Great Mogul," there is the fascination of the unexpected, as has been the case with all the novels written by this necromancer in fiction. While following the fortunes of Roger Sainton, Walter Mowbray and the splendid array of picturesque characters surrounding these two lovable English heroes the reader is spell-bound by the portrayal.

The Message. Illustrated by Joseph Cummings Chase.

A bit of parchment many, many years old, telling of a priceless ruby secreted in ruins far in the interior of Africa is the "message" found in the figurehead of an old vessel. A mystery develops which the reader will follow with breathless interest.

The Pillar of Light.

The pillar thus designated was a lighthouse, and the author tells with exciting detail the terrible dilemma of its cut-off inhabitants. The magnificent realism of the lighthouse and its perils, the intense conviction of the author brings the very scenes he pictures before the eyes of the reader.

TRACY, LOUIS.—Continued.

The Red Year: A Story of the Indian Mutiny.

The never-to-be-forgotten events of 1857 form the background of this story. The hero who begins as lieutenant and ends as Major Malcolm, distinguishes himself, especially by riding across the risen country from Lucknow to Allahabad, and again from Allahabad to Delhi. He has as stirring a military career as the most jaded novel reader could wish. A powerful book.

The Wheel o' Fortune. With illustrations by James Montgomery Flagg.

The story deals with the finding of a papyrus containing the particulars of the hiding of some of the treasures of the Queen of Sheba. It is conceived with ingenuity and carried through with great skill, and the glamour of mystery and great wealth to be found, added to the romance of the lovers, gives the novel an interest that makes it impossible to leave until the end is reached.

The Wings of the Morning.

A sort of Robinson Crusoe redivivus, with modern settings and a very pretty love story added. The hero and heroine are the only survivors of a wreck, and have adventures on their desert island such as never could have happened except in a story. But the author has the gift of plausibility and makes the impossible real and most exciting.

A novel that follows the fortunes of a young man who sees an end of financial difficulties in marriage with an heiress and then discovers in himself latent powers and a liking for business which, developed, enable him to win the right sort of girl from manly motives. One of the big dramatic successes of the year.

The Romance of Terence O'Rourke: Gentleman Adventurer.

"The O'Rourke," the gentleman adventurer, was ready of wit, quick of tongue, tolerant of disposition, a citizen of the wide world, sure of himself, young—altogether a very Irish and very likable adventurer. For the reader who likes action there are no end of adventurous and romantic happenings, abundance of sword-play and pistol practice, abductions and wonderful escapes, beautiful women, Americans, Parisians and Egyptians, romance galore, and love abiding.

VAN VORST, MARIE.

The Sin of George Warrener.

A study of life and manners among a circle of people in one of New York's suburbs. It is a piece of careful and admirable workmanship—realistic and human—dealing with the conditions created by modern ambitions under other conditions created by the existing social and commercial standards. Its theme is interesting; is handled fearlessly, and in a way which only the practised writer devoted to her art dares attempt.

VIELÉ, HERMAN KNICKERBOCKER.

Heartbreak Hill. Illustrations and cover inlay in colors by John Rae.

The prospect of a stepfather was an outrage to Mopsie Beaton, so she ran away to live with an uncle and aunt. How she throve among her relatives, breathing all the while the peaceful air of Heartbreak Hill, is told with charm and fidelity to the things of real life. Sentiment and humor are nicely balanced in its pages, and the transcript of New England life and character is both truthful and charming.

VON ARNIM, COUNTESS.

Elizabeth and Her German Garden. New Edition, with Additions.

A charming book for lovers of outdoor life. We find ourselves in the presence of a whimsical, humorous, cultured and very womanly woman, with a pleasant, old-fashioned liking for homeliness and simplicity, with a wise husband, three merry babies, a few friends, a gardener, an old German house to repose in, a garden to be happy in, an agreeable literary gift and a slight touch of cynicism. Such is Elizabeth. It is a charming book.

The Solitary Summer.

Being a portrayal of the further experiences of Elizabeth and the man of wrath in their German Garden. A singularly whimsical and delightful volume that will appeal doubly to all lovers of outdoor life and good literature.

WALLACE, LEW.

The Fair God; Or, the Last of the 'Tzins. A Tale of the Conquest of Mexico. With illustrations by Eric Pape.

All the Aladdin riches of fairy lore have nothing more glitteringly, inconceivably magnificent; all the annals of conquest have nothing more brilliantly daring and dramatic than the drama played in Mexico by Cortes. As a dazzling picture of Mexico and the Montezumas it leaves nothing to be desired. The artist has caught with rare enthusiasm the spirit of the Spanish conquerors of Mexico, its beauty and glory and romance.

WALCOTT, EARLE ASHLEY.

The Apple of Discord. With illustrations by Alice Barber Stephens.

A tale of picturesque old San Francisco before it was swept away by the mightiest conflagration of history. The plots of highbinders, the agitation of a band of labor leaders, of riots on the Sand Lots, and Committees of Safety, and the fury of a financial panic are woven into one stretch of thrilling narrative by the intensity of a personal feud and the passionate strife for a woman's love.

Blindfolded. With illustrations by Alice Barber Stephens.

The scene opens at the "Golden Gate" fragrant with the salt air of the Pacific. A maze of adventure and excitement that blindfolds the reader as effectually as it did the hero, supplies the story. A romance flourishes in the midst of the mystery. more beautiful, if anything, because of the stormy scenes in which it is set.

WARD, MRS. HUMPHRY.

Lady Rose's Daughter. With illustrations by Howard Chandler Christy.

The heroine is a young woman, known as Julie Le Breton, the irregular daughter of an English noblewoman. She is endowed with beauty, wit and keen intelligence, is left an orphan without means and without honorable position; is related to many of the great people of London, yet is employed as companion by an old lady—Lady Henry—who knows her titled relations, but conceals from them the real identity of her protegée. The story, with its remarkable denouement, is a study in heredity and in the psychology of woman.

Marcella.

Has a strong bearing on social and economic questions. Many critics consider it the author's most finished work. Remarkable for the number of highly finished pictures fixed in the mind of the reader—pictures which are at once true to life and typical of life. There are scenes of cottage life which have never been outdone in clear accuracy of observation or in brilliancy of literary finish.

The Marriage of William Ashe. With illustrations by Albert Sterner.

Ashe is a coming man. The danger that threatens him lies in a peculiar quarter—his young wife, Lady Kitty, plays pranks on men high in politics—with consummate grace and impish ingenuity. The thrall of her beauty lies over all who know her. She becomes the talk of London. Finally, believing that her husband's patience and love are exhausted, she makes the mistake that many impetuous natures fall into under certain conditions.

WARNER, CHARLES DUDLEY.

The Golden House. With illustrations by W. T. Smedley.

Until the appearance of "The Golden House," the life of New York city, in its extremes of wealth and poverty, had never been made the subject of serious study and realistic handling by a novelist. Perhaps no other field has been more thoroughly cultivated by the writers of short stories and sketches, but before this no successful effort to realize the civic life as a whole.

WASON, ROBERT ALEXANDER.

Happy Hawkins. Illustrated by Howard Giles.

A ranch and cowboy novel with an abundance of guns, gambling dens, and other attractions of the glowing West, but all standing for something better and larger than "effects." Happy Hawkins tells his own story with such a fine capacity for knowing how to do it and with so much humor that every page holds the reader's interest in a grip that is at first surprise, then admiration and at last positive affection.

WATANNA, ONOTO.

Daughters of Nijo. With illustrations and decorations by Kiyokichi Sano.

Pictures and descriptions of the inner life of Japan, word-painted. They represent the social order in its transition state, partly transformed by the adoption of Western manners and customs, and more or less influenced by Western ideas. As a study of the Japan of to-day, the work has more than passing value, and the love story is a pretty poem.

WAY, NORMAN.

Mary Jane's Pa. Illustrated with scenes from the play.

Delightful, irresponsible "Mary Jane's Pa" doesn't really grow up until the "wanderlust" has died out of his nature. He talks, philosophizes, amuses everybody, does everything but labor, and while he works out his unique destiny the reader will be more amused than by any story that has been written and staged in many years.

WEBSTER, JEAN.

When Patty Went to College. With illustrations by C. D. Williams.

One of the best stories of life in a girls' college that has even been written. To any woman who has enjoyed the pleasures of a college life this book cannot fail to bring back many sweet recollections; and to those who have not been to college the wit, lightness, and charm of Patty are sure to be no less delightful.

WELLS, H. G.

Tono-Bungay.

The hero of this novel is a young man who, through hard work, earns a scholarship, and goes to London, only to yield to influences that warp and dissipate his energies. His life is unfolded with a frankness verging on Rousseau's, yet the book has a great moral, and is one of Mr. Wells's most notable achievements.

WELLS, H. G.—Continued.

War in the Air. With illustrations by Eric Pape.

This book is one of the triumphs of what has been called the scientific imagination. Mr. Wells logically traces the course of events in the future as indicated by the past, preserving the probabilities at every step with the utmost ingenuity. The result is the story of a great catastrophe told as if it were not a prophecy but actual history, and carrying conviction by its avoidance of all extravagance.

WESTCOTT, EDWARD NOYES.

This remarkably popular story reached the extraordinary sale of over a million copies.

"Conjuror's House" is a Hudson Bay trading post, where the head factor was the absolute lord—feared, loved, obeyed by all the creatures of the Fur Trading Company. How Ned Trent entered this territory, risking his life, and subsequently winning the hand of the only daughter, is admirably told. It is a warm, vivid and dramatic story, and depicts the tenderness and mystery of a true woman's heart.

The Magic Forest: A Modern Fairy Tale. With illustrations.

Simple and charming. The sympathetic way in which the children of the wild and their life is treated could only belong to one who is in love with the forest and the open air. It is based on fact and throbbing with life. No better book could be put into a young boy's hands.

The Riverman. Illustrated by N. C. Wyeth and Clarence Underwood.

"The Riverman" is the story of a man's fight against a river. Also it is the story of a struggle between honesty and grit on the one side, and dishonesty and shrewdness on the other. It brings us back to the Michigan woods and the book to which its author's name is most often linked—"The Blazed Trail"—and it is a worthy successor to that famous novel.

The Silent Places. With illustrations by Philip R. Goodwin.

The wonders of the northern forests through all the four seasons, as well as the contrasts between youth and age, feminine devotion and masculine power, the intelligence of the Caucasian and the instinct of the Indian, all are finely drawn in this story of the northern wilderness.

The Westerners.

A story of the Black Hills that will claim its place among the best of the American novels. It portrays the life of the new West as no other book has done in recent years.

WHITE, STEWART EDWARD and ADAMS, SAMUEL HOPKINS.

The Mystery. With illustrations by Will Crawford.

A tale of pure adventure, of mystery weird and inscrutable. From the first chapter, with the disappearance of three successive crews from the stout ship "Laughing Lass" in mid-Pacific, the interest is sustained at white heat. A search of the deserted vessel yields no clue, save a brass-bound chest. In the solution of the mystery there is a story of the most exciting voyage that man ever undertook.

WHITE, WILLIAM ALLEN.

WHITLOCK, BRAND.

The Thirteenth District.

The Turn of the Balance. With illustrations by Jay Hambidge.

A novel of extraordinary vigor, insight and freshness, and is as well a sweeping arraignment of our courts and an amazing revelation of the abuses of the police system, showing the terrible danger to which even an innocent man is exposed if unlucky enough to become entangled in the toils of the law. It has evoked a storm of comment and has been called by many the "Les Miserables" of America, and by others likened to Tolstoy's "Resurrection."

WIGGIN, KATE DOUGLAS.

The Affair at the Inn. With illustrations by Martin Justice.

An account of certain events which are supposed to have occurred in a quiet country inn on Dartmoor, in Devonshire. The unfolding of a little international comedy—a feast of humor and good cheer.

The Old Peabody Pew. Large octavo. Decorative text pages—printed in two tints. Illustrations by Alice Barber Stephens. Colored wrapper and inlay.

A Christmas story of a "certain handful of New England women." A new carpet and cushions mended with care, told on Christmas eve the story of days of hard work by the Dorcas society. Nancy Wentworth had lavished her strength on the Peabody Pew, sacred to her early romance. To this spot on Christmas Eve comes Justin Peabody, the wanderer lover, who, weary as the prodigal son, seeks the comfort and love of Nancy.

A humorous, fresh unconventional narrative of a trip through Ireland taken by three clever American girls. The land of smiles and tears is sketched with a touch so light, a wit so tender and irresistible that the experiences seem a living reality.

Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm.

A quaint story of New England life. Rebecca is a fresh, wholesome young girl, with artistic, unusual longings, growing up in the midst of an austere community. The village contrasts are glowing with humor, and Rebecca is a creation so distinct that she has become almost a national type. A recent dramatic success.

New Chronicles of Rebecca. With illustrations by F. C. Yohn.

Additional episodes in the girlhood of the delightful little heroine at Riverboro which were not included in the story of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," and they are as characteristic and delightful as any part of that now famous story. Many of the characters appear again, and the reader has the pleasure of becoming better acquainted with each one. Rebecca is as distinct a creation in the second volume as in the first .

Rose o' the River. With illustrations by George Wright.

The simple story of Rose, a country girl, "a fragile pink rose blossoming on the river's brink," and Stephen Waterman, a sturdy young farmer who lives on the other side of the Saco, is prettily told. The girl's fancy for a city man interrupts their love and merges the story into an emotional strain where the reader follows the events with rapt attention.

WILKINS-FREEMAN, MARY.

"Doc." Gordon. Illustrations in color by Frank T. Merrill.

Against the familiar background of American town life the author portrays a group of people strangely involved in a mystery. "Doc." Gordon, the one physician of the place, Dr. Elliot, his assistant, a beautiful woman and her altogether charming daughter are all involved in the plot. In this rendering of human nature, Mrs. Freeman has, perhaps, sounded deeper levels of the human heart than ever before.

WILLIAMSON, C. N. and A. M.

The Lightning Conductor. The Strange Adventures of a Motor Car. Revised, enlarged and illustrated.

Delightful people and delightful scenes. It should be a good, practical guide to those about to go over the same course, while its charming descriptions of travel afford an ample new fund of pleasure, tinged with envy here and there to the stay-at-homes. Wholly new and decidedly entertaining.

WILSON, HARRY LEON.

The Boss of Little Arcady. With illustrations by Rose C. O'Neill.

There are two heroes in this story of village life in the Mid-West; one the editor of the weekly paper, the other his staunch friend, though his rival in love. The story is told by the friend, who left the village at the call of the Civil War. The simpler and sweeter things of life hold sway in "Little Arcady," the Boss is lovably original.

The Spenders. With illustrations by Rose C. O'Neill.

As a literary exposition of the spendthrift campaign in which parvenu aspirants assail the battlements of gentle society, and are deftly fleeced and repelled, "The Spenders" is unsurpassed. It is racy, coruscating in wit, daring in love, and biting in its palpable caricature of many well-known persons in New York society.

WINSLOW, HELEN M.

Peggy at Spinster Farm. With illustrations by Mary G. Huntsman.

The spinster, her niece "Peggy," the Professor, and young Robert Graves—not forgetting Hiram, the hired man—are the characters to whom we are introduced. Light-hearted character sketches, and equally refreshing and unexpected happenings are woven together with a thread of happy romance of which Peggy of course is the vivacious heroine. Alluring descriptions of nature and country life are given.

WINTER, ALICE AMES.

What will happen when the buoyant, high-spirited and keen-witted young man of family awakes and realizes that he is tied for life to a mere piece of beautiful flesh? Mrs. Winter answers this query in her own way, clever, cheerful, vital, and distinguished. It is an unusual story in its plot and striking in the skill with which these themes are worked out.

Diomed is a beguiling animal, as wise as he is lovable, and the pictures are beautiful, rare for their delicacy and expressiveness, and for their truthfulness to the personality and environment of the dog. Any one who has ever owned or loved a dog will enjoy this book.

WISTER, OWEN.

The Virginian: A Horseman of the Plains. Illustrated by Arthur Keller.

The hero of this beautiful narrative furnishes an enduring addition to the gallery of characteristic American types in fiction. The wild and careless days and nights in a boundless, golden dream-haunted, enchanting country, character in a few illuminating phrases appeal irresistibly to one's personal enjoyment.

WODEHOUSE, P. G.

A lovely girl is in high favor with the "burglar," who isn't really a burglar, but a wealthy young New Yorker, who thought conventionality too tame.

WOOD, EDITH ELMER.

The Spirit of the Service. With illustrations by Rufus Zogbaum.

The standards and life of "the new navy" are breezily set forth with a genuine ring impossible from the most gifted "outsider." The story is of the destruction of the "Maine," and of the Battle of Manila. The author is the daughter of one naval officer and the wife of another. Naval folks will find much to interest them in "The Spirit of the Service."

WOODROW, Mrs. WILSON.

The Beauty. Vignette illustrations by Will Grefé. Wrappers printed in full color and gold.

A young Southern girl, friendless and dowerless, weds a wealthy bachelor, is overfed with the luxuries of life, and soon loses her appetite for them. She thinks that she loves the chum of her childhood days, tells her husband as much; whereupon he takes himself off and leaves the field clear to his rival. The wife uses her liberty in working out her destiny along lines that show her to be something more than a pretty woman.

WRIGHT, MABEL OSGOOD.

The Garden of a Commuter's Wife.

The whole book is declicious, with its wise, kindly humor, and refreshing originality of style. The daily life in the garden, the hopes, fears and disappointments, the delights of success, are charmingly portrayed. The commuter's charming wife writes of her suburban garden in a thoroughly human way. It breathes an air of cheery companionship, wholesome, unselfish and kindly.

The Open Window: Tales of the Months. With a frontispiece.

Is a series of short stories, which, by an ingenious device, correspond with the months of the year, each one showing the influences of the seasons upon the human temperament. Stories in the bright, witty vein which made the work of the chronicler of "The Garden of a Commuter's Wife" so widely acceptable. They derive their name from the Indian calendar, although not stories of the Red Men.

The People of the Whirlpool.

The commuter's wife is socially between two elements—the frivolous rich, whom she terms "whirlpoolers," and who spend only a few weeks in the country, and the all-around-the-year people who "commute," and she gossips charmingly of both. Fresh human interest and a sensitive humor play over every page.

ZOLA, EMILE.

Lourdes. Translated by Ernest A. Vizetelly.

The greatest recent master of the French novel tells us exactly what may be seen by a man who accompanies the pilgrimage without any belief in its miracles, whether for or against. It is an attempt by a keen mind to present psychic healing in such a form as to be understood and realized by the average reader.

The Downfall (La Debacle). Translated by Ernest A. Vizetelly.

A vivid novel covering the period of the Franco-Prussian War and the Commune. Its battle scenes, and the play of passion excited by war are drawn by a skilled hand. No work of fiction exceeds this work in dramatic force and absorbing situations.

ART AND ITS STUDY

GOODYEAR, PROF. WILLIAM H.

Roman and Medieval Art. New and enlarged edition, with 196 photographic reproductions of buildings, statues, reliefs and paintings; fabrics, utensils, coins, furniture, and other accessories of daily life.

As soon as history begins to be conceived as a sequent evolution of races and of epochs—which has been unbroken in continuity since the time of the Chaldeans and Egyptians down to the present time—the history of art appears as a study of the first importance. The history of art has especial value for a true philosophy of history in that it forces the student to subordinate the history of nations to the history of epochs.

BELLES LETTRES

BROOKE, STOPFORD A.

English Literature.

This well-known and deservedly praised work was first issued in 1876 as "A Primer of English Literature," and won approbation from Matthew Arnold, whose essay, "A Guide to English Literature," is a critical estimate of Mr. Brooke's method and results.

Its sobriety of taste, its keen and just criticism, its learning and its admirable conciseness have made it, both in England and America, the one book on English literature which scholars and men of letters have agreed in approving. In 1896 the volume was revised and in part rewritten under its present title.

BEERS, PROFESSOR HENRY A.

From Chaucer to Tennyson. With twenty-nine portraits, and selections from thirty authors.

One of the most important contributions yet made to literary history by an American scholar, and a noteworthy book by an acknowledged authority upon a most interesting period. It is in making his readers understand the spirit of the age that Professor Beers excels.

MABIE, HAMILTON WRIGHT.

Backgrounds of Literature. Illustrated.

A book to bring us in closer touch with eight favorite authors by telling of their homes and the scenes amid which they lived and wrote, at the same time giving discriminating estimates of their literary qualities. He takes us for a ramble in the Lake Country of England with Wordsworth; in Concord with Emerson; along the banks of the Hudson with Washington Irving; in Weimar with Goethe; in the Valley of the Doones with Blackmore; and in "bonny Scotland" with Scott. He discourses on Walt Whitman and gives a closing chapter on "Hawthorne in the New World."

Parables of Life. With illustrations by W. Benda.

They touch with a loving and reverent hand the inmost experiences of personal life. The feeling for beauty that expresses itself in simplicity, a philosophy of life, wholesome and attainable, the buoyant energy and steadfast spiritual vision that illuminates its pages, make it a helpful companion for a working day or a dull day.

WINTER WILLIAM.

Shakespeare's England. New and Revised Edition. With illustrations.

Beautiful and storied scenes that have soothed and elevated the mind naturally inspire a feeling of gratitude. Prompted by that feeling, the author has written this record of his rambles in England. The title was chosen for the reason that the book relates largely to Warwickshire and because it depicts not so much the England of fact as the England created and hallowed by the spirit of her poetry, of which Shakespeare is the soul.

RELIGIOUS ESSAYS, LECTURES, ETC.

ABBOTT (Rev. Dr.), LYMAN.

The Great Companion.

A series of beautiful chapters on seeking and feeling the companionship of God. Perhaps the most popular of the books of the able editor of The Outlook.

HILLIS (REV. DR.), NEWELL DWIGHT.

The Quest of Happiness: A Study of the Victory over Life's Troubles. By the Pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn.

An amazingly successful attempt to interpret with engaging directness the modern world to the end of achieving a happy, rational and useful life. He goes deeply down into the root of all things. It is a truly great book. Such an one as every young Christian should have on his library table.

HILTY, CARL.

Happiness: Essays on the Meaning of Life. Translated by Prof. F. G. Peabody, of Harvard University.

A series of brief but engaging papers on philosophical idealism by the professor of jurisprudence at Berne University. They can hardly fail to help one in the search for higher happiness. The philosophy of life which he teaches is wrought out of large experience, both of academic and political affairs. "The Art of Having Time" alone sends one a long way forward.

VAN DYKE (REV. DR.), HENRY.

The Gospel for an Age of Doubt. New and revised edition.

Shows there is a message of religion especially fitted to meet the needs of our times. There is a newness in the old gospel which shines out like a sunrise upon the darkness and despondency that overshadows so much of modern life.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY

Home Nursing: Modern Scientific Methods for the Sick Room. A valuable Appendix of forty pages details the diet in disease and convalescence.

In this work the simplest methods for hygienic nursing have been given, including free ventilation, perfect cleanliness, care of the sickroom, fever, nursing, the best form of nourishment, and many other suggestions for the comfort of the patient, within the reach of every home, no matter how simple or modest it may be. All technical terms have been intentionally excluded so that the directions may easily be understood.

WASHBURN, MARION FOSTER.

The Mother's Year Book. Being a Practical Application of the Results of Scientific Child-Study to the Problems of the First Year of Childhood. With illustrations.

Valuable advice on the preparations for motherhood, and on the baby's requirements, and how to dress and care for it during the first year of its life. On one side the book is eminently practical, the advice and suggestions given being based on the best scientific authority; but beyond this, it shows such sympathy and comprehension of childhood and motherhood as will make it specially welcome as a gift book for young mothers. The chapters on Weaning the Baby would alone make the book worth reading.

With Illustrations of Marked Beauty.

BAILEY, PROF. L. H.

Garden Making: Suggestions for the Utilizing of Home Grounds. By L. H. Bailey, Professor of Horticulture at Cornell University. With two hundred and fifty illustrations.

This little book is simply packed with information about the treatment of flowers, ornamental shrubs, of fruits and vegetables, all extremely practical in its form of statement, yet having an eye constantly fixed upon the esthetic side of the subject. A useful book, and one most indispensable to the amateur gardener.

ELY, HELENA RUTHERFURD.

A Woman's Hardy Garden. Superbly illustrated with 49 full-page halftone engravings from photographs by Prof. C. F. Chandler.

A book to be welcomed with enthusiasm. What we should plant, and when we should plant it; how to care for it after it is planted and growing; what to do if it does not grow and blossom; what will blossom, and when it will blossom, and what the blossoms will be. It is full of garden lore; of the spirit of happy out-door-life.

HALL BOLTON.

Three Acres and Liberty. Shows the value gained by intensive culture. Should be in the hands of every landholder. Profusely illustrated.

A book for every one who is tired of his environment of bricks and mortar and longs to improve his conditions and the health and happiness of his family by getting out into God's green fields and making a living there, but does not know how.

HARWOOD, W. S. (and BURBANK, LUTHER).

New Creations in Plant Life: An Authoritative Account of the Work of Luther Burbank. With 48 full-page halftone plates.

Mr. Burbank has produced more new forms of plant life than any other man who has ever lived. These have been either for the adornment of the world, such as new and improved flowers, or for the enrichment of the world, such as new and improved fruits, nuts, vegetables, grasses, trees and the like. This volumne describes his life and work in detail, presenting a clear statement of his methods, showing how others may follow the same lines, and introducing much never before made public.

HILL, LUCILLE E.

Athletics and Out-Door Sports for Women. With over two hundred illustrations.

An excellently compiled book on all departments of field athletics. The author, who has carried rowing by women at Wellesley farther than it has been done elsewhere, recognizes the fact that the object of women's athletics should not be to "break a record." She urges moderation and gives sound, clear-headed directions, emphasized by excellent illustrations, for the beginner. Because of such exercise the healthy American girl is taller, sounder and stronger than her mother, and indulgence in out-door pleasures assures a splendid womanhood.

ROOSEVELT, THEODORE.

The Deer Family. By Theodore Roosevelt and Others. With eight full-page halftone illustrations by Carl Rungius and Others. And eight maps showing the Ranges of the different species. 350 pages.

President Roosevelt occupies 164 pages in his masterful description of the Deer and Antelope family of North America. T. S. VanDyke writes of the Deer and Elk on the Pacific Coast. The story of the Caribou is told by D. G. Elliott, and A. J. Stone shows us the Moose, and tells Where and How It Lives.

The President in a "Foreword" says: "This volume is meant for the lover of the wild, free, lonely life of the wilderness, and for the hardy pastimes known to the sojourners therein."

STREETER, DR. JOHN WILLIAM.

The Fat of the Land: The Story of an American Farm.

The importance and value of such a book as "The Fat of the Land" is incalculable. It takes us back to the soil, the country, the farm, the forest, and all their delights and pleasures. The story of the farm is told with a frankness, a vivacity, a good humor and a practicality which makes it more interesting to the nature-loving reader than if it were a modern novel of the most exciting kind.

VON ARNIM, COUNTESS.

Elizabeth and Her German Garden: Copyright Edition with Additions.

The real charm of the delectable Elizabeth books is her own personality. It is good to read them for the same reason that it is good to spend an hour with an entertaining and true-hearted woman. Laughter that leaves you more content with life is not a thing to be condemned even by the strenuous moralist.

The Solitary Summer: A Companion Volume to Elizabeth and Her German Garden.

Elizabeth has a power of language as beautiful as it is rare; her sense of humor is also a saving salt in her composition, and in addition to expressing exquisite bits of sentiment she gives also bits that are deliciously funny. Perhaps even more charming than the fascinating original, which is saying a great deal.

WRIGHT, MABEL OSGOOD.

The Garden of a Commuter's Wife.

The daily life in the garden, the hopes, fear and disappointments, the delights of success, are charmingly portrayed in this volume.

The pretty grouping of the family around the tea-table, the festivities of the village, the sunny days, the snowy days, the gossip of the callers, even the lazy days in the attic at the old fireplace are touched with a delicate realism that makes one envy the interesting life of the commuter's wife.

In their grotesque grace, in their quaint humor, in their trust in the simple virtues, in their insight into the cruder vices, in their innocence of the fact of sex, "Aesop's Fables" are as little children—and for that reason they will ever find a home in the heaven of little children's souls.

COOPER, J. FENIMORE.

Cooper's novels are intensely American in spirit, in scenery, and in characters, with a great deal of the human nature that belongs to all countries in them, besides. Everything about them is fresh, lofty and romantic. He loved Nature and wrote from his own intimacy with her; and he loved the grand, simple, straightforward soul of a true man, which he pictured with wonderful skill. His greatest character is the hunter and trapper, "Leatherstocking," who is the leading figure in "The Last of the Mohicans," and the four other stories which comprise "The Leatherstocking Tales."

Volume I. From the Beginning to the Age of Henry VIII.
Volume II. From the Age of Henry VIII to the Age of Milton.
Volume III. From the Age of Milton to the Age of Johnson.
Volume IV. From the Age of Johnson to the Age of Tennyson.

It is a monumental, popular, and yet scholarly review of English literature. The text is characterized by comprehensiveness and soundness of judgment. The 1,600 text illustrations and the 42 full-page halftone portraits form a feature of the book which is of superior importance. No school or college library, no private house or public institution, should be without its set of "English Literature." It was formerly published and sold by subscription for $30.00. It is now issued at a price bringing it within the reach of every lover of books. The publishers hope that this scholarly work, so costly in its production, will meet with the popular support it so richly deserves, and with this object in view, they now offer this monumental work at popular prices, as follows:

Four Volumes, Large Octavo. Cloth binding. Price, per set, $12.00.
Half Morocco, gold top. Price, per set, $20.00.

The fourth volume includes an Appendix, which contains a scholarly and valuable transliteration of all the obscure Anglo-Saxon and early English manuscripts contained in the first two volumes, and a most complete and accurate index to the entire work, covering no less than 61 pages, and giving, by reference and cross-reference, the greatest possible facility to those who consult it.

The possession of this masterful and inspiring work will form an intellectual era in a man's life. It possesses the fascination of a romance united to the integrity of history.

HAMMOND'S

Commercial and Library Atlas

CONTAINING

NEW AND COMPLETE MAPS OF EVERY STATE, TERRITORY AND COUNTRY, with quick reference marginal indices, whereby any county or other important political division and any of the principal cities or towns can be instantly located on the map without turning the page. These maps show all counties, cities, villages, railroads and the usual details of topography and hydrography. These maps are beautifully printed in colors. The state maps show in red the interurban electric lines, congressional districts, etc.

Of many of the more densely populated states enlarged scale maps, occupying two or more pages, are given; these permit of showing great detail in most legible manner. Our maps are always down to date, being kept under continuous revision, and this new series shows our most advanced effort.

MAPS OF THE LARGER CITIES OF THE UNITED STATES. These maps show streets, avenues, public buildings, local and suburban electric lines and other details of immense reference value to all.

There are forty-eight pages of these city maps, (more than in any other general reference atlas) beautifully printed in colors.

POSTAL AND SHIPPING GUIDE OF THE UNITED STATES, showing in detail: The entire railroad system, with the express company doing business over each road; all county-seats, and all cities, towns, and villages having 100 or more inhabitants, with latest official population figures, and their location on maps; money-order post-offices; places on rural free delivery routes, with the point from which this service starts and the nearest mailing point to villages, etc., not post-offices.

This new compilation contains over 40,000 places and gives for each city, town or village the 1910 census figures. It forms a most serviceable guide to the merchant, shipper or student.

DESCRIPTIVE GAZETTEER OF THE CITIES OF THE WORLD, giving brief but comprehensive and down-to-date accounts of the great trade centers, places of historical interest, resorts etc. This feature forms an encyclopedia of the commerce of the world, giving as it does for each place the essential facts about exports, manufactures, shipping, minerals, education, etc.

Over 175 Pages of Maps, beautifully printed in colors, and correct to date

This is the only Commercial Atlas of convenient size. It measures, when closed 10½ x 13½ inches, and is substantially bound, with reinforced backs and sides.

THE MERCANTILE MARINE ATLAS OF THE WORLD

The Most Scholarly Atlas Extant, Containing a Volume of Data Not to be Found Elsewhere. Of Inestimable Value as a Reliable Book of Reference, in the Office or Library of the Man of Affairs Throughout the World.

THIS cyclopedia of hydrography numbers in its contents over one hundred charts and plans, tables of eighty-six hundred distances between ports, national and house flags, lists of United States and British Consulates, a complete index of twenty thousand ports, etc., etc.

Some of the features of the Mercantile Marine Atlas of the World:

The steamer routes shown correspond exactly with the courses followed, and distances have been most carefully calculated. Mail routes are distinguished by red lines, the time occupied and the distance in miles being given. Telegraph cables are shown on the general charts, and also marked on the physical maps of the oceans, showing sea depths. On all the general charts the hundred fathom line is laid down, and danger points, lighthouses, lightships, canals, and navigable rivers are shown. The through railway lines are also indicated. Towns are distinguished according to their relative populations. Naval stations, coaling stations, docks, and American and British Consulates are located. Mercator's Projection has been worked out in single degrees in the general maps to facilitate the laying down of new or special routes.

A large number of inset plans shows the relative extent and harbor accommodation of the principal seaports of the world, also the separate docks, and the depth of the water in the channels by which they are approached.

The physical geography of the oceans has been exhaustively treated in a series of maps, embracing charts of the winds, ocean currents, co-tidal lines, magnetic variation and salinity of the sea; supplementary maps illustrate the visibility of the land, the rise of tides in different parts of the world, depth of the sea, etc., etc.

The introduction contains an immense amount of nautical information including statistics of merchant shipping and tables of comparative values of foreign currencies.

Size of book closed, 15½ inches wide, 19¾ inches long and 1 inch thick. Size of double page maps, 31¼ x 19 inches.

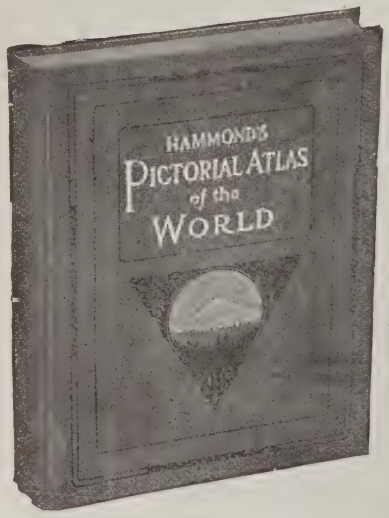
PICTORIAL ATLAS OF THE WORLD



¶ An Atlas, to be of service, must be up-to-date—compact. This Atlas and Gazetteer of the World is newer, by five years, than any publication of like nature. In the last half decade the world has moved forward swiftly, and changes of vital moment have been wrought. The alert business man or painstaking teacher has no use for a mediocre, cumbersome atlas, telling only half truths. He wants to know the situation to-day. Thousands of new towns have sprung up within this last year. New railroads have been finished. He wants a complete compendium of geographical facts to-date; these facts are easily accessible in this exhaustive work.

THE MAPS

are clear, accurate and by reason of their delicate, harmoniously blended coloring are of rare beauty. Boundaries are distinct. The names of towns are printed in graded type indicating their size. On the margin of each map are new alphabetically arranged quick-reference indices of political divisions, cities and towns.

THE INDEX

Names and locates on maps every incorporated city, village and borough in the United States and gives the official 1910 Census figures for each. For the counties the official census figures of 1910, 1900 and 1890 are given.

THE PICTORIAL GAZETTEER

is a Topical Cyclopedia of Geography, alphabetically indexed (occupying more than 100 pages), containing a wealth of entirely up-to-date information about countries, states, mountains, islands, rivers, and other civil and physical aspects of the globe.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS

form a charming collection of photographic reproductions that are properly called "The World in Halftone." These beautiful pictures range in size from two inches square to half a page. They appear on an average of two to a page, and number in their midst innumerable portraits of types, and some of the rarest and fairest views in the world.

SIZE

HAMMOND'S
MODERN ATLAS of THE WORLD

¶ During the last few years numberless changes, which render an old atlas useless, have been wrought. New towns have sprung up; old cities and towns have grown; thousands of miles of new railroads have been built; history has changed the boundaries of countries, and these with numberless other changes are recorded in this new work. It is down to date in every particular.

This new atlas contains 128 pages of MAPS, beautifully printed in colors, representing every portion of the earth as it is TO-DAY. These plates have been engraved from new drawings, based on the latest surveys, and the publishers believe them to be the most complete and carefully edited series of like size covering the whole earth. The lettering is clear and clean cut throughout, carefully graded in size to convey at a glance relative importance of places. Railroads are shown and named and with very few exceptions, in crowded or densely populated sections, every railroad station and post-office is named.

On the margin of each map is an ALPHABETICALLY ARRANGED INDEX OF COUNTIES (or other minor divisions), CITIES AND TOWNS. A division or place may be instantly located without turning the page. The convenience of such a quick reference index will be readily appreciated.

Another valuable feature of this work is a very complete INDEX OF CITIES AND TOWNS of the United States with POPULATION ACCORDING TO THE 1910 CENSUS. This new index is complete and down to date. Populations of Foreign Cities are according to latest reports.

The size of this work is 10½x13½ inches, printed on high finish paper and durably bound in red cloth, with attractive cover stamping.

These maps show the latest changes, and are thoroughly abreast with the times. The engraving and lettering of these maps is of superior quality, and all have been most carefully edited.

Another valuable feature of this work is a list of the CITIES of THE WORLD, with the latest population statistics, and the giving populations of all counties, cities and incorporated villages.

1910 Census of the United States

An Invaluable Aid to All Who Follow Current Events in the World's News

Each day brings news which cannot be clearly understood without referring to a good map.

No one can intelligently read his daily paper without a reference book such as this new atlas.

Hammond's Handy Atlas of the World

Is the most recent and authoritative, and, therefore, the most reliable atlas of its size published

IT CONTAINS A SEPARATE RAILROAD MAP OF EACH STATE AND TERRITORY; maps of each of our insular possessions, and of every other portion of the globe, printed in colors from new plates. In the maps of our states and territories, and of the provinces of Canada, RAILROADS ARE NAMED, and stations are shown, in a very complete manner. These, and all other details, are brought down to as recent date as in any of the more expensive atlases.

Alphabetically arranged lists of cities give the LATEST POPULATION STATISTICS.

The maps in this work are not only new and reliable, but they are legible. Every name is lettered in clean-cut type; no indistinct hand-lettering is used. Every map is beautifully printed in colors, on high-finish paper made expressly for this book.

Many, if not most, low-priced atlases are made up of old plates, all but worthless in this era of rapid changes.

OUR PLATES ARE NEW, UP-TO-DATE, AND SUPERIOR IN EVERY RESPECT.

By way of illustrating the extent to which this work is abreast of the times, the publishers call attention to the following geographical changes that are shown in the map-plates of this book, very many of which are not to be found in any publication of similar size or cost:

¶ THE CHANGES IN TRANSPORTATION ROUTES, brought about by the construction of such new railway lines as the Western Pacific across three states, from Salt Lake to the Pacific; as the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound across five states, from the Missouri River to Puget Sound; as the Grand Trunk Pacific across the Dominion of Canada; or as the Florida East Coast over the coral reefs from Biscayne Bay to Key West: not to speak of hundreds of miles built by other important lines.

¶ THE RESULTS OF RECENT EXPEDITIONS, such as the achievement of the North Pole; the mapping of northeast Greenland; or as Shackleton's advance towards the South Pole: including the important investigations in Alaska, and in our insular possessions.

¶ THE CREATION AND GROWTH OF POPULATION CENTERS, such as Fairbanks, now the largest place in Alaska; as Prince Rupert, the new Pacific terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific; as Melville, a railroad shop-and division-headquarters on the Saskatchewan prairie; or as the new mining centers and towns springing up on our deserts and in the regions reclaimed by irrigation and dry farming.

¶ THE IMPORTANT CHANGES IN POLITICAL BOUNDARIES brought about by the division of Sakhalin; the contraction of Siam; the creation of counties in Hawaii; the rearrangement of districts in Porto Rico; the union of British colonies in South Africa, and the territorial adjustment of differences among several South American countries.

Contains 96 pages; 6x8 in.; bound in durable, silk-finished cloth.

New Map of the World on the Equivalent Projection

IN the illustration above we have merely indicated, with the barest outline, the magnificent new map of the World on the equivalent projection. The original covers a surface considerably over one hundred times greater, and it would be manifestly impossible to portray its multitudinous features in so small a drawing.

This splendid achievement overcomes many objectionable features of distortion in other maps. It has won the approval of the United States Government and of the leading cartographers of Europe.

The New Map of the World presents to view, in one continuous map, with all areas in true proportion, the entire surface of the earth, in rich, harmonious color!

Everybody needs a map which portrays the world as it is—which has the changes in countries, cities, etc., etc., that have occurred in the last few years, and which shows every country with its capital; cities, ports, railroads, canals, mountains, lakes, streams, ocean depths, submarine cables, and numberless other important features.

On the marginal space appears a complete index, locating and giving the population of every country, according to the latest censuses—all cities of over fifty thousand inhabitants, and the islands of the world.

The proximity of map and index (a feature exclusive with this map) adds infinitely to its efficiency.

CONDENSED HOTEL DIRECTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

Contains an accurate and reliable list of the leading hotels in all the principal cities of the United States, with their rates per day and the plans on which each is conducted; also the principal summer and winter resorts throughout the country.

This directory has just been completed and includes many recently constructed hotels. It is intended especially for the use of the traveling public; its convenient pocket size makes it far more desirable than larger and heavier publications, in which a large portion of the contents are advertisements.

The leading hotels in every city have been chosen impartially by discriminating authorities; the book contains no misleading advertisements and the selections have been governed entirely by high standard of the hotels. Only one or two of the best commercial hotels in most of the cities are named; there is no long confusing list in which are included the inferior hotels as well as the better class ones.

The book also gives the population figures of the principal cities of the country, according to the 1910 census.

COMPARISON OF SIZES

8-inch 10-inch 12-inch 18-inch

Though not usually known, an 18-inch globe is three times the size of a 12-inch globe. On account of the clearness of the engraving which is correspondingly larger we recommend the 18-inch globe for general purposes.

Our New Suspension Globe

SUSPENSION GLOBE

REPRESENTING the latest and most effective manner of mounting for schoolroom purposes. Hanging, as it does, from the ceiling of the room, it is in plain view of every pupil, and utilizes space, otherwise wasted. This feature of mounting does away with any possible injury to the globe by being upset or knocked over, as is often the case with other styles. Can be raised or lowered at will and rotates on every conceivable diameter.

This globe has had the most remarkable sale of any school globe ever manufactured, and is gaining more and more in popular favor every day. Users are most enthusiastic in their praise, and we do not hesitate to recommend this globe very highly to any school now unequipped.

No. 1807. 18-inch Ball; complete with pulleys, cord, etc.
Price, - - $23.00

NOTE—On account of the cost of transportation we do not supply the weight. An ordinary 12-inch sash weight is all that is required and can be purchased from your local dealer for a matter of twenty-five cents or so. By painting it can easily be greatly improved in appearance.

Mission Library Globes

The stands are made of specially selected quarter sawed oak, weathered finish. The book rack feature on the bottom utilizes space which heretofore has been wasted. It is an attractive piece of furniture.

METAL HOUR DISCS

All the Terrestrial Globes described in this catalog are fitted with Circular Metal Discs attached to the North Pole.

These have stamped on them the 24 hours of the day, and by placing the disc in such a position as to indicate the time at New York or Chicago (or point where observation is made) the time at any other place on earth is instantly ascertained.

The Comparative Series of Large Schoolroom Maps

IT is an undoubted fact that the most serviceable maps for class teaching purposes are those that illustrate clearly, and at a glance, both Political and Physical Features. This New Series will be found to possess this combination, and, in addition, to form an extremely attractive decoration for the schoolroom.

SPECIAL FEATURES

1.—Physical Features are especially prominent. The land is tinted according to its elevation, and the mountain ranges are printed in a different color. The coastline, river courses, lakes, etc., are well defined and printed in blue.

The Comparative Series of Large Schoolroom Maps

THIS REDUCED PHOTOGRAPHIC FACSIMILE SHOWS THE COMPARATIVE SERIES MAP OF THE WORLD IN OUR "UNIT" CASE. SIZE OF MAP, 80 x 63 INCHES. LENGTH OF CASE, 84 INCHES OVER ALL

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Every teacher must have experienced the difficulty of obtaining a satisfactory Map of the World on a large scale for class use. Heretofore such maps have invariably been constructed either on a Globular Projection or upon that known as Mercator's. Both of these projections have their advantages, but are deficient in the following important respects:—

The Globular Projection shows the world in two separate Hemispheres side by side, and, whilst it is a useful method of comparing the relative sizes of the various land and sea areas, it is extremely puzzling for children to learn from such a map the relative positions of the different countries and the means of communication between them. Mercator's Projection satisfactorily overcomes the difficulty as regards relative position and means of communication, but is extremely misleading as to the relative sizes of the various countries.

To overcome these objections THE COMPARATIVE MAP OF THE WORLD has been constructed on what is known as the Equivalent Projection. This projection, although rapidly growing in favor with leading cartographers, has never before been employed on so large a scale for educational use, although it is pre-eminently suited for teaching purposes.

It is the only projection in which the Equivalent Areas or correct sizes of all parts of the world are preserved in combination with their relative position to each other; and it is the possession of these two important features which has led to its adoption in the Comparative Series of Large School-room Maps.

A glance at the accompanying reduced facsimile of the map will show that the entire earth is represented in the shape of an ellipse, the major axis of which represents the equator, whilst its minor axis represents the central meridian. All other meridians of longitude appear as ellipses, whilst the parallels of latitude appear as parallel straight lines, the intervals between them being regulated in such manner as to ensure Equivalent Areas. To emphasize the advantages the Equivalent Projection possesses over other methods of representing the globe on a flat surface, and to give Teachers the material for explaining the elements of Map Projection, inset maps of the World in Hemispheres and on Mercator's Projection have been added, together with maps on a Polar Projection, giving the Arctic and Antarctic Regions.

Philips' Political Series of Large Schoolroom Maps

DRAWN with unerring accuracy by the foremost geographers of the day and colored with a view to add both to their usefulness and attractiveness, the series under this heading must compel the thoughtful interest of every pupil to whom they are exhibited!

All unimportant details have been eliminated. All physical features are distinctly drawn and all political boundaries are clearly defined; moreover this series is abreast of the times. For example, on the maps of the World, Europe, Asia and South America, the railroad and steamship lines are distinctly shown in red. Features of this nature must appeal to those interested in up-to-date methods of instruction in geography.

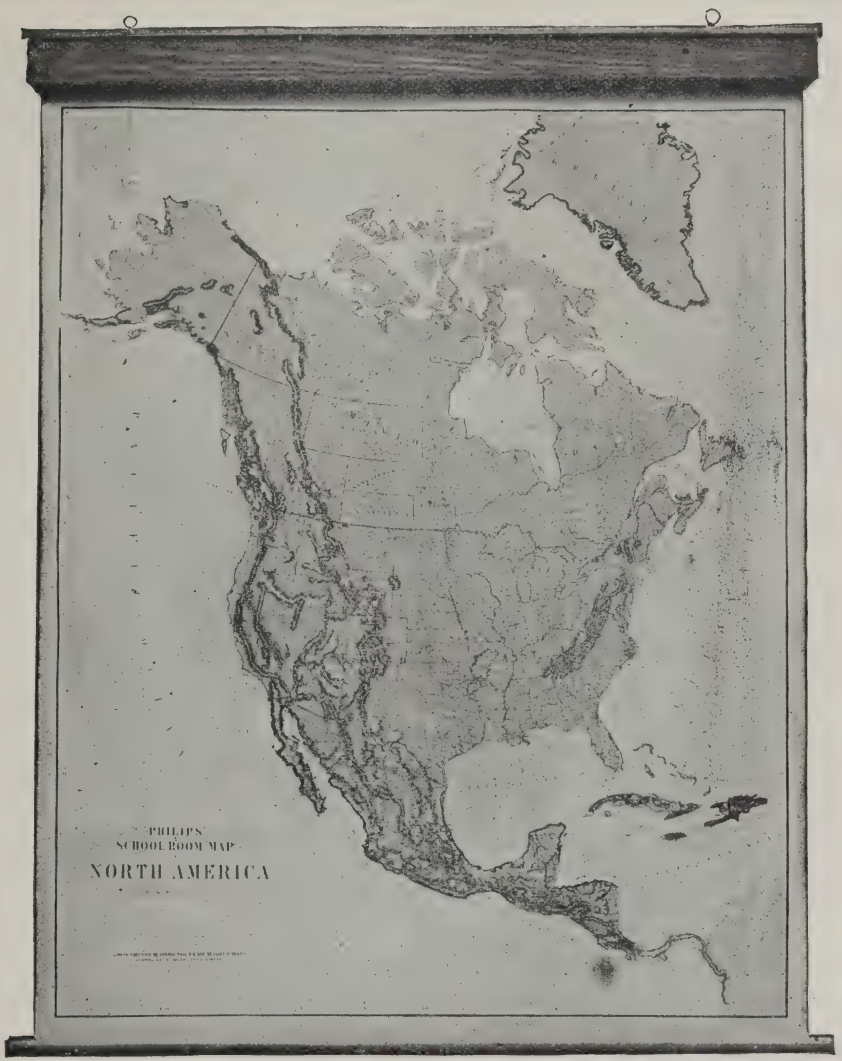
Philips' Political Series of Large Schoolroom Maps

Reduced Photographic Reproduction



This cut shows the map of North America in our "Unit" case, as it appears when extended ready for use.

THE maps of this series can be read across the largest schoolroom.

Even on the above small reduction, it will be seen that the names of the political divisions and surrounding waters of North America are easily distinguishable.

Philips' Special Series of Schoolroom Maps

The most Up-to-Date, Practical and Serviceable School Maps on the Market.

THE Special Series contains features that are embraced in no other maps made for schoolroom use!

Through railroads and steamship routes are conspicuously shown on every map in heavy red.

Trade centers of each country throughout the world are strongly indicated with large red symbols.

From the foregoing it will be noted that great prominence has been given to commercial geography. No other single series combines, in so complete and comprehensive a manner, physical, political and commercial features.

These maps are splendidly colored. Each separate country stands out sharply and distinctly so that its contour is indelibly stamped on the memory. Mountain ranges are printed in brown.

All recent political changes have been heeded, and the boundaries of countries appear as they are to-day.

The keynote of the Special Series is simplicity. While no feature of importance has been omitted, no superfluous matter has been allowed to crowd the maps to distract attention from the salient points with which it is essential that pupils be impressed.

GEOGRAPHICAL TERMS

A Splendid New Chart Illustrating Clearly, Concisely and Interestingly the Initiatory Steps in the Study of Geography.

The following subjects are illustrated in beautifully harmonizing colors:

1.—A Large Pictorial Landscape, Illustrating Graphically the Chief Features of Land and Water.
2.—A Large Map Corresponding With the Landscape, Illustrating the Various Geographical Definitions, Political and Physical.
3.—Picture of Schoolhouse, and Ground Plan of Same.
4.—Picture of Neighborhood Surrounding School, and Corresponding Map.
5.—Picture Illustrating Method of Ascertaining Direction by the Sun.
6.—Map of World, Illustrating Points of the Compass.
7.—Map of World, Showing Divisions of Land and Water, Zones, etc.
8.—The World in Space.

¶ It is suggested that the picture and the map be always taught together. When the children can recognize the course of the river on the picture they should trace it on the map. Afterwards the picture can be used as a blank map is used, i. e., for testing the knowledge of the class.

Points to Which Attention May Be Drawn.

¶ The clouds working up and covering the mountains; all except the high peak in the distance. The snow-covered mountain range and the glacier, the source of the river. Its unnavigable portion to the waterfall; below the waterfall boats can sail upon it. This part is called the lower river; the other the upper river. The valley through which the upper river runs has been worn wider by the rain and frost, and deeper by the river.

¶ The hills are barren, and on the lower ground are trees; firs in left hand corner, and a group of seven poplars on the bank of the stream.

¶ The old village nestles in a valley near the bridge, its church tower being plainly seen, while the new town with its docks and chimneys stands near the harbor. [Harbors were not safe in early days, sea robbers visited them, so towns were built far up the stream.]

¶ Across the plain a railway runs, keeping to the level ground but going as direct as possible.

¶ The breakwater is so arranged that the sea waves driven by the westerly winds shall not run up the harbor. There is smooth water and safe anchorage in the harbor. Breakwaters are built by man.

¶ The word Archipelago (pr. Arkipel′ago) is used to indicate either the water space in which there are islands, or the islands themselves.

¶ The rocks of the Peninsula Headland are of limestone, white and hard. The cliffs forming the Cape are of clay and are easily worn. The island is being gradually washed away by the sea.

COMPARATIVE SERIES MAPS OF BIBLE LANDS

TO understand the bible story a knowledge of the geography of bible lands is indispensable, and it is with the view of supplying the material for an accurate study of scripture history that the new COMPARATIVE SERIES OF BIBLE MAPS has been compiled. The maps are clearly drawn and attractively printed in colors, presenting graphically each phase of bible history. The series ends with a map of Modern Palestine, showing the modern identifications of the Biblical sites, and exhibiting by a system of contours and orographical coloring, those remarkable physical features of the Holy Land which have played so important a part in determining the history of the children of Israel.

1. The Distribution of the Nations

The first map of the series illustrates the book of Genesis, and shows the distribution after the flood of the descendants of Hem, Shem, and Japhet, according to the Biblical narrative.

2. Egypt, the Sinai Peninsula, and the Promised Land

Map 2 illustrates the book of Exodus, and especially the sojourn of the Israelites in the land of Egypt, their wanderings in the Desert, and their arrival in the land of Canaan. Fertile districts such as Lower Egypt and the Promised Land are distinguished by color from the tracts of arid desert through which the children of Israel journeyed for so many years.

3. Syria and Mesopotamia The Persian Empire

Sheet 3 contains two maps illustrating Old Testament history, especially those great kingdoms of ancient times—Chaldea, Assyria, Babylonia, Persia and Media, whither the children of Israel again and again were carried into captivity.

COMPARATIVE SERIES MAPS OF BIBLE LANDS

4. Canaan as divided among the Twelve Tribes

Map 4 illustrates the books of Joshua and Judges, and shows the division of the land of Canaan among the tribes of Israel, the position of the Levitical cities and of the cities of refuge. A plan of ancient Jerusalem is added, showing the gradual growth of the sacred city after its occupation by the children of Judah.

5. The Holy Land in the Time of the Kings

Map 5 illustrates the books of Samuel, the Kings and the Chronicles. It depicts the formation of the Hebrew kingdom under Saul and David, its vast extension to the Euphrates under the sway of Solomon, and its disruption into the kingdoms of Judah and Israel after his death.

6. Palestine in the Time of Christ

Map 6 illustrates the Gospel story. It exhibits the Holy Land as it existed at the time of the life of Christ, under the domination of the Romans. The familiar names of places visited by Jesus on his journeys through Galilee, Judea, and Samaria can be identified, and an enlargement of the environs of Jerusalem facilitates the study of the New Testament narrative, where it deals with the final tragedy in the life of the Saviour.

7. The Journeys of St. Paul
The Roman Empire

Sheet 7 contains two maps, the first illustrating more particularly the acts of the apostles and the epistles, and the second giving a general survey of the Roman empire as it existed at the birth of Christ. On the first map, the several journeys of the great missionary apostle are clearly indicated; also the positions of the early Christian churches.

8. Modern Palestine

Map 8 exhibits the striking physical characteristics of the Holy Land. It shows also the principal modern identifications of ancient sites; and both the ancient and modern means of communication, namely roads and roadways. A study of the physical features of Palestine is the only way to understand the bible narrative, and in this map we see how this little country, cleft from the sources of the Jordan to the Red Sea by a tremendous gorge or depression, and shut off from the outer world either by desert, by sea, or the snowcapped peaks of Hermon and of Lebanon, provided a fitting home for the "peculiar people," and the most perfect of birthplaces for the Christian religion.

CHARLEVOIX'S HISTORY OF NEW FRANCE

Translated from the original edition, with notes, by Dr. John Gilmary Shea. A new edition, with life of the Translator and Bibliography of his writings, by Noah Farnham Morrison.

The importance of Dr. Shea's translation of Rev. P. F. X. De Charlevoix's History and General Description of New France, as an original authority and standard reference work cannot be overestimated. The New France of that date (1740) was far more than what we now know as Canada. It embraced the best part of the North American Continent. Thus Charlevoix, besides giving a full history of Canada down to 1740, relates in detail the early annals of Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, New York, Michigan, Illinois and Northwestern States, and Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas. This new edition contains over 40 illustrations, including all the maps, steel portraits, etc. Limited to 750 numbered sets. 6 vols., 8vo, cloth, uncut, - - - - - - $18.00 net per set

This important work, of which a very limited number was published by the author thirty years ago, is now very rare. A fire having destroyed a large portion of certain of the volumes, only about 150 complete sets were ever sold.

AMERICAN EXPLORERERS SERIES NO. 4

History of Early Steamboat Navigation on the Missouri River

By MAJOR HIRAM M. CHITTENDEN, U. S. ENGINEER CORPS.

The Life and Adventures of Joseph La Barge, Pioneer Navigator and Indian Trader. For fifty years identified with the commerce of the Missouri Valley. Map, portraits and illustrations from early photographs. 2 vols., 8vo, cloth. (Edition limited to 950 copies.) - - - - - - - - - - - $6.00 net

A valuable and interesting original work by the author of "The American Fur Trade of the Far West." Very few people now have any conception of the part the steamboat navigation of the Missouri River played in the upbuilding of the West. The business of the fur trade, the intercourse of government agents with the Indians, the campaigns of the army throughout the valley and the wild rush of gold-seekers to the mountains, all depended, in greater or less degree, upon the Missouri River as a line of transportation. No other river in this country has a record to compare with it. From beginning to end it abounds in thrilling incident, and the life which it fostered was full of picturesque and even tragic details.

No. 2. FORTY YEARS A FUR TRADER ON THE UPPER MISSOURI

Secondly, he has given at the foot of the page an adequate account of the various 'gentile' systems, or errors which S. Thomas undertakes to combat. Thirdly, he has wisely eliminated from his translation a great deal of what, in the light of modern knowledge, must be regarded as irrelevant matter, such as S. Thomas himself would doubtless have been content to discard as obscuring the main issues. And fourthly, he has made it clear that certain of S. Thomas' arguments, proceeding as they do upon erroneous presuppositions in the region of physics, are yet capable of being re-stated in terms of up-to-date science...." (The Tablet. London.)

"Without making any real examination of the facts now presented in this volume, historians went on for centuries contentedly repeating the interested and deceitful account given by Lord Burghley, who was himself the chief actor in effecting that extinction, and thus it came at last to be regarded as a fixed tradition, that excepting one or two, the ousted Prelates had been pleasantly allowed to end their lives in comfortable ease and quiet. To prove that this account is at hopeless variance with official record, which the throwing open of State Papers has now made accessible to all, is the purpose of this volume."

"A delightful story....Elders as well as juniors may read it with both profit and pleasure...." (The Examiner. Bombay.)

* Benson, Robert Hugh. The King's Achievement. 8vo. 511 pages.. 1.50

"In its role of an 'historical novel,' Father Hugh Benson's latest work....is one of the books which strikes us almost immediately as having in it something unique, in this case, as possessing a quality in virtue of which it succeeds to a phenomenal degree in creating the impression of a curiously intimate rapport between ourselves and the time during which its scene is laid." (The Dolphin. Philadelphia.)

* ——The Queen's Tragedy. 8vo. 8 + 382 pages..... 1.50

"....No one since Walter Scott has approached him so closely as a master of historical fiction, and Fr. Benson has a deeper knowledge of antiquarian love and is without the prejudice of the Wizard of the North...." (The True Voice. Omaha.)

"....It is simply delightful....this prose poem...."
(The Ave Maria. Notre Dame.)

——The Conventionalists. 8vo. 4+368 pages 1.50

Fr. Benson has the first quality of a great writer of fiction—the power to create characters. It is doubtful whether in the whole range of English novels there are to be found more perfectly limned individualities than those of Lady Brasted and Mr. Banister in "The Conventionalists."

——The Necromancers. 8vo. 4+374 pages..... 1.50

The book brings out, and none too strongly, the treason to God that objectively exists in frequenting spiritualistic circles, with their "spirit messages" and "silver offerings" and all the rest. Fr. Benson is not didactic, that is, he does not lay down a formal proposition and then proceed to its orderly demonstration, yet every page drives home a lesson.

——A Winnowing. 8vo. 2+332 pages..... ..... 1.50

"....We began this book with a prejudice against it..... But soon, as we read, we were gripped by the interest of the tale and held fast, and now, having finished it, we take back our querulous words and say without hesitation that Fr. Benson has shown excellent judgment...."

(Ave Maria. Notre Dame.)

* Brookfield, Frances M. A Friar Observant. 8vo. 10+392 pages 1.50

The story relates to the adventures and experiences of a Friar Observant of Greenwich, who goes to Germany after the Dissolution of the Religious Houses. On the Continent, he comes in contact with leaders of the Reform Movement, and converses in particular with Martin Luther. The plot however involves incidents of the most varied character, besides the political and religious controversies of the sixteenth century.
